U.S. Steel and Union Settle 42-Day Strike

'Third Plane' Contradicts Tower's Data On 'Pass'

P-38's Radio Link Could Have Been Out, Airport Aide Says At CAB Inquiry

(Pictures on Page 5)

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

The crew of an Air Force B-25 yesterday contradicted Civil Aeronautics records on the time they made a "simulated" landing at National Airport, minutes before a P-38 and DC-4 crashed and killed 55 persons near by.

The fliers' testimony threw a Civil Aeronautics Board inquiry into a new conflict, as investigators tried to determine whether the B-25 could have confused Erick Rios Bridoux, Bolivian pilot of the P-38.

Another new angle in the probe arose when a National Airport official said it was "quite possible" that radio transmission between the tower and Bridoux's P-38 could have been blocked out by attempted simultaneous sending.

Records Set Time

Bolling Air Force Base witnesses swore the crash was at 11:48 a. m. on November 1, while National Airport records show it was at 11:46 a. m.

But the major disagreement after Stanley Seltzer, supervisor in charge of operations at the National Airport control tower, said the B-25 had completed a "simulated instrument landing" over the field at 11:43 a. m.

Three officers who were in the B-25 testified it couldn't have been later than 11:38 a. m. and was probably nearer 11:33 a. m.

May Have Confused Planes

Bridoux testified in a sworn statement Thursday he saw what he thought was a C-45 Beechcraft or C-60 Lockheed Lodestar approaching to land on No. 3 runway three minutes before the fatal collision.

He said he did not think it was a B-25. All three aircraft have twin engines and twin rudders, and Bridoux said he may have confused them at a distance.

At yesterday's hearing in the Interdepartmental Auditorium Stanley verified "flight progress strips" showing the B-25 completed its "fake" landing at 11:43 a. m.

Did Not See P-38

Another witness pointed out that all simulated landings were over runway 36, which runs north and south at an angle of 30 degrees across runway 3. Bridoux and the DC-4 were instructed to land on No. 3.

First Lieut. Ray H. Deem, jr., pilot of the B-25, emphatically stated he cleared the runway not later than 11:38 and probably nearer 11:33. He then headed south to Alexandria before returning to Bolling to land at 11:48 a. m., he said.

Deem and two other officers of Student Expelled For Part in Riot At Maryland U.

One of the University of Maryland students who participated in the Thursday night football rally riot was expelled yesterday as university officials moved to end any more outbursts.

Officials would not disclose the expelled student's name but said that other students face the same action if they are identified.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, said other pep rallies in the future will be under strict control to prevent any recurrences of Thursday night's melee, which caused damage to passing motorists and blocked traffic while a bonfire blazed in the middle of the Washington-Baltimore Highway at College Park. Truman Lays Wreath at Tomb To Honor Dead of World War I

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

President Truman laid a wreath of yellow chrysanthemums at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday to lead the Nation in honoring the dead of World War I.

A little later and a few steps away, the national commander of the American Legion was summoning sharp words to depict the specter of a possible World War III.

"The shadow over this tomb today and over our entire Nation is that of a suspended atomic bomb," Comdr. George N. Craig, Brazil, Ind., told an assemblage of 5000 in the Arlington Cemetery amphitheater.

It was a warm and lovely day, breaking an all-time heat record for Armistice Day, where down the slopes the autumn-leafed trees

Troubles Sending Nation to Bed To Escape Worst

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP).—International problems may have proved a boon to the bedding industry.

Philippines Prepare For Another Typhoon

Manila, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—The Philippines braced itself for a new typhoon expected to strike 70 miles north of Cebu City at 2 a. m. Saturday, less than two weeks after a disastrous typhoon struck the central part of the islands.

The Red Cross, announcing latest casualty figures of the November 2 storm, said 320 were known dead and 512 missing and presumed dead—a total of 832. It estimated that 418,147 persons lost their homes from partial or total destruction of 71,143 houses.

Court Establishes Difference Between Radio, TV Broadcasts

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 11 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled today a contract covering "broadcasting" rights does not necessarily cover television rights.

"We have been referred to no definition, and have found none, of 'broadcast' as meaning to transmit by television," the court said.

In a unanimous 6-0 opinion, the State's highest tribunal rejected a claim by the Century Athletic Club of Baltimore that it has the right to televise boxing bouts from the Baltimore Coliseum.

Under a 10-year contract with coliseum owners, expiring in 1951, the athletic club has "the privilege of broadcasting" weekly bouts.

"The privilege of broadcasting boxing bouts did not in 1941 or 1943 and does not now include television," Judge Charles Markell wrote for the court.

The decision may have some bearing on contract controversies involving stars who appear on both radio and television.

It is believed to be the first ruling in the country on the question.

The decision reversed a decree by Circuit Judge E. Paul Mason of Baltimore, who held that television "bears a very close scientific relation to radio" and is a form of broadcasting.

Markell said "televise" and "telecast" have been defined as meaning to broadcast by television.

He noted, however, that the Federal Communications Act, covering "radio communication," specifically includes "the transmission by radio . . . pictures and sounds of all kinds." It thus covers television. But this statutory definition does not apply to a private contract, Markell said.

U. S. Experts Scout Soviet Atom Claims

Soviet Challenged

U. S. CHALLENGES Soviet to tell the world what it was doing to share its claimed knowledge of peaceful uses of atomic energy, points to 30 countries now sharing U. S. benefits. Story on Page 2.

Bombs Can't Do Job

When Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky said on Thursday that the Russians are using atomic energy to raze mountains, irrigate deserts, and cut through the jungle and tundra, he was talking through his big fur-trimmed Cossack hat.

That, at least, is the opinion of Washington atomic scientists who were questioned yesterday about Vishinsky's statement before the U. N. General Assembly.

Some of the wondrous peaceful uses that the Foreign Minister claimed for Russia just are not the things an A-bomb can do; others are theoretically possible through the power that could be generated from atomic energy power plants.

But economic use of atomic power is from 10 to 20 years away in the United States. That the Russians, whose atomic progress is marked by the fact that they have exploded just one bomb, are already generating useful heat or electric energy from atom plants is "highly unlikely," according to local scientists.

Based on Tass Account

Vishinsky himself indicated on Thursday, after he had made his sensational speech, that he really did not have any firsthand information on the situation. He said he had based his remarks on a Tass (official Soviet news service) communique of September 25 saying the Russians were using atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

And his remarks themselves were almost a verbatim repetition of a story in the Nacht Express, a Soviet-licensed Berlin paper on November 5. It said atomic energy had been used to blow up mountains to reverse the course of two Siberian rivers.

Scientists here said that at best, Vishinsky was using the present tense to describe what conceivably might be done some several years in the future.

As for using an atomic bomb as a blasting device, atomic experts here thought the idea fairly silly. The bomb isn't an efficient instru-

McCloy Gets Indorsement Of Acheson

Frankfurt, Nov. 11 (NYHT).—Secretary of State Acheson today strongly indorsed the German policies of John J. McCloy in a surprising airport press conference.

Debarking from the plane that brought him from Paris, Acheson told reporters it will be "weeks or even months" before the decisions of the three foreign ministers in Paris last night become evident.

He said the conference was "completely harmonious and entirely successful, as our meetings always are."

McCloy Stands At Side

But the Secretary's remarks centered on his pointed indorsement of McCloy, United States High Commissioner in Germany, who was standing at his side.

McCloy had been criticized sharply, both officially and unofficially, and by the British in particular, for public statements on German policy which, in fact, led in part to the sudden calling of the Paris conference.

"The United States has its official spokesman in Germany, Mr. McCloy" Acheson said. "He has the confidence and support of the President of the United States and the Secretary of State. In Germany Mr. McCloy speaks with full authority for the United States."

Statement Seems Precise

If Acheson meant precisely what he said—and he was precise enough in the way he said it—his statement represents a governmental indorsement of McCloy's public utterances on the Ruhr and other German questions.

It would mean the United States favors widening the Ruhr authority to make it a sort of planning body for Western European heavy industry and that the United States favors a complete review of the dismantling, reparations, security and level-of-industry questions.

Main Parley Contention On Plant Removal Issue

Paris, Nov. 11 (NYHT).—The issue of dismantling of German factories was the main object of contention at the Big Three conference of foreign ministers, diplomatic sources said today.

The extraordinary cabinet meeting with which the French Government interrupted yesterday's sessions was ascribed to fears that Foreign Minister Robert Schuman was being tempted to concede too much in the direction of a suspension of dismantling. Schuman sat in on the cabinet meeting before returning to the night session with Secretary of State Dean Acheson and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Details of the decisions reached are still closely guarded.

An informed guess is that Schuman did have to make considerable concessions on the dismantling issue, but that the program will not be terminated abruptly. The fate of the August Thyssen steel works at Hamburg, with a capacity of 2,400,000 tons, is still a matter for conjecture.

Possibly a formula has been found to return to the Germans responsibility in the field of for-

Warns Beliefs Are Attacked

Truman Calls for Rights Law As Duty Under Constitution

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called for passage of anti-discrimination legislation as an obligation under the United States Constitution and warned that American beliefs and hope of a better world are under attack.

He spoke before a meeting of the National Conference of Christians and Jews that packed the Mayflower's grand ballroom. Guests gave the President a minute's standing ovation before he began his speech.

In his renewed call for civil rights legislation, President Truman declared, "In view of the fundamental faith of this country and the clear language of our Constitution, I do not see how we can do otherwise" than pass legislation to protect the rights of all citizens, to assure their equal participation in national life, and to reduce discrimination based upon prejudice . . .

"If we look at ourselves in the true spirit of brotherhood," Mr. Truman said, "we must acknowledge that in the United States there are instances of discrimination and injustice because of difference in color, religion or national origin. But we are working diligently to overcome these violations of the fundamental faith which holds us together.

"It is encouraging to see that Americans all over the country are growing more and more aware of the importance of this problem."

On a somber note, but without mentioning the Soviet bloc by name, President Truman declared that "in various parts of the world today, human rights and freedom are being deliberately violated and suppressed. Men and women are being systematically persecuted for their religious beliefs. Campaigns are being waged to turn religion into a tool of the state.

"These things," he declared, "are not only morally wrong—they threaten to undo the slow and hard-won achievements of civilization. They represent a new barbarism, more terrible than that of ancient times. These are the acts of men who conceive of other men as slaves, not as brothers."

Departing from his prepared text, President Truman then fervently said, "My friends, I'm doing everything of which I am capable of organize the moral forces in this world to meet this situation. I'm trying to get all those people who look up and know there is a greater power to meet those who look down and are strictly materialistic. That's what we are up against."

"The defense of mankind against these attacks," he said, "lies in the faith we profess—the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God. Men and women who have this faith will refuse to bow to force. They will refuse to worship the power of the state. They will refuse to set their own nation or their own group above criticism. For they understand that above all these works of men there is the eternal standard of God by which we shall all be judged.

"It is only the people of religious faith throughout the world who have the power to overcome the force of tyranny. It is in their beliefs that the path can be found to justice and freedom. Their religious concepts are the only sure foundation of the democratic ideal.

"To them, therefore, we must extend the hand of brotherhood. This is a task for all men of good will, working together everywhere. There can be no higher challenge than to build a world of freedom and justice, a world in which all men are brothers. That

124,000 Still Idle In Smaller Firms Likely to Agree On Terms Soon

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11 (AP).—U. S. Steel Corp. and CIO Steelworkers made peace this Armistice Day, ending America's most costly steel strike.

Big Steel, the Nation's No. 1 producer employing 150,000, agreed to the Bethlehem company insurance-pension formula that cracked the crippling strike.

Union President Philip Murray said the strike settlement is effective at midnight. United States Steel announced its mills will be making steel again by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Five smaller firms with a payroll of 35,000 settled on the same terms during the day. They are Inland Steel, 14,000; Colorado Fuel and Iron, 15,000; Worth Steel, Wilmington, Del., 1100; Follansbee (W. Va.) Steel, 1200; Pickens-Mather, Duluth, Minn., 3700.

Allegheny Ludlum, 12,500, also is near agreement.

United States Steel and the others making Armistice Day settlements brought to 375,000 the number of workers covered by contracts signed since the start of the 42-day strike.

Nearly 124,000 still are idle but are employed in small concerns now expected to come into the fold quickly.

Settlement by all the top steelmakers—United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones & Laughlin—puts production back to near normal.

The Big Steel agreement was signed by Murray and John A. Stephens, vice president of the corporation.

Announcing end of the strike, Murray said:

"The agreement embodies in substance all the benefits set forth in the contracts effectuated with the other companies."

Last May the union announced it was seeking a 30-cent-an-hour package, to be split this way: 12½ cents for an hourly wage increase, 11.23 cents for a company-paid

Lewis Dares Truman to Use T-H Provision

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis yesterday undertook to put President Truman on the spot.

The boss of the Nation's miners in effect dared the Chief Executive to apply the 80-day strike-injunction provision of the Taft-Hartley Act to prevent another coal walkout at the end of the month.

Lewis, who rejected a Federal mediation meeting Thursday, yesterday rejected in advance creation of a fact-finding committee to investigate and recommend a basis of settlement for the coal dispute.

The United Mine Workers' president did offer, coyly, to meet with Federal mediators next week, but added he wasn't asking for such a meeting. He offered to meet with the operators, too, but spokesmen for the industry insisted Lewis would have to make the first move to revive the collapsed negotiations over a new contract.

Several Government labor officials are convinced that Lewis, a loud and avowed opponent of the Taft-Hartley Act, is deliberately prodding President Truman, who also hates the statute, to apply it against the miners.

Application of the act, these offi-

Ballerinas Count on Chicago In a Tight Tights Situation

Sadler's Wells Troupe Down to Last Pair; Blue-Stocking Philadelphians No Help in Crisis

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Ballerinas of the Sadler's Wells troupe are counting on Chicago as their last hope for getting out of a quite literally tight situation.

They are just about down to their last pair of tights, it was learned yesterday. And dancing in a ballet without tights is almost as unthinkable as dancing in a burlesque show with tights.

They tried to buy them in New York, but found them too expensive for the ration of dollars allowed them under British exchange regulations. While they were in Washington, earlier this week, they did not have time, and besides, Washington is scarcely a great tight-purveying city.

As for Philadelphia, where they went next. Tights on sale in Philadelphia? The very idea! And blue stockings are clearly no substitute.

This leaves Chicago, their last stop in the United States on the present tour. The problem is to find tights, and at a price the dancers can afford.

Their difficulty, it was learned, arises from the fact that they can't buy tights in England. The British Ministry for Tight Production, or whatever the agency is that controls such things, has shut down on the manufacture of such garments. Austerity.

The last time the Sadler's Wells company was in an area where tights could be had—Paris, of course—they stocked up. This was a process accompanied by considerable pain, since they were obliged to use up their limited foreign exchange for the purchases. That meant no perfume, no gloves, no presents for boy friends and dear old grandmothers.

But it's been a year or more since they were in Paris. And tights don't last forever.

Actually, what the ballerinas would like best are nylon tights. They last longer. Of course, they are so slippery that they don't give the dancing foot good purchase on the slipper. But that can be, and is, remedied by darning the soles of the tights with cotton thread.

For reasons that lie deep in the history of the ballet, only the girls have to pay for their tights. The men get theirs supplied by the company. It isn't just, but it's traditional.

Plans in Process, Johnson Says

Government to Be Relocated If Attack Threatens District

Plans are being drafted for decentralizing defense and other Government offices in the event Washington becomes the target of armed attack, Defense Secretary Johnson reported yesterday.

Johnson made the disclosure in a letter to Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), who has been an outspoken advocate of decentralization.

While Johnson indicated few details of the precautionary plans, it has been reported that Government planners are thinking in terms of a dispersion of Government agencies around Washington for a radius of perhaps 40 or 50 miles, rather than a far-flung, cross-country decentralization, in the event attack is threatened.

Johnson said the plans now in preparation contemplate possible movement of the seat of Government away from Washington if the attack threat looms. The plans include movement of the command of the Army, Navy and Air Force from Washington, Johnson said.

The secretary added that "certain definite steps" have been taken to guard against "the contingency of a destructive military attack at the seat of this Government." He did not disclose these steps.

"It appears to be obvious," John-

U. S. Taunts Soviet On A-Sharing Claim

By Peter Kihss

Lake Success, Nov. 11 (NYHT).—The United States challenged the Soviet Union today to tell the world what it was doing to share its claimed knowledge of peaceful uses of atomic energy. It pointed out that some 30 other countries already had joined with the United States in sharing peaceful, medical and scientific benefits of radioactive materials.

Assistant Secretary of State John D. Hickerson told the United Nations General Assembly Special Political Committee he wouldn't say whether Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's claims for Soviet mountain-moving by atomic energy were "nonsense or not," but he warned:

Backs U. N. Proposal

"If nations have devices in their possession which can level mountains, they also have in their possession devices which can level cities. If nations are permitted to own and control such power, no system of control or inspection can be more effective than the good faith, intentions and motives of the nations possessing such power.

"That is why the United Nations plan provides for an international cooperative to take over all such dangerous materials and facilities and to make sure that they are used for peaceful purposes only.

"Because nuclear fuel can be converted so easily and almost instantaneously into bombs, the proposal put forward by the Soviet Union would be fully ineffective as a means of control . . ."

U. S. Record Cited

The Soviet Union favors limited inspection by the U. N. of national cooperation of atomic activities.

"The United States has not overlooked or neglected the peaceful side of atomic energy, even though we have not attempted anything so spectacular as mountain-moving," Hickerson added.

"For example, for some time the United States Atomic Energy Commission has been distributing either free or at very low cost isotopes for medical and research purposes to any and all countries which desire them," he asserted.

Canadians Build Radar Defense Ring

Ottawa, Nov. 11 (AP).—Canada is building a huge radar system that would give warning against possible air attack on her big cities and other vital targets, a government White Paper revealed today.

The defense paper, outlining Canada's preparedness program, said the radar system is being developed to cover "certain vital approaches and areas."

Radar stations costing from between $2,500,000 and $3,500,000 each were planned, the paper said.

The paper said the fear of war between East and West had been moderated during the past 18 months, but said Canada was continuing a full-scale defense program. The nation's potential industrial capacity for war, it revealed, is twice that of 1939.

Heavy emphasis was being placed on air power, the paper said, with 75 million dollars worth of planes and parts ordered.

The paper submitted to the House of Commons by Defense Minister Brooke Claxton, said Canada's plans did not envisage a dense curtain of radar such as Britain and Germany had during the last war.

The paper disclosed that Canada is negotiating with the United States for modification of rights to Newfoundland bases granted the United States by Britain during the last war on a 99-year-lease basis. Newfoundland was then a British colony. It became Canada's tenth province this year.

Briton Shows First Portable Atomic Pile

Gerrards Cross, England, Nov. 11 (AP).—Robert Barker, 26-year-old British scientist, today showed newsmen a portable atomic pile, the size of a garbage can, which he said will produce as good radioactive isotopes as the British government's vast atomic piles at Harwell.

The isotopes are tracer elements, important in medical and other research.

A group of British scientists yesterday studied the invention, demonstrated in a sealed-off basement room. Barker said they expressed agreement the portable pile could be made to produce isotopes effectively and economically.

No American atomic experts have seen his development, Barker said. He extended an open invitation to any scientific team from the United States to examine it.

The machine is powered by uranium oxide. Barker said it was the result of three years of research by himself and other physicists at the A. S. P. Chemical Company, Ltd.

Maj. C. L. Walsh, chairman of the chemical company, said performance of the first experimental unit, completed two years ago, had justified construction of a commercial prototype model, which is now under test.

Experts from the ministry of supply, which bosses Britain's atomic energy research, issued a statement after studying Barker's machine. The statement quoted Sir John Cockcroft, head of the atomic research center as saying such small divices as Barger's will not produce radioactive isotopes "for practical use."

Experts Scout Atom Claims

ment for that purpose, they said.

An atomic bomb, they explained, is reported to have the power of 20,000 tons of TNT. But no one, wishing to move a pile of earth, would use 20,000 tons of TNT at one place. Such a blast cannot be directed. A wise use would be to detonate smaller amounts where you want them.

Big Bang or None at All

But an atom bomb, by the very nature of the nuclear reaction, cannot be made into a thousand, or even a hundred, smaller bombs or detonations. There is a critical size below which it will not explode. There is either one big bang, or no bang at all.

Furthermore, even if there were one duge obstacle, all in a chunk—say, between a present river bed and a lower, more desirable course on the other side of the hill—an atomic blast would not remove it. The blast would crack a great deal of rock, and blow a great deal of stuff up in the air. But it would all fall back in the same place. The problem of getting the obstacle out of the way would still remain.

Much better, than, to use ordinary explosives, at precise locations, to drive a cut or tunnel where you want it.

For "irrigating deserts" and "cutting through the jungle and the tundra," presumbaly power, not blast, would be needed. Power, in the form of heat or heat converted into electrical energy, can be derived from atomic reactions.

The United States, suing billions of dollars, and huge plants begun during the war and developed ever since, is working on the problem. Huge amounts of uranium, over and above that being devoted to atomic weapons, are required. The Atomic Energy Commission scientists do not expect results that would come close to competing with steam or hydroelectric power—in cost or quantity—for a decade or more.

That Russia has accomplished it in the period between the explosion of the first bomb a few weeks before September 23 and now does not seem, to say the least, probably.

Pact Nations Show Speed In Coordinating Defenses

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Military leaders of the Atlantic Pact countries were reported yesterday to be making rapid headway toward combining the defenses of the North Atlantic area.

By December 1, according to present expectations, each country that signed the treaty should know just what part it will play in building up North Atlantic defenses and in resisting a possible Soviet attack.

The United States, for example, will be made responsible for strategic bombing and, with the British and Canadians, for maintaining Atlantic sea lanes. The French would have the primary responsibility for ground defenses; the British for fast fighter protection and for naval defenses in the narrow seas.

There is no thought in present plannnig of providing American ground troops for European defense, since the United States already has almost 100,000 troops on occupation duty in Germany, Austria and Trieste.

For 8 of the 12 countries that signed the pact, the quick integration of defense policy is a matter of immediate importance. These eight are the countries that will receive American arms and other military help under the Mutual Defense Assistance Act, passed by Congress September 28.

The act provided that 900 million out of the billion dollars appropriated for these countries would not be made available until President Truman had approved "recommendations for an integrated defense" of the North Atlantic area.

A conference committee of the two houses defined this as meaning an agreement on the role each country would play in the common defense.

"No one nation in the group," the committee said, "must aspire to perpetuae or expand its various military components for purely national considerations. Each must recognize its obligation to balance its forces in relation to the needs of the whole area in which common defense has been pledged."

So far, according to an informed source, the military planners have carried out this injunction to the letter. Not once since the joint planning began has any of the pact countries objected to any assigned duty on grounds of national prestige or honor.

The joint planning has been done under the supervision of the three-man "standing group" of Gen. Omar Bradley for the United States, Gen. Paul Ely for France and Lieut. Gen. Sir William Morgan for Britain.

Their agreement will have to be submitted to the defense ministers and foreign ministers of the pact countries, or their representatives, before Defense Secretary Johnson can take it to the President for approval.

The first supplies under the military aid program are not expected to move to Europe until January, although some American Army equipment already is being reconditioned for shipment abroad.

There was some talk in recent weeks of sending the first supplies by an American airlift, which would dramatize our policy of bolstering Western European defenses. This idea has been abandoned reluctantly, largely because of its cost.

A four-engine plane costs about $130 to keep in the air for one hour. The tonnages involved in air shipment of military supplies would be far greater than in the Berlin airlift and would add too much to the cost of the program.

eign trade, and to permit them to establish consulates.

Another decision taken by the ministers is understood to be approval of the admission of Western Germany and the Saar district to the Council of Europe.

The French press apparently considered the reported decisions as a capitulation by France to the United States and Britain.

Britain, France and the United States have agreed—for the time being at least—to limit German steel production to 11,500,000 tons annually, French sources told the Associated Press today.

[German steel men had asked for a ceiling of 14,800,000 tons. American officials in Germany had agreed there should be a higher ceiling—perhaps 13 million tons. [The French steadfastly opposed the increase. The 11,500,000 ceiling would indicate the French won a victory in the conference.]

Czechs Close West Border Night Traffic

Prague, Nov. 11 (AP).—Czechoslovakia has sealed her western borders against all traffic by night except international trains, a reliable source reported today.

These are the borders with western Germany and Austria, across which many Czechs have fled into exile.

The informant, who may not be identified by name, said the order closing the borders was relayed by the foreign ministry to western diplomats in a letter dated November 2. It did not give the reasons for the action.

The curfew was reported in effect from 5 p. m. to 6 a. m.

"The only thing that will be able to cross the frontiers between these hours will be international trains," the source said.

Western observers speculated the action was a preliminary move to control rigidly the movement of foreigners across the borders.

Foreign travel by Czech Nationals has been virtually banned since November 1.

McCoy Quits As Delegate to Far East Unit

President Truman yesterday relieved Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy as U. S. representative in the Far Eastern Commission. He said he made the shift, effective November 30, with "great reluctance."

The President announced that Maxwell M. Hamilton, foreign service career officer, will succeed McCoy.

Now a career minister, Hamilton will have the rank of ambassador.

The Far Eastern Commission is an 11-nation policy-making group for Japan.

McCoy tried to resign last December, but was persuaded to remain on. He is a retired major general.

The President wrote General McCoy:

"I am well aware of your invaluable contribution to the commission and of the debt owed to you by this Government for the concrete accomplishments which have been achieved in the commission through your leadership."

McCoy told reporters he resigned so he could devote his time to his private affairs. He said that when he was asked to take the job four years ago it was thought a treaty with Japan would be made the following year.

"With that objective still unaccomplished," he added, "I have regretfully concluded that four years is long enough for me to carry on that temporary duty."

McCoy's home is in Washington.

Yugoslav U. N. Delegate Tells Of Red Troops in Satellites

Lake Success, Nov. 11 (AP).—A Yugoslav delegate today was prevented by a technicality from telling a United Nations committee about what he described as Russian troop movements in Soviet satellites bordering his country, but his story emerged anyway.

Vladmir Dedijer released to newsmen the portion of his speech he was not allowed to make.

"I am glad that the Soviet Delegate A. S. Panyushkin, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, was obliged to deny the fact of the concentration of Soviet troops on the borders of Yugoslavia. Thus, he admitted that the presence of Soviet troops on the borders of Yugoslavia represents an act of pressure and a threat against Yugoslavia.

"Soviet troops began large concentrations in the direction of Yugoslavia in the month of August. The denial has arrived, at last, after a delay of three months.

"Why was this long silence necessary? It was necessary because the movement of troops, the diplomatic notes (between Moscow and the Tito government) having the character of ultimatums . . . were only part of the cold war for the overthrow of the legal government of Yugoslavia . . ."

Tito Seeks Radio Step-Up For 'Cold War' Broadcasts

Belgrade, Nov. 11 (NYHT). — Premier Marshal Tito's regime is seeking to buy radio broadcasting equipment in the United States, it was learned today.

The equipment would increase the power of Yugoslavia's radio stations to beam anti-Cominform propaganda into the Soviet bloc.

Meanwhile, Tito declared that Yugoslavia is "not alone" in the Communist world. This marks the second time this week he has stated that his government is gaining strength among Communists in the East and West in its struggle against Moscow.

Only 2 U. S. Pilots to Fly Reds

Hongkong, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—American employes of two Chinese airlines which went over to the Communists today denied they had decided to fly for the Communists.

E. M. Allison, vice president of China National Aviation Corp. (CNAC), said yesterday that 45 Americans—including 37 in Hongkong and eight already in Red China—had decided to fly for the Reds.

Today most American pilots and ground personnel of CNAC and the Central Air Transport Corp. (CATC) said the statement did not represent the majority view.

The CATC Pilots Association announced that 20 pilots, 18 of them Americans, resigned rather than fly for the Communists. Formal statement said two other American CATC pilots planned to fly for the Reds and that a Briton had not yet decided.

Mrs. Hadley, Veep's Bride-to-Be, Resting

St. Louis, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, bride-to-be of Vice President Alben W. Barkley, rested at home today after leaving a hospital where she was treated for flu and fatigue.

With the wedding only a week away, the 38-year-old widow is receiving wedding gifts from friends and well-wishers all over the country.

Canada Envoy to Washington Gets Aide for Money Talks

Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong now has a deputy who will represent him in the continuing three-cornered economic talks with Britain and the United States.

The deputy is W. D. Matthews, at present Counsellor of the Embassy here and formerly assistant undersecretary for external affairs. In his new post he will have the rank of Minister.

The British have already appointed Sir Leslie Rowan, second secretary of the Treasury, who is expected to join the Embassy staff here soon, and with a minister's rank. The American member of the group will be Harry P. Labouisse of the State Department, acting for Secretary Acheson.

Although nothing like a formal organization will be set up, these three men will constitute an informal combined staff for working out economic problems of special concern to the three countries.

"Continuing consultation" among the three governments was promised in the so-called dollar talks of the cabinet ministers who met here in September. The ministers agreed that this consultation would supplement "the usual channel of communication between governments," meaning that it would be carried on in face-to-face discussions.

Officials of the three countries expect that their combined work on such problems as oil, shipping, sterling balances, and customs regulations may continue for as long as 18 months. The chief object of the talks is to help the British close the dollar gap which brought the cabinet ministers to Washington for emergency meetings two months ago.

Powerful Military Urged for Nation

By The Associated Press

While Americans paid their respects Friday to the dead of two World Wars, the Nation's military leaders counseled full preparedness against a third.

Top officials of the Department of Defense sounded the preparedness note in speeches throughout the country.

"Weakness breeds war, . . . strength commands respect and discourages war," Secretary of Defense Johnson asserted in a speech at St. Louis.

Secretary of Air Symington laid heavy emphasis on the waste of war, in human lives and natural resources. World War II, he said, caused more than a million American casualties, in dead and wounded. The two world conflicts, he added, used up such national resources as coal and iron and oil and timber at an alarming rate.

"It doesn't take a military or political expert to see that those facts and figures mean that we must do everything in our power to prevent recurrence of those international disasters called 'world wars,'" he said in a speech at Welch, W. Va.

Gray Cites Cost

Gordon Gray, Secretary of the Army, told a Greenville, N. C., audience that the monetary cost of World War II may eventually run to more than 1 trillion dollars.

That's about $6700 apiece for each American now living.

Gray counseled, however, that the United States keep its military establishment at a high level of excellence. To do so, he said, might discourage another war, or insure victory if an aggressor struck.

He asked that the draft act be kept on the statute books and that universal military training be inaugurated.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, speaking at Birmingham, Ala., warned however, that "we must not be lulled into a vicarious concept of 'dollar defense,' in which we feel it is only necessary to spend dollars properly and the security of our nation is assured." The dollar, "push-button warfare," atomic superiority and industrial inventiveness, he said, are less important weapons to American refense than faith in the American way of living.

Sharp Words

Lieut. Gen. Robt. L. Eichelberger, former commander of the 8th Army in the Pacific campaign and now a civilian consultant for the Army Department, had some sharp words for the Soviet Union's Far Eastern policies.

Speaking at Cleveland, Eichelberger discussed "our late friend, Russia" and said Japan would be a "great prize" to the Communists.

"Japan is the industrial powerhouse of the Far East with a know-how and industrial potential that lacks only raw material," Eichelberger asserted.

"If linked by the Reds to the raw materials of the Asiatic mainland, it would signify our prospective defeat in the Pacific in any future war which might be forced upon us. That is why I consider Japan as the key to the entire Far Eastern situation."

In Paris for a foreign ministers meeting, Secretary of State Acheson placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at the Arc de Triomphe.

New Diplomat's Hat for Calling

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. EUGENIA ANDERSON wore this felt hat, topped with ostrich tips, when she called on President Harry S. Truman at the White House. The Minnesota woman, recently named Ambassador to Denmark, told Mr. Truman she was taking her family with her to Denmark

Danes Plan Welcome for Mrs. Anderson

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Eugenie Anderson of Red Wing, Minn., will receive a regal welcome when she arrives here next month to take over her new duties as United States Ambassador to Denmark.

The day after she gets here, Mrs. Anderson will be received by King Frederik at Christiansborg Castle, when she hands in her credentials. Then she will have a private audience with Queen Ingrid.

Mrs. Anderson will be driven from her residence to the palace and back in a royal coach replete with liveried coachman and footman. The Lord Chamberlain will accompany her in the coach.

The Diplomatic Corps has been puzzling over what title to bestow on Mrs. Anderson. As she is the first woman ambassador to this country, the problem is a new one.

At first it was decided to use French terminology and call her "Madame Ambassadrice." The foreign ministry was informed, however, that the King and Queen would prefer that the title be in English.

So, according to latest reports, Mrs. Anderson will be "Mrs. Ambassador" to the Danish court, the Foreign Ministry and the American Embassy.

Under Danish protocol, Mrs. Anderson probably will be ranked as the country's second lady after Queen Ingrid. During official banquets she will sit at the King's left.

Mrs. Anderson's official residence will be at Rydhave, a large villa about five miles from the heart of Copenhagen.

British Trade Board Head to Visit Here

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, plans to leave for Washington Thursday to attend a meeting of the food and agricultural organization of the United Nations. The Board of Trade said Wilson also will try "to gain a firsthand impression of the market conditions in the United States of America for British exports."

Crommelin Says Democracy Is No Place for 'Yes-Men'

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 11. (AP)—The Navy's still burning firebrand, Capt. John. G. Crommelin, stressed today that it is a patriotic duty to keep an eye on how the armed forces are organized and admisistered.

Crommelin, born here 47 years ago, addressed an Armistice Day meeting.

It was the first speech by the outspoken critic of Pentagon policies since he was restored to duty Tuesday after his 33-day suspension and reprimand for releasing to newsmen documents the Navy styled "confidential."

These documents disclosed that several high-ranking admirals agreed with him in fears the Navy was being stifled in the Pentagon.

On this day of tribute to men who lost their lives in World War I, he said:

"For us, the living, every American man and woman, it is a patriotic duty to keep informed and interested in the organization and administration of the armed forces so necessary to our security.

"You must not share and you cannot delegate this responsibility to anyone.

"In every instance of basic disagreement in the administration of the affairs of state you, the people, are the court of last resort."

Crommelin had accepted the invitation to speak before he was suspended. After he was restored to duty—he is to be transferred to San Franciscoh—he was granted leave to fill the engagement.

Admiral Forrest Sherman, who replaced Admiral Louis Denfeld as Chief of Naval Operations—one aftermath of the uproar Crommelin stirred up—said in granting leave that Crommelin, "like any other Navy officer, would be responsible for what he says."

Crommelin's last act before flying down from Washington was to leave a copy of his speech in Sherman's office.

In reprimanding him, Sherman told Crommelin he showed disregard for naval authority. Crommelin didn't mention this, but he said:

"In my opinion we in America live and work under a highly intelligent democratic code which does not confuse lip service with discipline as do all totalitarian states.

"There is no place in this democracy of ours for a 'yes-man,'" said Crommelin.

Truman Lays Wreath at Tomb To Honor Dead of World War I

guarded the graves of tens of thousands of the dead of many American wars.

It was a day off for many, Government employes and others, and a day out of school for the children. Department stores were open and did a bursting business with both of these groups. Many of the younger element paid their first visit to Santa Claus, who put in a hard day's labor and behind his beard longed for snow in Washington.

Banks closed. Special holiday dances were held. Many people left town for the three-day weekend—and a good many visitors came to see the Capital sights.

And in memorial service, speech-making and wreath-laying, the dead of the war to end wars were honored in a time and an air of uncertain peace.

The plangent tones of a 21-gun salute announced President Truman's arrival in the cemetery. At 10:59 a. m., he stepped from a black limousine and strode briskly up to a position directly in front of the white-marble Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. He was wearing a black overcoat, black hat, gray suit and gray gloves.

For one minute, from 11 to 11:01a. m. the President stood in solemn and uncovered silence. It was an observance repeated throughout the Nation. In newspaper offices the clattering wires of the Associated Press stopped for one minute.

Then at exactly 11:01, the President stepped forward and placed the giant wreath of yellow flowers at the tomb. The wreath bore a white card—"The President."

The President stepped back, there was a roll of drums and a bugler standing three paces obliquely from him sounded Taps.

The President walked back to his car and was driven away.

Just beyond, a crowd that overflowed the flag-draped amphitheater listened to martial music by the United States Army Band, saw the colors advanced and heard Commander Craig bespeak the "tragic overtone to this solemn ceremony here today."

"For the first time," Craig asserted, "we are observing this sacred anniversary within a dark shadow."

In an apparent reference to the announcement of an atomic explosion in Russia, he spoke then of "a suspended atomic bomb" over this Nation.

"Today," he said, "we find ourselves in the shadow of atomic destruction."

In ringing tones he declared that Pearl Harbor came about because "we took the arms out of armistice." Urging preparedness this time, he averred that "our will for peace must have a compelling punch behind it."

He outlined these measures:

"Our first need is a completely unified armed force . . . The determination of scientific weapons to be used in any future war is a decision that should be left to our military experts . . . There is only one sound foundation on which we can build an adequate modern defense establishment in keeping with the perils of the times—national security training for our youth . . . The demands of this hour cannot be met by armed force alone. We need just as desperately to replenish our spiritual force. We need muscular Christianity."

Other addresses were made by Owen C. Holleran, chairman of the National Armistice Day Committee of the American Legion, and Mrs. Norman L. Sheehe, Rockport, Ill., national president of the Legion Auxiliary.

In addition to the President's, wreaths were placed on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by the Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other organizations and by French Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

Court Sentences 17 for Contempt

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP). Seventeen men were convicted today on charges of contempt of court resulting from a mass parade of about 500 unionists through the Bell Aircraft Corp. plant during a recent strike.

Shortly after a State Supreme Court jury returned the verdict, Justice William H. Munson sentenced all but three to the maximum penalty of 30 days in jail and $250 fine. The three received the fines but no jail sentences.

Identical penalties were given 21 unionists convicted two weeks ago on similar charges resulting from alleged disorders in connection with the strike.

Liberals Defy State of Siege In Colombia

Bogota, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—The Liberal majority in the Colombian Congress today defied Conservative President Mariano Ospina Perez's order dissolving both houses.

The action was a major challenge to Ospina's all-inclusive powers under the state of siege he declared two days ago.

After a secret session attended by the delegations from all of Colombia's 15 States, the Liberals issued a statement that said in part:

'Can Be Stopped Only By Force'

"Congress will continue in the exercise of its parliamentary functions and assume all powers given it by the constitution. It can be stopped only by force."

The government has power to act against the Liberals in view of the suspension of the constitutional right of assembly, but thus far no retaliatory measures have been taken.

"By failing to recognize the constitution and assuming dictatorship, the government has placed itself outside the constitution and its authority is not recognized by the people."

Capital Reported Calm

[The Associated Press said military courts took over much of Colombia's judicial authority today. A government decree gives military courts broad powers to investigate cases of "subversive activity" against the state of siege and to try offenses against public security.

[Bogota remained calm, and so did most of the rest of the country, although there were unconfirmed reports from the interior of clashes between Liberals and Conservatives.]

Laurel Seeks Vote Data in Philippines

Manila, Nov. 11 (AP).—Evidently defeated in his bid for the Philippines presidency, Jose P. Laurel said today he was considering retirement from politics. But first, he said, "I want to find out what actually happened in this election."

The slow tally of returns from Tuesday's election gave President Elpidio Quirino an unofficial lead of more than 390,000. The unofficial count at 11 p. m. was Quirino 1,715,251; Laurel 1,324,479, and Jose Avelino, third party candidate 353,774.

The official count continued to lag far behind, but the trend was identical. A total vote of about four million is believed to have been cast.

Laurel's Nacionalista Party is protesting the vote in four provinces, but it seemed unlikely the victory of Quirino and his Liberal Party slate would be upset. Liberals were leading in seven of the eight senatorial races; Nacionalista appeared assured of only 20 of the 98 House seats.

Tusk Reaches Argentia 3 Days After Collision

The submarine Tusk which was involved in a collision with the supply ship USS Aldebaran during North Atlantic maneuvers three days ago has arrived safely at Argentia, Newfoundland, the Navy announced last night.

Examination of the Tusk at Argentia showed the damage was "of such a slight nature" the submarine would have remained on duty under actual wartime conditions.

The damage, it said, was confined to the upper section of the submarine's sail plating and its number two periscope attachment.

D. C. Attack Will Move Capital

son said, "that in order for the Nation to be able to develop its full war potential—in event of war—there must be located at the seat of Government certain activities, both military and civil, to provide the collaboration, cooperation, and promptness of action necessary to the efficient use of that potential.

"Recognizing the fact that it is not beyond the bounds of possibility for Washington to be the target of a devastating or damaging attack, and that the seat of Government might have to be moved as a result, it follows that plans should be prepared to cover this contingency. Such plans are in the course of preparation.

"Specifically, these plans include the movement of the three service elements of the Department of Defense to other locations and the designation of successors to military command."

Johnson made these added comments:

"It is important also that some decentralization or dispersal of military activities take place prior to and in anticipation of possible devastating military attack on Washington.

"This, of course, is a major administrative problem, particularly in view of the impact of such dispersal on other Federal agencies which would be involved in a war effort.

"The preliminary studies on this matter are well under way and planning is proceeding actively."

Johnson said the problem of decentralization of the military has been under "continuous" study by the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the last year and a half.

The Government has evacuated Washington only once, when the British invaded during the War of 1812.

Two Gaming Case Convictions Upheld

Convictions a year ago of two Silver Spring men on gambling charges were upheld yesterday by the Maryland Court of Appeals, at Annapolis.

The two are Robert Lee Hunter, then of 8708 Colesville rd., co-owner of a tavern, and Wyndol O. Colie, now of 11702 Judson rd., Wheaton, a barber. Hunter was convicted of paying off on a pinball machine and taking a race horse bet, and Colie of taking a horse bet.

Both men in their appeals attacked testimony of former Police Pvt. Robert Popcke of Montgomery County, who obtained the principal evidence on which they were convicted.

Popcke, a former captain in Army intelligence, was secretly sworn in as a policeman and worked for two months obtaining evidence on alleged gamblers.

The Court of Appeals upheld admission of his testimony at the trials in Montgomery County Circuit Court. Popcke has since left the Police Department and returned to the Army.

The two appellants were captured in a series of gambling raids on November 6, 1948.

Colie was sentenced to six months in jail and a $750 fine. Hunter drew the same sentence on each of the two charges, but one fine was suspended and the two jail terms were made concurrent.

'Don't Be Afraid'

Come Home, Parents Beg Missing Girl

The parents of 13-year-old Lucille Garey, missing from her home since October 30, have appealed through the newspapers for their daughter to come home.

"Tell her not to be afraid or ashamed. There will be no punishment. All we ask is that she come back home. Then everything will be all right," her mother, Mrs Thomas F. Garey, of 1925 Park rd. nw., told The Washington Post yesterday.

She said several youngsters, who know Lucille, have reported they thought they had seen her in Washington.

Lucille, a student of Alice Deal Junior High School, left home about 4:30 p. m. to visit a friend a few blocks away. Her family has heard nothing from her since then.

Her father, a civil engineer with the Department of Defense, flew home from Tokyo to help the search. He has offered a $1000 reward for information leading to her return.

Her mother stressed yesterday she should not fear police action if she returns.

Boy, 2, Escapes Crash; Parents, 2 Others Killed

St. Clairsville, Ohio, Nov. 11 (U.P.). Two-year-old Mike Kingham was an orphan today—the only survivor of an automobile accident that killed his mother and father, an uncle and an aunt.

The child, far from his home in Berger, Tex., was found by highway patrolmen last night near Hendrysburg, Ohio. He was crying, but he had nothing worse than a body bruise.

Around him were mangled bodies of his 26-year-old parents, Herbert and Ann Betts Kingham, Kenneth Betts, 27, Berger, Tex., and Mrs. Wanda Ellis, Shawnee, Okla. Betts and Mrs. Ellis were brother and sister to Mike's mother.

All five occupants of the Texas car were thrown from the auto when it tried to pass and smashed into the rear of the car ahead, rolled over, and then struck a third car.

"The bodies were so mutilated by the terrific impact of the crash that passing motorists screamed at the horror of the sight," police said.

Drivers of the other two cars were unhurt.

9 Cotton Pickers Killed, 11 Hurt in Truck Crash

Gila Bend, Ariz., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Heroic action by a nurse and a Navy pharmacist's mate were credited today with keeping down the death tole when a truck loaded with cotton pickers swerved into another truck, killing nine of its occupants.

Eleven other cotton pickers either were critically or seriously injured last night.

Oh Deer Me! Berserk Buck Runs Amuck

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 11 (AP).—Mrs. George Jobins sat in her living room today when—crash! A six-point deer shattered the window glass and bounded over her head. It upset tables and lamps and then raced out the back door.

A few minutes later Mrs. Daniel Reynolds heard another crash. She ran into her living room to find the deer reposing on the sofa. At the sight of Mrs. Reynolds the animal was off again.

His next target was a candy factory. More shattered windows and nerves before the invader bounded out again.

Buck Killed Near Downtown Kansas City

Kansas City, Nov. 11 (AP).—A 200-pound buck deer was killed near Union Station, not far from the heart of downtown Kansas City, today.

The six-point animal, frightened by a switch engine, leaped 25 feet off a viaduct. Its back was broken.

How it got into the downtown area undetected was a mystery.

Famed Swindler Says 2 Schemers 'Duped' Him

Chicago, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Master Swindler Joseph (The Yellow Kid) Weil, 74, admitted today he was duped.

The internationally-known confidence man who once bragged he swindled rich men out of millions to give them "a lesson in honesty" also confessed he took $3 from a nuns' building fund.

He told police he was duped into entering the scheme by two men who hired him to help collect phony "donations" to the sisters' fund—but disappeared and left him to take the rap.

Hackett Gets 2 Suspended Jail Terms

John V. Hackett, disbarred Prince Georges County attorney, was given suspended prison terms of three years on each of two counts of larceny after trust in the county's Circuit Court yesterday.

Hackett, who formerly lived in Mount Rainier, had pleaded guilty to the charges last Monday.

Suspension of the prison terms, designated as concurrent, was announced by Judge Charles C. Marbury, who said the action had been considered by the "full bench" of the court.

He said he and the other judges were reluctant to suspend the prison terms because they felt that Hackett as a member of the bar should be dealt with more harshly than "someone who doesn't know as much about the ethics of law."

Hackett was disbarred by a three-judge court and then indicted by a grand jury on the complaint of two women clients who said he had misused nearly $4000 in funds they had entrusted to him. He did not contest either the disbarment proceedings or the criminal charges.

Prior to sentencing, the court was told Hackett has obtained a $75-a-week job in Massachusetts and is willing to make restitution to the clients who initiated the charges against him.

2 Sentences Herald Yule Shoplifting

The annual crackdown on Christmas season shoplifters began yesterday in Municipal Court.

Judge George D. Neilson gave a man and woman found guilty of doing their Christmas shoplifting early six months each in jail for it.

"This sort of business recurs each year with the coming of the holiday season, and it must be stopped," the judge said in imposing sentence.

The pair convicted are Thomas B. Washington, 40, and Mrs. Ruth C. Carroll, 35, both of 1304 6th st. nw. According to the charges, Mrs. Carroll took some $50 in garments from a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store at 4500 Wisconsin ave nw., and a Kresge's 5 and 10 cent store at 4533 Wisconsin ave. nw., and stuffed the loot into a shopping bag Washington held.

To protect shoppers and storekeepers during the Yuletide buying spree, police officials station some two dozen plainclothesmen in various stores. Also, details at streetcorners are enforced, both for traffic protection and to guard against package-grabbers on the sidewalks.

Slot 'Players' Hit the Jackpot, Land in Court

A one-armed bandit, wired for sound, brought two discomfited men into Municipal Court yesterday. Technically, at least, they aren't bandits, but they are under $2000 bond each for grand jury action on housebreaking charges.

The efficient one-armed bandit is a quarter slot machine at the noncommissioned officers' club at Walter Reed Hospital. There, such contrivances are legal.

Police said the machine had been looted repeatedly strictly by force, and about $1000 taken. So a buzzer alarm was attached.

When it sounded early yesterday, police said, they found Robert T. Minton, 44, and Joseph English, 35, of no fixed addresses, sitting on the floor in the club, sipping beer, and dividing a total of $79 in coins.

California Exhibition

Carl I. Wheat, attorney, historian and bibliographer of California, will give an address on the history of that State at 3:30 p. m. today in the Library of Congress's Coolidge Auditorium.

Wheat's address will open a major exhibition at the library in commemoration of the Gold Rush and the adoption of the first State constitution November 13, 1849.

'Strike' Settled

Girl Spanked; Faculty Gets Behind Man

Sharon, Pa., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—The Hickory Township School Board today lifted probation of a male teacher who paddled a pretty 17-year-old sophomore and faculty members agreed to resume extra-curricular activities.

The agreement ended the "strike" of 30 teachers who approved Walter McDonald's "irregular" method of maintaining order.

McDonald, a teacher for 16 years, was removed as senior-class adviser after he paddled Betty Ann Colapietro in a school corridor before several wide-eyed students.

He said she disregarded his orders to stop jumping up and down and be quiet. Whether McDonald used his bare hand or an object was kept secret by the board.

But Russell Path, a humane society official who inspected the spanked area while Betty Ann was wearing a bathing suit, classified the whipping as "severe." He said she had bruises and welts.

McDonald admitted he "made a mistake." When the board placed him on probation the faculty relinquished all direction over school plays, radio shows, assembly programs, publications, class dances and other outside activities.

One teacher said: "If he hadn't paddled her, one of the rest of us would have before the year was out."

House Party Here Leads To Gunplay

A sleepless night, caused by a college-boy party in the rooming house he owns, was too much yesterday for John Macaboy, 70-year-old commander of a Spanish-American War veterans' post.

Police said Macaboy had an argument about the party with his brother in law, Clyde M. Johnson, 60, and tried punctuating it with a revolver shot through a bedroom door of the house, the Club Embassy, 1321 K st. nw.

Macaboy, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, was released under $1000 bond for a Municipal Court hearing today.

Detectives said the party, attended by 200, was given by a young relative of Johnson's. Johnson, complainant against his brother-in-law, lives in the house.

About 11 a. m. yesterday, Johnson left the argument over the night's noise and went to his room. Police said Macaboy followed—after getting the gun, a pearl-handled souvenir of the Mexican Border dispute.

Detectives said Macaboy fired one shot through Johnson's door. The only damage was to the ceiling of the room.

Macaboy heads the Nelson A. Miles Camp, No. 1, of United Spanish War Veterans.

Montgomery Grand Jury Faces 70 Cases

The Montgomery County Grand Jury will convene on Monday with nearly 70 cases scheduled for consideration.

This is one of the largest number of cases to be presented to a county grand jury, and the largest submitted by State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson during his term of office, the county official said yesterday.

Most of the cases, Dawson said, are of a routine nature, although one manslaughter case and two of rape will be presented.

Accused of manslaughter is Mrs. Irene Nancy Douglass. The 39-year-old Washington Grove mother was held for jury action on September 29 in the death of her new-born infant which the State charged she smothered and caused to be buried in secrecy under the family home.

Held for the grand jury on a charge of raping a 28-year-old governess September 12 in a field near Georgetown Preparatory School are three servicemen. They are Marine Pfc. Robert A. Allen, 21, and a sailor, ABM 1/c1 Charles E. Boner, 24, then patients at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, and Marine Pfc. Jesse Wakefield, 24, stationed at the Naval Communications Center in Washington.

The other rape case involves Howard Martin, 18, accused of raping a 23-year-old neighbor near her Tobeytown home on September 1.

Other cases scheduled for consideration, Dawson said, include 4 assaults with intent to murder, 22 housebreaking and larcenies, 10 nonsupport cases, 15 of false pretense, 6 bastardy cases, 5 of perjury and 2 of unnatural acts.

One on the Aisle—

'Moment' Is Best Of Week's Grist

By Richard L. Coe

"THE RECKLESS MOMENT," at the Metropolitan, gets off center a bit too much to become the satisfying melodrama it might have been.

With Joan Bennett in the leading role, with a different sort of beginning and with realism of setting, the film has three decisive virtues. But the implausible enters just often enough to remind you it's only a movie.

Miss Bennett (in the photo finish with Marlene Dietrich as the world's yummiest granny) plays the mother of an 18-year-old girl, Geraldine Brooks, who is fond of the wrong man. The man suggests to Mother that she buy him off, a dastardly revelation the girl doesn't believe until she hears him say it herself in her own boathouse. She then conks him with a flashlight.

The next morning Mother finds the man on the beach with an anchor through his neck. We know that he toppled off the boathouse where he met Geraldine, but Mother realizes that for the body to be found on their property would point the finger of investigation at her daughter. She lugs him into a boat, dumps him in the public marshes.

A visitor calls, a pleasant Irishman played by James Mason. Knowing of the man's death, he wants $5000 for the daughter's love letters. Miss Benett puts him off. With Irish senitimentality, Mason falls for his victim, tries to protect her from his ruthless partner. Ultimately his fey gallantry saves the reputations involved.

Although the members of the family have a refreshingly conceived aspect, their interrelationship is not convincing. The mother Miss Bennett appears to be would surely have trusted her daughter, son and father-in-law more than she does. The husband is abroad on business and we never see him. One accepts the fact that no matter how well-heeled a family may seem, latching onto $5000 quickly isn't easy. Still, there would have been someone to help the sole victim of the blackmailers.

But for Mason, as the dawdling blackmailer, to fall in love with the honorable housewife and to cut his rates, so to speak, is a bit thick. Granted, it might have happened, but it's decidedly a cliche in a picture that began by avoiding such.

Miss Bennett, looking as striking as ever, is certainly the shelter magazines' idea of what the American Housewife should be. Her home is beautiful, well run, blessed with a gem of a servant. She has the same aplomb you'd like to imagine the Better Housewife would have on finding the dead body of her daughter's lover on the boathouse beach. Repressed she may be, Joan's still believable.

The naturalistic settings of both home and town (Balboa and Los Angeles) exert their proven pull to make you feel part of the picture. But the culminating unlikelihoods and Mason's dewy reformation keep this from being the icy study of panic it might have been. Still, it's the best of the week's crop of new ones.

"THE RECKLESS MOMENT." Columbia release produced by Walter Wanger. Screen play by Henry Garson and Robert W. Soderberg from an adaptation by Mel Dinelli and Robert E. Kent of Elisabeth Sanxay Holding's magazine story, "The Blank Wall." Photographed by Burnett Guffey. Music by Hans Salter. Directed by Max Opuls. At the Metropolitan.

Expelled UE Official Back In Pulaski

Pulaski, Va., Nov. 11—An international official of the leftist CIO union, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, who was driven out of town yesterday with two companions, returned here today.

He is Henry Rhine, who was a prominent labor figure in Washington 10 years ago as an official of the United Federal Workers Union when it was an AFL group and switched to the CIO.

The UE was expelled by the CIO at its convention last week because it was allegedly was too far left. Workers in the local here agreed to leave the UE international and join CIO's new International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Rhine and two other representatives of UE were escorted from their hotel last night by a sizable group of members of the local union here and placed aboard a train for Washington. There was no violence. The other two were identified as Frank Connelly and Gene Derickson.

Truman Gets Lewis Dare

cials point out, would take Lewis "off the hook." Lewis ordered his miners back to work Wednesday, after a 52-day thus-far-futile strike, but he set a three-week limit to the work order.

Lewis announced the back-to-work order was issued as "an act of faith" for the public convenience, but labor officials believe Lewis sent the men back to work to relieve their financial distress, at least temporarily.

Should Lewis force President Truman to apply the Taft-Hartley Act, the UMW chieftain would be in the happy position of having his men compelled by injunction to stay on the job—and draw pay—for 80 days, while Lewis himself could publicly attack Government interference.

Certain of the President's advisers have been urging him not to use the Taft-Hartley Act except as a measure of last resort."

Even though Lewis said yesterday he doubted that a nontechnical fact-finding board could throw any great amount of light on the coal dispute, some White House advisers believe the President should offer to set up a fact-finding board just as he did in the steel dispute.

Such an offer, it was pointed out, would put the President in the position of giving Lewis, for whom Mr. Truman has a Mutual dislike, the same kind of "break" he recently gave Philip Murray, head of the CIO Steelworkers.

It is believed also by some Government officials that Lewis, despite his public utterances to the contrary, might accept the fact-finding board if offered him publicly by the President.

Cyrus S. Ching, the chief Federal conciliator, indicated on Thursday—following the rebuff by Lewis—that the coal disputants were further apart than ever and that any new moves by him would be made only after close contact with the White House.

Ching has visited the White House in the past two days. He has kept mum on the visits, and a White House aide announced to newsmen yesterday that nothing, absolutely nothing, would be forthcoming from that sector over the weekend so far as the coal situation is concerned.

There is strong belief in informed quarters, however, that Truman will step into the coal picture by the end of next week.

That deadline would give the President just enough time to set up a board of inquiry—should he decide to use the Taft-Hartley Act—receive its report, and have the Attorney General obtain a strike injunction by November 30—the last scheduled day of the strike reprieve granted by Lewis.

In New York, Lewis disclosed yesterday he is there for conferences, but would no divulge with whom the talks were being held or what they were about. He declared:

"The mine workers are not quarry to be scourged back to their dungeons. They asked for fair treatment. They haven't received it.

"We've been negotiating off and on since last May with the operators. The conferences have been abortive. All this in the face of great prosperity on the part of the investing coal industry."

pension, and 6.27 cents for a company-financed insurance program. The industry flatly refused the demands.

After President Truman's steel fact-finding board made its recommendations September 10, which were not binding on anyone, the union accepted them as its demands. The board's report recommended against any wage increase, but urged industry and union to adopt a 10-cent-an-hour pension and insurance program to be paid for entirely by employers.

Six of the 10 cents would be used to pay for a free pension plan and the remaining 4 would go for social insurance covering death benefits, accident insurance and the like.

Beginning with the Bethlehem Steel Co. agreement October 31, the union insisted on that pact. It calls for $100 minimum monthly pensions, including social security, to be paid to workers aged 65 who have 25 years' service. Workers 65 with less service receive proportionately smaller pensions. The program is financed entirely by the company.

The pact provides that a 5-cent-an-hour social insurance program be established. Workers and company each contribute 2½ cents.

B-25 Crew Contradicts

the crew said their estimates of the time were based on computations checking back from this landing time.

None of them saw the P-38 during the flight, they testified.

'Awful Lot of Observing'

The B-25 pilot went into considerable detail to explain his departure from National and a flight of "about 10 miles to the south" before returning to Bolling.

He calculated his pass over Runway 36 was made about 15 minutes before the clocked landing, but said he allowed 5 minutes either way for error.

That would put the B-25 over National at 11:33, or at 11:38 at the very latest, he testified.

At no time did he see a P-38, he declared. "Both pilot and copilot were doing an awful lot of observing besides looking at instruments," he said.

Capt. Stephen R. Wheaton, copilot of the B-25, said the pass over National Airport "must have been close to 11:35 or 11:36 based on the fact that 11:48 was landing time."

Lieut. Col. James F. Brady, navigator-bombadier of the B-25, said he "personally observed" from his watch that the plane turned off the Bolling runway at 11:49 a. m., immediately after landing.

"We passed over National Airport on a simulated instrument landing at about 11:35 a. m.," Brady said. His watch was "20 seconds fast on take-off," he added.

Sergt. William S. Buckwalter, chief operator in the Bolling tower at the time, said 11:48 was the correct time of the crash, because he saw it just as he logged the B-25 in at Bolling.

"Our clocks are precise," he testified. "If they are two seconds off, we correct it."

Buckwalter added that Air Force logs on traffic also are accurate. Changes are not made by erasing, but by marking a line through the error with the operator's initials, he added.

New Statement Due

As for the disputed Lockheed plane, CAB member Harold A. Jones, a member of the panel, announced that the pilot of a Lockheed Lodestar logged in at National at 11:35 a. m. was sending a statement to be entered in the record.

"The pilot will say in a sworn statement that he landed approximately 10 minutes before the accident," Jones said.

"At the time he landed, a P-38 was on the field, either on the ramp 'running up' (warming up engines) or taxiing up to the runway," Jones said the pilot would testify. The pilot had telephoned from Buffalo, N. Y.

Jones added this comment on his own: "Of course, there might have been some other Lockheed. We don't know about that."

Tigner has testified that a Lodestar landed without radio communication just before Bridoux took off at 11:37 a. m. The National Airport record of flights verifies this.

Traffic Controller John G. Rydstrom said he was stationed in the "flight data" position at the National Airport Tower at the time.

He cleared a Navy plane at 11:42 a. m. and then saw the B-25 pass over the runway on its simulated landing, Rydstrom said.

It was earlier in the hearing that Supervisor Seltzer testified there may have been a block in reception between the tower and the P-38.

Panel Chairman Robert W. Chrisp asked if it were possible for Bridoux to depress his radio button to transmit to the tower and "block out reception" at the same time?

"Quite possible; yes, with normal operations," Seltzer replied.

Towerman Glenn Tigner has testified he called in desperation to Bridoux to "turn left" from his course a few seconds before the P-38 sheared the DC-4 in half.

Bridoux said he never received such an order, but heard a voice saying "clear to the left" three times. But the message was "not to me," Bridoux added.

Another witness testified yesterday that Bridoux had the "nose down" and was "diving the aircraft" as he made his approach to National Airport before the crash.

"I would definitely say it was steeper than normal descent," said Joseph C. Zacko, a National Airport traffic controller who saw the two planes collide.

Bridoux had testified that although he had trouble with his right engine, he was gliding down normally at about 500-600 feet a minute.

Conflict on Speed, Too

"I would say he was doing at least 150 miles per hour, or in excess of 150," Zacko estimated. Bridoux's testimony said he was doing 15 or 20 miles an hour less.

'I Have No Recollection'

Bridoux has testified he saw an airplane "touching the ground" in front of him as he made a final approach to Runway 3. He thought this was "No. 1" and that he was "No. 2" to land, according to instructions. He first saw the DC-4 when they collided, Bridoux said.

Zacko stoutly denied the presence of any other plane, saying "I have no recollection of any other aircraft when the P-38 was on final approach."

"Did you see a C-45 or a C-60 as Bridoux was on final approach?" was the question rephrased.

"I did not," Zacko replied.

He agreed with his fellow towermen the crash was at 11:46, because "the clock said 11:45 one minute before the crash."

"Excessively Steep"

Bridoux's descent to the runway was "excessively steep," according to Maj. Marshall McGovern, who said he saw the crash from the Bolling tower.

The DC-4, which he said was making a "normal approach," began "a climbing turn to the left" just before the two planes collided.

He judged the P-38 was flying at about 150 miles an hour at 1200 feet, while the DC-4 was at going about 120 at 500 feet when he looked up 30 seconds before the fatal plunge of both aircraft.

The fighter plane was coming down at a 40-45 degree angle, McGovern said.

W. C. Guthrie, a Capital Airlines pilot who was sitting in his plane near Hangar No. 3, testified that the DC-4, however, leveled off very slightly "if at all."

Bridoux Story Backed

Another witness upheld previous testimony that Bridoux had circled over Alexandria during his flight from the airport.

The witness was W. P. Snead, flight instructor at Hybla Valley Airport on U. S. 1. He could not place the exact time, but said he saw a P-38 around noon "going awful slow" in the vicinity of Alexandria on an east-northeast course.

"I couldn't tell whether both engines were running or not," Snead declared.

Wiliam E. Wade, another traffic controller on duty at National Airport when the planes crashed, testified he distinctly heard Tigner tell Bridoux to clear into the "traffic pattern" around the airport before coming in to land.

"I noted the exact message," Wade said. "Verbatim, it was: 'Bolivia 927 (the P-38 call signal), clear to the left traffic pattern, Runway 3, check downwind to the west of tower."

He is a part-time instructor, in radio voice procedure, Wade said, so he paid particular attention to Tigner's transmission.

"Tigner uses a very slightly unorthodox procedure," Wade added, but investigators did not pursue the point.

Out Of Hand

Boys will be boys, to be sure. But while being so, they really ought to be kept at home in their nurseries or confined to their college campuses. When they spill out over the public highway, as the adolescents at Maryland University did Thursday night, they become public nuisances. On this occasion, they became a good deal worse; they behaved like hoodlums, threatening and abusing passers-by, damaging property, holding up traffic between Washington and Baltimore for more than two hours.

Maryland State police had to resort to tear gas to quell the riot. They made no arrests. If there is any substance to the report that this was because the university is supposed to have immunity from police interference, that situation should be corrected by the Governor forthwith. This mob got off the campus, and its ringleaders at least should be sought and punished. If the University of Maryland wants to protect its students from the police, let it take care to protect the public from its students.

Buying Civilization

Oliver Wendell Holmes once chided his law clerk for beefing about the taxes he had to pay. "Do you like to pay taxes?" the young man asked incredulously. "Yes, I do, young feller," Justice Holmes replied. "With taxes I buy civilization."

This sage reply may well be remembered by every Washingtonian during the next two weeks; for it is not only taxes that buy civilization. The same is true of contributions to the Community Chest. We doubt that there is a handful of citizens in the entire city who would stand complacently by and see the humanitarian causes financed by the Chest abolished. The inescapable fact is that the city must have a wide assortment of welfare agencies, settlement houses, homes for the aged, and institutions devoted to nursing, counseling, social hygiene, character building, recreation, aid to the blind and so forth if it is going to be a decent place in which to live. We have long since passed the day when any modern community can be indifferent to the way in which its least fortunate members live or to the many cooperative endeavors that keep our society functioning smoothly.

To this must be added a second inescapable fact: that if these numerous community services which are essential to our self-respect are to continue, they must be paid for. That necessarily means that each individual should do his share. As the Rev. John Rustin said at a Community Chest luncheon the other day, "We cannot expect to live in a decent city without paying the price of citizenship." The choice that one really has to make when the Chest worker calls is whether he wishes to live in a city where minimum standards of civilized living are maintained or lapse into a more primitive state of society that is constantly haunted by the unnecessary wreckage of human lives.

Wallace's Chickens

Henry Wallace's chickens have begun to roost in more ways than one. As reporter John Ball chronicled in this newspaper recently, a new hybrid chicken developed by Mr. Wallace and his family promises to boost egg production by 25 to 50 percent and to lower materially the cost of producing top-grade poultry. The implications of this development, which is now being exploited commercially, are tremendous.

A good many Americans, as evidenced in the 1948 election, have a considerable skepticism about Mr. Wallace's hybrid activities in the field of politics. Here his affinity for queer birds can scarcely be said to have been in the public interest. Mr. Wallace is a man of many parts, however, and the rose-colored tint of his political naivete sometimes conceals the fact that he is a first-rate scientist. His experiments with hybrid corn a generation ago were primarily responsible for the immense increase in production on Iowa and other Midwestern farms—an increase that served the country and the world in good stead in time of need.

The same may well be true of the hybrid chicken. However, with eggs filling Government caves and still bringing outrageous prices, the tendency may be to look sourly on the new discovery as merely creating new problems of surpluses and imperiling the crop support program. This is a narrow view which misses the essential point. There is no surplus of food in terms of potential consumption if everyone had all he wanted. Any time that production costs can be lowered and more food can be made available at the same price, the public stands to benefit—provided that price supports are adjusted accordingly. The response to Mr. Wallace's chickens should not be one of negativism, but rather some hard thinking, quite as revolutionary as Mr. Wallace's own, as to how price supports can be related to production costs.

Chapman And Krug

President Truman's release of the interchange of notes with Secretary of the Interior Krug dispels the impression that Mr. Krug's resignation was presented and accepted uncordially. The feeling nevertheless remains that "Cap" Krug was eased out of his job, either because of differences with the President or because he finally fell victim to some of the malicious innuendoes that have been circulated about him.

The most apparent explanation, seemingly confirmed by the prompt appointment of Undersecretary Oscar Chapman as Mr. Krug's successor, is that the President at last decided to reward Mr. Chapman for his indefatigable labors during the 1948 campaign. Mr. Chapman was one of the small group that worked tirelessly and undauntedly for Mr. Truman's election. Secretary Krug was not a member of that Inner Circle. To say this, however, is not to say that Mr. Krug boycotted the campaign. On the contrary, he made many local speeches in the West, a part of the country where the Interior Department has won many friends.

Recently the President and Mr. Krug are known to have differed on several policy items, including the Navaho-Hopi Indian bill and certain reclamation proposals. Also, several of the President's advisers have kept up a running campaign against Mr. Krug. For his own part Mr. Krug had several reasons, apart from any policy differences, for quitting Government service. He is by no means affluent, and he is reported to have had several attractive offers from private business. On at least two occasions, moreover, doctors have warned him—a great worker—to slow down because of his health.

The fact is that the much-maligned "Cap" was a conscientious Secretary of the Interior. He was, of course, never popular with his predecessor, Mr. Ickes, but this reflected as much as anything a difference in personality. Mr. Ickes is vociferous and voluble; Mr. Krug is brusque and reserved. This characteristic in Mr. Krug hid from public appreciation a fine analytical mind and a great ability to come to the heart of a problem. He also had courage and conviction—demonstrated in his resistance to the power lobby, in his standing firmly behind Reclamation Commissioner Straus in the fight to retain the 160-acre limitation on reclamation lands in the Central Valley of California, and in his spectacular tilt with John L. Lewis. Recently he won deserved praise for his handling of the United Nations Conference on Conservation of Resources.

As he leaves his Government career, which included brilliant work as chairman of the War Production Board, Mr. Krug merits a great deal more than a casual thanks. Meanwhile, it is good to know that there will be no break in continuity of policy and administration, for Mr. Chapman has an unequaled background in all phases of Interior work—developed during his 16 years of devoted service at sub-Cabinet level.

Dismantlement

At the conclusion of their Paris conference the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France and America, Messrs. Bevin, Schuman and Acheson, announced that they had instructed their High Commissioners in Germany to enter into negotiations with the Bonn government with a view to the progressive integration of the German people into the European community. Their formal communique made no mention of the dismantling problem, but according to reports, the French government has agreed that abandonment of this program should be related to the negotiations, but only on condition that German steel production be not increased above the limits set by the level-of-industry plan.

The fact is that dismantlement is already a dead issue, and the French, being realists, cannot help but recognize. The question of immediate importance is whether the restrictions imposed by the level-of-industry plan are to be adhered to or liberalized. The present restrictionist policy is obviously indefensible from an economic viewpoint. Restriction of the steel output of Germany to little more than 11 million tons, for instance, would spell finis to the development of Germany's heavy industries and prevent exploitation of Ruhr resources for the benefit of Germany and her neighbors. The Germans cannot make a positive contribution to European recovery unless permitted to utilize the resources of their overpopulated country to provide jobs for the idle, and produce goods for export in sufficient quantities to pay for imports. If Germany is to become self-sustaining, instead of remaining chronically dependent upon outside aid, if western Europe is to enjoy the benefits of a trade recovery that will reduce its dependence on non-European countries, the resources of the Ruhr must be opened up.

There remains, of course, the question of security. The dismantlement program, out of date though it has proved to be, grew out of fears that a German industrial revival would lead to another war. A country in the position of France is certainly justified in demanding some kind of ingurance against future German aggression. Having conceded the need for protection, however, the next step should be the formulation of a program that would provide the needed protection in a more effective and much less costly way than the level-of-industry plan.

The Washington Post has repeatedly urged internationalization of the heavy industry of the Ruhr as a first step toward integration of Germany in the economic system of western Europe. Mr. John J. McCloy, American High Commissioner in Germany, favors an arrangement of this kind that would insure peaceful development of the area under the supervision of a reconstituted Ruhr Authority that would be responsible for enforcing security measures. A solution of this kind would not only put an end to what Mr. McCloy calls "purposeless dismantling," but would also pave the way for abolition of the level-of-industry plan.

Moving Mountains

The Soviet Foreign Minister deserves a modest round of applause if only because he appears to have brought appreciation of atomic energy back into some semblance of balance. The truth no doubt lies somewhere between those who, like Commander Tatom of the United States Navy, think that an atom bomb could scarcely complicate the chaos at the Washington Airport and those like Mr. Vishinsky who have faith that it can move mountains.

Mr. Vishinsky, it turns out, was speaking figuratively, or at any rate hyperbolically, when he told the Special Political Committee of the United Nations General Assembly on Thursday that the Soviet Union is utilizing atomic energy to level off the Urals, irrigate deserts, cut through jungles and the tundra and, in general, to spread "life, happiness, prosperity and welfare in places where the human footstep has not been seen for a thousand years." Later, when he saw what a stir this statement had created, he had the grace and generosity to tell reporters that all he actually knew about the matter was what he had read in the papers.

This notion of moving mountains and rechanneling rivers by means of atomic blasts is not original with Mr. Vishinsky. A noted British scientist, Prof. Frederick Soddy, suggested it some weeks ago. But most of those versed in the subject are inclined to be skeptical. An atomic blast is not altogether easy to control. Granting that man can contrive one powerful enough to raze a mountain, it is uncertain that this would be a practical or economic use of the limited store of fissionable material in his possession.

The best guess is that the United States has enough of the stuff on hand to move only a small mountain at most and that the Soviet Union is not yet prepared to go beyond the foothills. Besides, considering the consternation already caused by the release of this elemental force, one wonders if it would be wise to go around tinkering with the face of nature.

Yamamoto's Boast

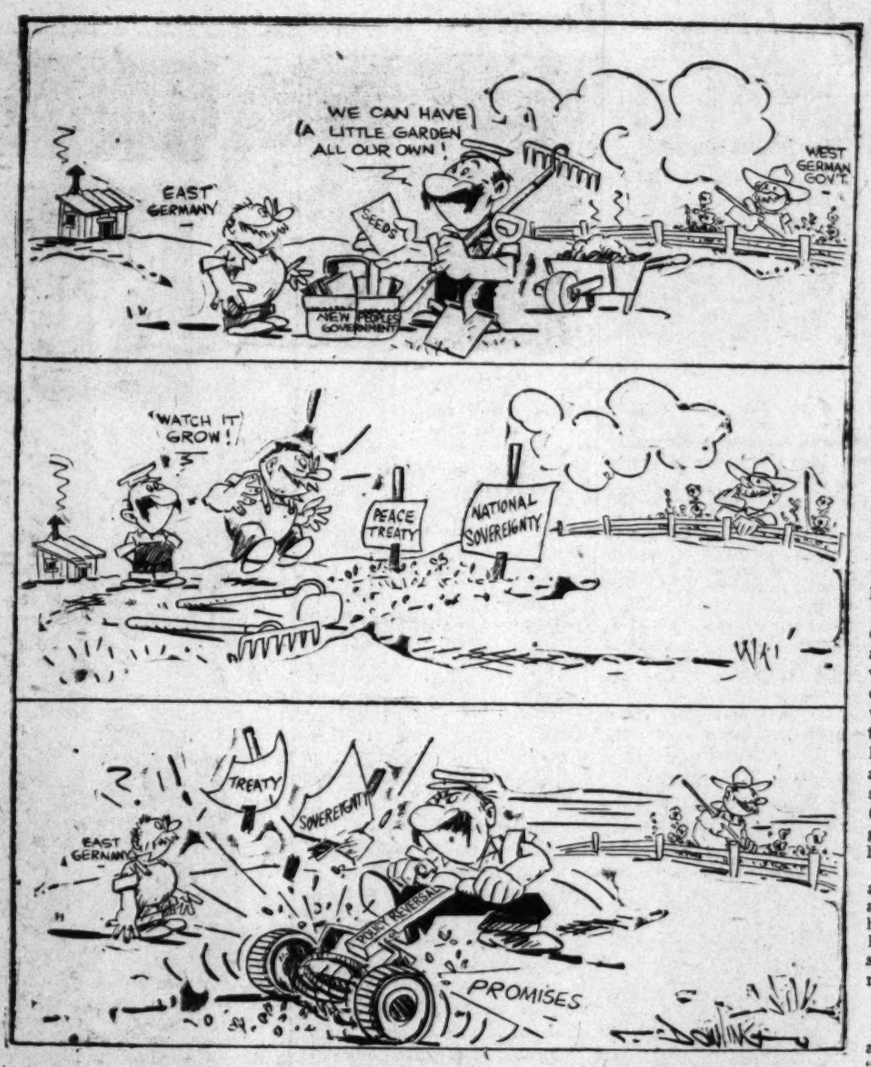
It has sometimes occurred to us that the newspapers could do a useful service by correcting in the light of the revealed facts the misleading reports that gained currency in wartime. Take, for instance, the case of Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, the commander in chief of the Japanese navy who directed the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was killed in action. Soon after Pearl Harbor, he was reputed to have boasted that he was "looking forward to dictating peace to the United States at the White House," and few Americans can have forgotten it. Yamamoto thus goes down in American history as a braggart as well as a warmonger.

Yet Prof. James A. Field, jr., writing in the current issue of the U. S. Naval Institute Proceedings, says that the Yamamoto statement was completely misinterpreted. As we recall, Admiral Nimitz made precisely the same statement after hostilities had ended. Actually the "boast" occurred in a letter written prior to Pearl Harbor. The war party was the army, not the navy, and Yamamoto headed the peace party, though his influence faded when he was sent to sea as commander in chief. He was much better informed than the army chiefs. Appalled at their ignorance, he wrote of what would be involved in a war with America. In outlining what would have to be done in order to beat America, he wound up, "We would have to march into Washington and sign the treaty in the White House." This was intended as a warning to the easy war patriots of what victory would entail.

The report current in Japan about the way Yamamoto met his death indicates a wide knowledge in Japan of Yamamoto's nonwarlike make-up. American flyers shot him down as he was on a flying mission. It is said that the army chiefs broadcast his departure—some say in plain language, others in easy code—so as to warn the American forces, and insure his demise. At any rate, the correction of Yamamoto's bellicose reputation does justice to a man who tried till the last to hold back the saber-rattlers and then went out and did his duty to his country. It is a good thing to put the record straight about the Yamamoto myth.

Service Of The Mind

One dynamic expression in American life of the noblesse oblige that the college-educated woman feels toward society is the American Association of University Women. For the last 20 years the general director of that organization, Dr. Kathryn McHale, now retiring, has done much to lead that organization into broader fields of international work and to more direct, courageous action on the national scene. Steadily the association has steered away from the ivory tower status of cold intellectuality, which made German women of higher education helpless before nazism, and also from a diffusion into social triviality, which has wrecked many an American group with noble aims. This course has largely developed out of what the association at its recent biennial convention, in a resolution of tribute to Dr. McHale, called "the vision she has had for the organization and the goals she set for it."



Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Malmedy Trials

It becomes clearer every day that The Washington Post has been prophetically correct in condemning the handling of the trial of General Yamashita. The trial was indeed the opening of a foreboding era in the history of American justice.

It turns out now, for example, that the case of Yamashita was used as a precedent in the much-criticized Malmedy trials in Germany in 1946. In the hearings of the Baldwin Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, part 2, published recently, one of the American Army review attorneys, Maxmillian Koessler, tells how (p. 1346).

Seventy-three Germans were being tried on a single charge asserting they killed 464 persons in 12 different places. Mr. Koessler explained to the Baldwin Committee ". . . since the charge sheet was so general, not pointing out the role of each individual defendant but just charging each and everyone of them with having committed everything, the defense made a motion for a bill of particulars, as they called it. The court denied this motion on two grounds: One ground was reference to the majority opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Yamashita case." All the 73 Malmedy men were convicted.

Yamashita, unfortunately, is dead. In the Malmedy case 43 death sentences were originally issued. This number is now down to 6, the others having been commuted to prison terms of various lengths.

In the Malmedy case there is still time to repudiate the Yamashita-type verdicts, retry or free the Germans, and dispel some of the gathering gloom about America's international morality. JAMES FINUCANE, Associate Secretary, National Council for Prevention of War.

Transit Battle

In the newspaper accounts of the battle over whether we should have radio broadcasts on Capital Transit streetcars and buses, each side seems to have overlooked the basic issue in its attempt to prove the other side as boorish or psychopathic. Notwithstanding the effect on the commuters' health and of the safety factors involved, there remains the problem of invading certain basic rights and liberties of an apparently minority number of travelers.

It should be remembered that CTC has a virtual monopoly on municipal transportation, and as a public utility it is the only means (except at tremendous cost otherwise) of transportation for thousands of Washingtonians.

Merely because a majority feel that such broadcasts are pleasant or that they are a source of revenue for CTC, or that they serve as a potential emergency device, does not necessarily make them right. To impose their will on a minority, no matter what size, takes away some rights much more fundamental than majority rule. Travelers of CTC are allowed no means of stopping the incursion of the noise of music and commercials on their privacy—unlike signs which can be ignored by closing the eyes, the sound cannot be kept from interfering with one's personal privacy. R. A. BOULAY,

There are a lot of conditions in the District resented by the voteless citizens but perhaps not as well publicized. I think the professional psychologists have some phrase like "transferred resentment" which might apply in this bus-radio imbroglio. Also some of the bus-radio complainers seem to get the idea that their views really would be publicized, where in other cases their views were not publicized. J. R. CONNOR.

Coal Distilling

Smoke elimination can be accomplished in our cities, and it has been properly called "America's tardy industry." I have written the District Commissioners for assignment of the $840,000 fund that will be given the District from the fine against John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, to be used in erecting a central coal-distilling plant for the District.

While employed directing coal-distilling researches for Interior, Commerce and Navy Departments, also in part cooperatively with the States of Utah, Colorado, Pennsylvania and Ohio, my associates built and operated commercial scale pilot plants for distilling coals of all types. This distilling operation is very cheap in cost of plant and operation and gives a popular nonsmoking free-burning coal (not coke) which gives much higher heating efficiency than any raw coal when used in all home stoves or furnaces. The smoke-producing ingredient in coal is oil (not tar) and it can augment the heating oil supply of the District.

The coal miners want this industry started but their leaders have prevented it thus far.

Communists' Bail

Which is of more importance, money or Americanism? I am referring to the 11 Communists that were recently let out of jail on bail, although the evidence brought against them prove that they are traitors to the American way of life.

They shouldn't have been released for any amount of money, but ought to be punished as traitors. It looks as if we were sold down the river to Communist Russia.

Age And Accidents

Our District traffic director must be suffering from a complex arising from a dread of growing old—as indicated by his persistence in nagging at automobile drivers who are 65 years or older.

It would be quite easy for this busy official to learn what are the dangerous ages among drivers. The annual reports of the National Safety Council tell the facts. Here are some of them: (Accident Facts, 1949.)

Drivers 65 years old and older were, in 1948, involved in 4 percent of all fatal accidents, and in the same percentage of all accidents. Drivers in the 18-20-year class were involved in 9 percent of the fatal accidents, and also in 9 percent of all accidents. Drivers in the 21-24-year class were responsible in 18 percent of the fatal accidents and in 15 percent of all accidents.

If the ability and qualifications of drivers are to be questioned in the event of their being involved in accidents, why not begin with those most prone to be involved in accidents, instead of with those who are least often involved in either fatal or nonfatal accidents?

Hidden Laws

Can anyone tell me why our Federal and State laws are not taught, properly, in our schools, or presented, in booklet form, to every American citizen? As things stand, they are brought to our attention only when we have fallen victim to one of them, or chance to read of someone else's unhappy experience.

How many readers know, for example, that it is a Federal offense to mail wet batteries, contraceptives, an "embarrassing" card, lottery information or even a newspaper containing such information, or a photograph or other work of art which certain religious faiths might deem "obscene"? American citizens are not omniscient, and until all our laws are taught sanely and properly, as they should be taught, ignorance of the law does excuse. "Hidden-trap laws" have no place in America.

"Chairman At 86"

Possibly your lack of personal knowledge as to the physical and mental condition of Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), 86, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is responsible for The Washington Post editorial of November 9 proposing that Mr. Doughton resign his chairmanship for age.

As a veteran North Carolina correspondent in Washington, I have observed Mr. Doughton closely since 1936. He has been a member of the House since 1911. His physical and mental abilities are amazing. He has not begun to break, as all men do at some time in or before old age. He is an excellent physical specimen, does not drink or smoke, and is seldom ill. He goes to work at 5:30 or 6 o'clock in the morning and works until 6 o'clock at night. Before going to work, he usually takes a long walk.

Today, and for many years, Mr. Doughton can outwork most members of Congress 40 years his junior. He was a rugged mountaineer, banker and farmer when he came to the House at the age of 47.

Doughton talks and thinks quickly. Don't forget almost eight months of day, and often night, hearings this year before his committee on Social Security amendments.

North Carolina history is full of Doughton's physical feats. His office force used to criticize me for writing of those feats, because I was told, "It makes the old man live up to his reputation. He comes to work at 6 o'clock or sooner and expects us to be here by 7 o'clock."

In his early days as a cattleman, Doughton often drove great herds across part of North Carolina mountains and foothills into the city markets. When, on horseback, he came to the Yadkin River, which is no creek, he would lead the herd into the stream and often would dismount from his swimming horse before reaching the other side, to take the reins in hand and swim ahead to lead his horse and the herd out on the other side.

On a recent occasion, Mr. Doughton was visited here by another early riser, Dr. James W. Davis, of Statesville, N. C., one of the Congressman's constituents. Dr. Davis left a Pullman car in Union Station and went to the Doughton office at 6:30 a. m. Mr. Doughton had been there for an hour.

I suggest that for exercise some morning after Congress reconvenes you join Bob Doughton on an early morning walk in the Capitol Hill area. He might make a young man out of you. ROBERT A. ERWIN,
President, Erwin News Service

[Editor's Note: We yield to none in our admiration of Mr. Doughton's stamina and service. Our criticism was directed at the seniority system in Congress which makes length of service the qualification for committee chairmanships.]

Techniques to Meet Tirades

By Malvina Lindsay

When Mankind Confers

THE SNAPPING of Mrs. Roosevelt's long, long patience with Soviet oral rampaging in the United Nations has emphasized an issue disturbing many Americans. It is whether in such situations to shout back or to maintain the attitude of a well-poised parent whose child is having a temper tantrum.

This is one phase of a broader question hanging over all international conferences — namely, how a bridge to the meeting of minds of widely diverse national personalities can be built. Also the nation that is an experienced international negotiator and the one that is defensively and suspiciously new at the business have barriers between them.

Mrs. Roosevelt surely had cause for angrily reprimanding a Soviet Ukrainian delegate for what she called his "outrageous" charge that Western powers were training displaced persons to fight Russia. Spectators who had marveled at her patience and self-control during all the sessions of the Human Rights Commission, and other U. N. groups have wondered if the lid wouldn't fly off sometime.

Other western delegates have at times gotten even "madder" at Soviet charges and tirades and have shouted back. In fact there has been a steadily developing school of tough talking diplomacy in this country.

THERE ARE two theories about this. One is that the "iron curtain" delegates won't understand any other language, that their approach to negotiation is by tradition primitive, and that they would mistake conventional diplomatic restraint and politenesses for weakness. The other is that anger and tough talk never accomplished anything except to weaken the person who engaged in them.

Many Americans have been disturbed, even shocked, by the way Western diplomats have often thrown aside tradition and gotten down in the gutter verbally to combat Soviet delegates. They have wondered if more of the strong, calm, adult approach they try to use with their recalcitrant children wouldn't be more effective.

A woman veteran of many international conferences was asked about this. "I admit," she said, "that my spine still tingles with the shock I received when Vishinsky delivered his first tirade. I couldn't believe such a thing could be happening in a civilized gathering. Later, I couldn't believe I was seeing Soviet and Soviet satellite delegates pick up their doll rags and leave meetings merely because something didn't go to suit them. Now I have gotten more hardened. I realize that such things are part of the adjustment we are going through in all international meetings where different traditions of human behavior come up against each other."

ANOTHER delegate, recently returned from the UNESCO meeting in Paris, told of Soviet satellite delegates (who belong to this organization) walking out because the conference decided to include on the agenda the question of whether or not UNESCO should go into Germany. These delegates were back after several days. "They were really brilliant men," said the American delegate, "and I couldn't reconcile what seemed childish behavior to me with their intelligence and education. But I realize that they had not had the same background of Anglo-American give and take compromise and majority decision that is our tradition.

"That is one thing we Americans are learning in international conferences—that much of the world hasn't our traditional approach to the settlement of disputes.

"Another thing is that we do not recognize the importance of face saving even in little things to Eastern peoples. Possibly we need mose help from phychologists in what they call the research approach to handling human beings in international conferences."

Most experienced international conferees say it would be "more than human" for Mrs. Roosevelt or other Western delegates to hold their tempers constantly in the Western tradition of polite behavior when Soviet bloc delegates make preposterous charges and indulge in vicious tirades against the West. These should be replied to forcibly, even with righteous indignation, they say. But at the same time the West should try to be true as far as possible to its tradition of mature, adult, restrained and flexible behavior wherever men come together for a meeting of minds. For this has been developed out of long experience and should not be exchanged for a more primitive procedure which in Western hands would turn out a diplomatic mess of dynamite.

Tito's Confidence

By Marquis Childs

Cominform Blockade Minimized

(This is the second of two articles on Marquis Childs' exclusive interview with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia. — Marshal Tito receives most of his visitors in a huge, high-ceilinged, walnut-paneled office at his private villa on the outskirts of Belgrade. To the left of his desk is a more than life-sized bust of Lenin in dark bronze, which stands on a high pedestal.

Childs

As he walks toward you across the length of the room your first impression is that he is shorter and more stocky than his photographs make him appear. He is dressed in a business suit and wears an unobtrusive tie. He walks with the measured gait of a man who has lived a great deal out of doors.

His speech comes in quick, almost abrupt, sentences and so fast that the interpreter is sometimes flustered. In his manner is both authority and assurance. There was never the slightest hesitation about answering questions, although sometimes when the questions amused him he laughed and gave joking replies.

"The Cominform blockade today," Tito said, "has absolutely no effect on Yugoslavia. It did have effect for six or seven months. But now it is meaningless."

This was a reflection of the quiet confidence that Yugoslavia's supreme boss showed throughout the interview. He repeated what he has said several times before—that Soviet Russia will not go to war to destroy a government that has refused to submit to dictation by Moscow.

"Russia's position before the world would prevent her taking any such step," the marshal said. "It would put the Soviet Union in the position of an aggressor, and that is a role she cannot afford.

"Of course, border incidents will continue. They probably even will be stepped up. But that doesn't cause us too much concern. Yes, we have good nerves here. We have had a great deal of experience to harden our nerves in recent years."

As he says this last, Tito grins and his face has a look of a good-natured, slightly impish, small boy.

MARSHAL Tito denied that there has been any marked increase in the number of men under arms in Yugoslavia. During the summer, some troops were kept in service for a month or a month and a half longer than their accustomed duty.

"But that is over now," he said. "We are confident because of our moral unity and our strength. We are a people who esteem our freedom. That is why slanderous things said in the Soviet Union have had no effect.

"The effect has been just the opposite to that intended. Our people have been amazed that such terms could be used by a government like that of the Soviet Union. They have gone so far as to say that we are Fascists."

The blockade, in the first instance, according to Tito, held up some aspects of the five-year-plan, particularly the hydroelectric program.

"But now," Tito said, "the handicap has been overcome by shifting the emphasis from large-scale projects to smaller units. The machines we hope to obtain from America will help speed up the program of industrialization that is our goal. The rate of progress will depend upon the rate at which these machines can be purchased and shipped.

"We have great natural resources that we must develop. To do so we must mechanize in order to overcome our shortage in manpower. There may be some delay in the capital investment phase of the program, but in other respects we may even surpass our goals."

I ASKED Marshal Tito if there was any chance that he would visit America in the near future. The suggestion of such a trip amused him.

"There is too much to do here," he said. "I am far too busy."

I pointed out that even the mention of such a trip would bring down on him the usual slanderous abuse on the Moscow propaganda radio. Again the marshal laughed.

"Such names do not bother me," he said. "But those who make use of such language will have to consider what it does to them in the eyes of the world."

Even from a brief talk with Tito you get a sense of his tremendous concentration of effort and will.

I asked him if it were not possible to reach a bilateral agreement with Italy on the long, vexatious dispute over Trieste, which now is an international zone guarded by British and American troops.

He replied that in view of far more pressing problems he considered this comparatively unimportant at the present time.

"You do not need to keep your troops in Trieste," Tito said. "There is nothing to fear from us."

While he may be the dictator over 16 million people of this country, Marshal Tito has none of the outward hallmarks of the dictators of the recent past. There is nothing about him of bluster or swag or arrogance.

But at the same time you can sense that it would be a pretty unhealthy business to get in the way of this man who knows where he is going and means to get there.

At Convention

Democrats Called Party For Youth

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 11 (AP). The Democratic Party is the "Party of America's Youth," William Neale Roach, assistant to the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told the opening session of the State convention of the Maryland Young Democrats here today.

Sounding the convention keynote before approximately 200 delegates and guests at the Cumberland Hotel, Roach in a prepared talk said "it is a significant fact that not for many generations has the youth of America been as serious-minded as it is today.

Roach asserted that the American people turned to the Democratic Party with hope when in 1933 the country was on the brink of ruin and disaster and "the people who now ask leadership sat in frenzied fear."

Roach said the Nation was not disappointed and pointed to a long list of social and economic achievements over the past 17 years—"convincing proof that we have done a job of which we can well be proud."

Roach had praise for the leadership of President Truman and Governor Lane of Maryland.

Mayor Thomas S. Post welcomed the Young Democrats to Cumberland for the three-day convention at this afternoon's session. William H. Buchholtz, president of the host Allegany County Club, was temporary chairman.

Marvin Tells Class of GWU To Act, Hope

More than 900 students, the graduating class of the Fall Convocation of George Washington University, were dedicated to "high adventure and resourcefulness" in Constitution Hall last night, by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president.

"There is no time for whining and cynicism," Dr. Marvin told the graduates, "only for activity and hopefulness."

Approximately 1500 persons attended the two-hour ceremony. Dean Elmer L. Kayser, university marshal, announced the convocation.

Dr. Free Sherman Buschmeyer, whose son, Fred, received a bachelor of arts degree from the university's Columbian College, gave the invocation and benediction. A former Washington pastor, Dr. Buschmeyer is now assistant minister of the National Council of Congregational-Christian Churches, New York.

Graduates from 45 States

The graduates came from 45 States, the District, British Guiana, China, Hawaii, India, Italy, the Netherlands, Philippines, Puerto Rico and Siam.

Among the graduates were two former generals, the son of an attache of the Netherlands embassy, and a native of Italy who is the first woman to receive the master of comparative law degree from the university.

She is Allesandra Luini Del Russo, a native of Milan. She is now head of the department of Italian, Trinity College, and lives at 703 Chillum rd., Hyattsville, Md.

The two former generals are Maj. Gen. William Samuel Rumbough, principal of Falls Church (Va.) High School, and Brig. Gen. Don Carlos Faith, director of veterans' education at George Washington University. Faith received a master of arts degree, and Rumbough a doctor of education degree. Miss Frances Holliday, associate professor of education at the University of Omaha, also received a doctor of education degree.

Son of Embassy Attache

Jan Rudolph Slotemaker De Bruine, son of Dr. N. A. C. Slotemaker De Bruine, press and cultural attache at the Netherlands Embassy, was awarded a bachelor of arts degree.

Karel Herman Beyen, son of Dr. J. W. Beyen, executive director of the International Bank and International Monetary Fund for the Netherlands and Norway, also received the master of comparative law degree. Beyen, who is associated with the law firm of Cox, Langford, Stodda and Cutler, also has degrees from the University of Utrecht and the University of Amsterdam.

Benjamin Moses Axilroad, a physicist at the National Bureau of Standards, and James Harold Coberly, assistant professor of American literature at George Washington University, received Ph.D. degrees.

Japan to Spurn Unsatisfactory Pact, Premier Says

Tokyo, Nov. 11 (U.P.)—Premier Shigeru Yoshida caused a brief sensation today when he told the upper house of Parliament that Japanese delegates would walk out of any peace conference if the treaty terms were unsatisfactory, or refuse to sign.

It was at once pointed out, however, that (1)—Japan probably will not be invited to walk in to the conference in the first place; (2)—that the eventual treaty will be presented on a take-it-and-try-to-like-it basis without negotiations.

Later Yoshida asked to "take back" his remarks.

Most occupation officials regarded Yoshida's remark as a blunder but there was no official comment on it.

Chapman Gets Promotion to Interior Chief

Oscar L. Chapman yesterday was promoted to the post of Secretary of Interior by President Truman after the President had accepted the resignation of Julius A. Krug, suddenly announced by Krug on Thursday.

Chapman, at a press conference shortly after his appointment, said he plans no changes in policy or personnel in the department.

Chapman, 53, will climax 16½ years' service with the department when he takes over December 1. He has been Undersecrtary since 1946, after three years as Assistant Secretary.

The hefty 6-foot-4 Krug resigned in an exchange of friendly letters with Mr. Truman. Krug's stated reason: "We have done a pretty good job of accomplishing our objectives."

Accepts "Reluctantly"

Agreeing, Mr. Truman recalled that Krug had often said he wanted to quit and this left no alternative but to accept his resignation "reluctantly and with sincere regret." The letter began "Dear Cap," Krug's nickname.

There was little, if any, hint in the letter of reported cooling relations between Mr. Truman and the man he named in March, 1946, to take the place vacated by Harold L. Ickes.

In his letter of resignation, Krug told the President:

"The people of the West appreciate your personal understanding of the urgent need for developing our natural resources. There is no other way of providing decent job opportunities for our people. I am sure you will not accept the 'status quo' way of thinking, which, in my opinion, exaggerates the concern of some who are worried about their future livelihood in their own communities."

No Elaboration of Passage

There was no elaboration of this passage, but some believed it was a reference to differences Krug has had with some officials about programs to develop western resources. For example, some communities have fought the proposed Columbia River Authority, feeling that they would be hurt by it.

The President assured Krug he was not accepting the status quo. He said "hostility to change is too often inspired by narrow timidity and selfish fear."

Chapman, who will be given a recess appointment subject to Senate confirmation next January, said that for many years he has favored the Columbia Valley Authority. He strongly favors statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

Incidentally, Chapman's nomination puts two residents of Denver, Colo., in the Cabinet. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan also is a Denver resident.

Brannan and Krug have been at odds for some time over conflicting jurisdiction claims of their respective departments. The Agriculture head some time ago declared he would step down from the Cabinet if that action would further the likelihood of Chapman's getting the Interior post by meeting any objection there might be to having two Cabinet members from the same city.

Chapman, at his press conference yesterday, declared there were no differences between Agriculture and Interior that cannot be adjusted by conferences.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), predicted that Chapman will be unopposed in the Senate. Chapman was born in Omega, Va., October 22, 1896. He made his home in Denver after attending law school there.

Two Workers Suffer Injuries In Falls Here

Two men were admitted to District hospitals yesterday afternoon as the result of falls while at work, police reported.

John Snyder, 50, of Baltimore, a sheetmetal worker, fell 14 feet from a scaffold while at work inside the Senate wing of the Capitol. He was taken to Providence Hospital with severe cuts of the right leg.

HOMECOMING QUEEN—Patricia Daly, 21, of 3322 Tennyson st. nw., is Catholic University's Homecoming Queen. A senior at CU, Miss Daly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daly

Patricia Daly Named as Queen For Catholic U. Homecoming

Miss Patricia Daly, a 21-year-old redhead, last night was crowned Catholic University homecoming queen at the annual alumni ball in the Mayflower Hotel.

A senior majoring in fine arts, Miss Daly was selected by a ballot of students and alumni.

She is the eldest daughter of the John Jay Daly family of 3322 Tennyson st. nw., in 1948 named by Parents magazine as "America's outstanding family." Her father is a free-lance writer.

The ball climaxed the opening day of the university's reunion.

Nurses Honor Sister

In an afternoon meeting graduates of the school of nursing education honored Sister M. Olivia Gowan, founder and director of the school.

Sister Olivia

Miss Barbara Lanigan, secretary of the Nursing Alumnae Association, presented Sister M. Olivia with a gift of money to pay her way to Rome during next year's observance of Holy Year. She also received a money gift from the faculty of the nursing school.

Mrs. Ruth Craven Rock, former executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Women, speaking at the forum annually held in connection with the reunion, said that the task of rebuilding a Christian social world is essentially a layman's responsibility and job.

The only lay speaker to appear on the program, she declared that "a shifting of responsibility" to the clergy "gives the impression that the Catholic layman has no particular social or moral convictions except as these concern his personal life."

Urges Lay Effort

She said that the layman must be "a more influential and more articulate member of the community. His missionary field is in the world of men going about their wordly affairs."

Others who spoke at the forum were: the Rev. Dr. George P. Jacoby, executive director of the Catholic Home Bureau for Dependent Children in New York City; the Rev. Dr. Paul Hanly Furfey, head of the university's department of sociology, and the Rev. Dr. Francis W. Carney, director of the social education institute of St. John College, Cleveland.

Dr. Jacoby said that Catholics must take an active role in the welfare programs of non-sectarian agencies. They must resist "encroachment" by other than Catholic welfare agencies in social service fields involving family case work, recreational and counseling service to youth and child welfare.

"All too often the problems of families involve such basic moral considerations as limitation of family, sterilization, divorce or separation," he declared.

Standards Not Accepted

"We cannot expect organizations and workers who do not accept our Catholic standards on these fundamental matters to be guided by the Christian principles motivating Catholic charities.

Dr. Carney said that seminary students in increasing numbers must turn their attention to courses in sociology, economics and political science.

Today's activities include meeting of alumni of the various schools of the university in the morning; a football game with Washington College at 2:30 p. m. in the stadium, and a banquet at the Mayflower at 7:30 p. m.

Lutheran Bazaar Today

Handiwork, gifts and homecooked food will be sold at a bazaar beginning at 3 p. m. today at Atonement Lutheran Church, North Capitol and U sts. ne. A roast beef dinner will be served from 5 to 7 p. m.

2-Party Social Whirl to Open As Hair-Curler

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The two-party winter social season is about to open in Washington and New York with some competitive angles that will make your hair curl.

Republicans, who used to dangle their jewelry in "Petite Marmite" at only the best hotels are planning to hock their gems and throw a "package dinner" with hoi polloi at Uline Arena.

And what about the Democrats, those stanch defenders of peas on a knife and the common man? Where will the friends of the napkin-in-collar stage their next big affair? At New York's affluent Waldorf Hotel, of all places.

Before this winter whirl is over, Joe Voter is going to be a mighty confused man. The burning bipartisan social issue of our times: Who are the "haves" and who the "have nots"?

Plans Still Hush-Hush

Republican plans for really mingling with the people, come February and Lincoln Day, are still very hush-hush.

Local GOP managers figure some 10,000 people can dine at Uline arena if they eat from boxes on their laps. The cross subject of money-raising may not even be mentioned. This time the Republican Party is returning to Lincoln with a whoop.

Some say the now lean and hungry GOP is taking a leaf from the book of Harold Stassen, author of the modern version of "Meet the People." Stassen confessed the other day that the Grand Old Party "is in a bad way . . . the people know it is in a bad way."

Others say Lincoln took out the original common touch patent—that Republicans always loved hamburger and onions and it's time the country found out. Don't breathe a word of it, but maybe 1948 and the New York elections helped bring out the flavor.

Caught short by the GOP's sudden interest in the common man, Democrats are already making some discreet inquiries about the availability of the National Guard Armory for their Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner next March.

The rumor is that 20,000 people can be crowded into the Armory if full use is made of the floor and the Fire Department is not too technical about exit regulations.

But for the moment at least, Democrats are left holding the bag with plans for another big money dinner they can't call off—the plus $100-a-plate affair slated for December 2 at the Waldorf.

Frankly, the Democrats need funds to launch their 1950 congressional drive. The Waldorf main ballroom is already engaged to "honor" about 3500 contributors to the Democratic House and Senate campaigns.

Thomas Morgan, board chairman of the Sperry Corp., is in charge of the Waldorf dinner arrangements for the Democrats and Vice President Barkley will be the star speaker.

Republicans are still keeping mum about the show they will put on at Uline. But they say it should put the 1950 elections on ice.

"Thin ice," snarled the Democrats.

President Calls for Rights Law As Duty Under Constitution

is the goal toward which we must strive with all our strength."

Mr. Truman's address was interspersed with frequent references to the meaning of brotherhood. He called it a "divine command," a "religious duty."

"Those of us who believe in God," he said, "can never be content to live for ourselves alone. We must always be working to eliminate injustice, and to create a society which carries out our ideals.

"The greatest strength of this organization," President Truman told conference members, "lies in its fundamental principles. The National Conference of Christians and Jews has rightly recognized that the true foundation of the brotherhood of man is belief in God. The only sure bedrock of human brotherhood is the knowledge that God is the Father of mankind.

"In the history of the world, there have been some movements inspired by a desire for brotherhood and greater justice among men which have denied or forgotten the religious foundation of those ideals.

"Sooner or later, these movements have wavered and lost their way. They have become self-centered; they have set up their own interests as the only standard of right and wrong, and they have degenerated from movements of liberation into movements of tyranny and oppression. We can succeed in achieving brotherhood only if we acknowledge that the ideal of brotherhood is something outside us and above us, something by which we in our turn will also be judged.

"Claim Common Heritage"

"All the faiths represented here claim as a common heritage the great thoughts of the Hebrew prophets. The prophets were among the first of men who saw that the concept of the Fatherhood of God required men to do justice to one another. They called on the people of their day, just as they call on us today, not only to recognize the humanity of others, but also to work unceasingly for the achievement of greater justice in human relations."

Mr. Truman told those at the luncheon that he had just come from the National Cemetery at Arlington, where he had laid a wreath on the grave "of an American hero. No American knows, and no real American cares, whether that man was a Catholic, a Jew or a Protestant, or what his origin and color were. That grave—the grave of the Unknown Soldier—symbolizes our faith in unity.

"We have achieved our unity in this country," he said, "not by eliminating our differences in religion and tradition, but by holding to a concept which rises above them all, the concept of the brotherhood of man.

"The first step of every enemy of this country has always been to attempt to separate the different strands of faith and belief out of which this Nation has been woven. Our enemies have tried to set group against group, faith against faith—to create prejudice and to spread hate and distrust among our people.

Cites "Great Service"

"The great service of the National Conference of Christians and Jews is to fight against the forces of intolerance, to bring light to the dark byways of prejudice, and to spread the spirit of tolerance and brotherhood which unites our country.

"This is a great patriotic service, and the country is indebted to the men and women in this organization who have given so much of their effort and substance in performing it."

Mr. Truman, who serves as honorary chairman of the conference, said he was impressed with its "comprehensive day-to-day program of education."

Going into the field of international relations, he declared, "We must strive abroad, as well as at home, to defend human rights and to expand the enjoyment of freedom. We have taken a firm stand in the councils of the United Nations against the violation of human rights. With the help of your organization and others like it, we have been able to play an important part in the United Nations in developing such historic international documents as the Declaration of Human Rights and the Convention on Genocide.

"Economic Progress Essential"

"Furthermore, we realize that economic progress is essential to the peace and brotherhood that we desire for all mankind. That is why we are striving with other nations to create world economic conditions in which people may achieve freedom and dignity. That is why we are undertaking our programs of economic assistance and putting forward our proposals for helping underdeveloped regions of the world to achieve a better standard of living through their own efforts."

President Truman warned that the "task of achieving greater justice and freedom will be long and difficult. The beliefs on which we have founded our form of government, and our hope of a better world, are under attack.

"Sustained and strengthened by one another," he said, "we can go forward, under God, to meet and overcome the difficulties which confront us. With his help, mankind will come at last to a world where peace, freedom and justice will be enjoyed by all people everywhere."

John L. Sullivan, former Navy Secretary and general chairman of the conference, earlier had reminded those at the luncheon that the conference was founded in 1928 and had "sprung from revulsion against the intolerance and bigotry that manifested itself in the presidential election of that year."

He declared the conference "exists to promote justice, amity and understanding among Protestants, Jews and Catholics. We seek to analyze, moderate and ultimately eliminate those intergroup prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations," Sullivan said.

National Brotherhood Week will be observed in 1950 during the week in which George Washington's birthday falls, from February 20 to 26. Meetings yesterday and Thursday were to plan the 1950 observance.

Bowl-Minded Terps Face Boston U.'s Star Agganis

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Nov. 11.—Maryland vs. Boston University tomorrow, booked originally as a mere fill-in date by two schools with schedule troubles, has suddenly burgeoned as Boston's Game of the Year.

The clash of unbeaten B. U. and the rugged, once-beaten Marylanders at Fenway Park is dwarfing in interest the Boston College-Fordham game at Braves Field, and the traditional Harvard-Brown battle at Cambridge.

More than 30,000 fans, perhaps the park capacity of 34,000, will watch Harry Agganis, famed sophomore quarterback of B. U., lead his mates against a Maryland team that is favored by one touchdown, to halt the Terriers' string of six straight victories.

Bowl game hopes of both teams will be riding on the result, with B. U. hankering for the bid to the Orange or Alligator Bowls, and Maryland similarly minded.

Agganis Terps Chief Concern

Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland deplaned with his 36-man squad shortly after noon today, in time for a final practice. It was followed by a blackboard session designed to take the bite out of the Terriers' high-scoring offense which has averaged 40 points per game.

Agganis is the chief target of Maryland's defensive measures, equally directed at harassing his passing game that has netted more than two touchdowns per contest, and blunting the running attack that Agganis also directs.

Tatum for the past week has been preaching the dangers of concentrating on Agganis' aerial strikes, pointing out that the B. U. ace is dangerous both on hand-offs and when keeping the ball on quarterback sprints.

All week Maryland has had its scrubs simulating the ball-carrying of Bobby Whelan, George Luker, Charley Kent and Fullback John Kastan, who get frequent calls from Agganis.

Against B. U.'s attacking team, rated third best in the national collegiate rankings, Maryland will toss a defense that also has attained the third highest national ranking. Only two touchdowns have been scored through the Maryland line all season.

Ward's Return Bolsters Terps

The return of Guard Bob Ward, who plays alongside Ray Krouse, Maryland's 240-pound candidate for all-America tackle honors, bolsters Maryland, which has demonstrated tremendous speed in the line all season.

Tatum has indicated that his quarterbacking choice at the outset will be Joe Tucker, the choice over Stan Lavine, who led the Terps to the 40-14 victory over George Washington U. last Saturday.

Maryland's forward passing attack, nonexistent in the Terrapins' first four games of the season, suddenly manifested itself in the last two weekends. Preceding Lavine's winning performance over G. W. U., Tucker completed 12 to 15 passes in the rout of South Carolina.

More than 2000 Maryland students and fans are in Boston, or moving toward this metropolis, for the game, confident of the Terrapins' ability to dislodge B. U. from the unbeaten list.

Tatum, himself, predicted victory "if we play our best game." But he announced his complete respect for Coach Buff Donelli's tricky B. U. offense which features the winged-T, phases of Maryland's own split-T formation, and occasionally a tight-T lineup.

When he took over at Maryland, in 1947, Tatum promised the school, "a top flight team by 1950." Enthusiastic Marylanders are cocksure that Tatum is a year ahead of schedule.

GROUND GAINER—Wilson High School's Chris King (33) goes off tackle for a 4-yard gain in the third period of the game with Western High School yesterday at Central Stadium. King eluded Ted Dayharsh (reaching for King), but was brought down by Pete Rawlings (left, foreground), Red Raiders' center. Wilson's Green Tigers won 19-7 and clinched at least a tie for the Southern Division, Interhigh League, title

Kavanaugh, Sandoz and Speros Score For Winners

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Lee Brinson and Leo Speros pulled the props out of a fourth quarter Western rally yesterday and Wilson sailed to a 19-7 victory in an Interhigh showdown battle before 5000 at Central Stadium.

The Tigers' impressive triumph secured on a 21-yard touchdown sprint by Speros with three minutes remaining, knocked Western out of the Southern Division race. It assured Wilson of at least a tie for the Southern title.

Wilson	STATISTICS	Western
13	First downs	10
187	Yards gained rushing	139
85	Yards gained passing	30
19	Passes attempted	6
6	Passes completed	2

36.4	Average yards per punt	40.7
75	Yards punts returned	27
2	Fumbles	2
2	Fumbles recovered	1
85	Yards penalized	20

All Wilson needs to do to clinch the right to represent the South in the big November 25 championship game, sponsored by The Washington Post and Board of Education at Griffith Stadium, is beat or tie lowly Chamberlain next Friday.

The hard fought game brought injuries to two players. Lenny Fay, star Western tackle, suffered a fracture of the right foot while Lee Brinson, Wilson halfback sustained torn ligaments in his right knee. Fay will be out for the remainder of the season but the full extent of Brinson's injuries will not be determined until Monday.

Brinson Wilson's Pay Off

Gangling Lee Brinson, a 48-minute player in all of Wilson's games, pulled his club out of a tight hole in the late quarter after Western scored one touchdown and seemed headed for the game-tieing goal.

With the Tigers leading, 13-7, four minutes left, Brinson blunted Western's deep thrust by intercepting Paul Weinstein's pass on Wilson's 29.

In six plays, Speros and Gary Quinn spirited the Tigers to Western's 21. There, Speros smacked over right tackle, got a tremendous block from End Pete Haley, and scooted all the way for the clinching touchdown.

Wilson took a commanding 13-0 lead in the first quarter on the passing of Speros and the smart defensive play of Center Preston Kavanaugh.

In the first quarter, Tommy Sandoz returned a Western punt 11 yards to the Red Raider 39. Five plays later, the 190-pound Speros whipped a perfect touchdown pass to Sandoz. Dick Sebastian converted.

Kavanaugh Goes 75 Yards

In the second quarter, linebacker Kavanaugh intercepted a Weinstein pass on Wilson 25. Haley gave Kavanaugh a helping hand with a hard block, and Kavanaugh raced 75 yards down the right sideline for a touchdown.

Western came back for the second half, a pepped up team. After one Raider advance was halted on the Wilson 32, Ted Dayharsh took matters into his own hands.

Central Beats Out St. John's

Central's Vikings scored with two and a half minutes remaining to defeat St. John's, 13-7, yesterday at Central, before 5000 people.

Joe McHenry of Central recovered Tom Collins, fumble on the St. John's 17. An offside penalty set the Vikings back 5 yards but Jimmy Sullivan's pass to Jerry Murphy was good for 18 yards to the 4. Pat McDougall then bolted through guard to score. Lynn Leathery's extra point try was wide.

Central had forged into an early lead, scoring on the first play after the opening kickoff.

Pat McDougall returned the kickoff 19 yards to the Viking 42. On the next play, Jimmy Sullivan faded back and heaved a 33-yard pass to Terry Gregory.

Gregory legged it an additional 25 yards down the sideline for a touchdown. Leathery kicked the extra point, his twelfth in 16 tries.

St. John's tied it up late in the third period when Tom Collins plunged over from the 4 after Don Shannon had broken through to block Murphy's kick at that point.

GW Takes on High-Powered Duke Today

Hot Passing Duel Looms Between Davis, Billy Cox

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The high powered Dukes of Durham, N. C., put George Washington's undefeated home record to its severest test today at 2:30 p. m. when the Blue Devils and Colonials clash at Griffith Sadium.

Still smarting from last week's 27-7 upset defeat at the hands of Wake Forest, Duke is expected to take it out on the Colonials with a 20-point victory.

The Blue Devils have lost only to the Deacons and Navy, but hold victories over Tennessee, Georgia Tech, N. C. State, Virginia Tech and Richmond. This is the first season since 1943 in which the Devils have won five games.

In their two previous home appearances this year, the Colonials impressively whipped Washington and Lee, 21-19, and Lafayette, 14-7. Last week at College Park, they were soundly beaten by Maryland, 40-14.

Wallace Wade's Blue Devils will provide the Colonials with their first single-wing opposition this season, G.W.'s other seven foes having used the T formation and its variations.

Billy Cox, 185-pound tailback from Mount Airy, N. C., is the lad who makes the Devils' attack move. He runs and punts well, and has already set an all-time Duke passing record for the season with 631 yards gained.

His G.W. counterparts are Handy Andy Davis and Jack Tivnan. Davis saw action in the first half of last year's Duke game, which was won by the Devils, 62-0, in Durham. Andy gained 112 yards passing before being removed when his knee was banged up.

This is Tivnan's first year on the varsity, and he blossomed forth for the first time last week, taking over Davis' tailback spot and passing the Colonials to one touchdown and setting up another.

Duke will be hampered by the absence of its most productive runner, Jack Friedlund, who injured his leg in last week's Wake Forest game. He won't be missed by G. W. however. Last year, Friedlund intercepted three Colonials' passes and scored a touchdown.

Fred Schoonmaker, 170-pound wingback, will take over for Friedlund. Schoonmaker scored Duke's only touchdown last week on a 40-yard run.

G. W., weakest in the pass defense department, will have to cover pass receiving Ends Tommy Hughes and Ceep Youmans. Other Duke standouts are Tackle Lou Allen, 220-pounder, who is being boomed for All-America, and John Reese, speedy 211-pound guard from Berwyn, Md.

Montgomery Blairs 115-piece band will take the spotlight at halftime, with 15 drum majorettes twirling their batons.

Boston Plays Caps Here

Sonny Hertzberg comes back to Uline Arena tonight—but this time he's on the other side.

Hertzberg, an outstanding backcourt man with the Washington Caps for the past two seasons, returns with Coach Doggie Julian's Boston Celtics when they oppose Coach Bob Feerick's Caps.

Sonny was traded to Boston in exchange for 6 foot, 9 inch Chuck Halbert in off season.

George Nostrand, another player who figured in a swap for Halbert last season will perform with the Celtics tonight. Halbert was traded by Boston to the now defunct Providence Steamrollers for Nostrand last winter, but was reclaimed by the Celtics when the Rollers disbanded.

Hertzberg, star of the Caps' championship playoffs last season, returns to Washington a starting player and key man of the Celtics. He registered 17 points as Boston bowed to the Minneapolis Lakers and the 37-point scoring of George Mikan last Thursday night, 98-84.

The Capitols will be playing their fourth game within the last five nights. And have won four of their first five NBA games.

It's Tar Heels' Night to Howl

New York, Nov. 11 (U.P.)—Several hundred North Carolina rooters gathered tonight in Times Square on the eve of the Notre Dame football game to sing songs, wave blue and white pennants, and chant, "Choo Choo, all the way, Choo Choo."

The visiting Tarheels treated about 3000 onlooking New Yorkers to a display of enthusiasm that belied the fact that Notre Dame is a 30-point favorite to win the game at what the visitors called "Damyankee Stadium."

At one time the Tarheel crowd attempted to surge off the sidewalk into the street, but they were promptly pressed back to the sidewalk by 12 mounted "boys in blue"—police, that is, not Union soldiers.

One of the many Confederate flags being waved by Tarheel rooters was in the hand of Al Beatty, a North Carolina junior with a strong Southern accent who finally admitted that his home town was Fairfield, Conn.

At the height of the cheering, two husky Marines appeared, each bearing a Notre Dame pennant.

Straight into the Tarheel ranks they marched. The ranks opened, the Marines passed through untouched.

Irish Figure To Win Today By 28 Points

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

New York, Nov. 11—Broadway harkened to the sound of Tar Heel voices tonight as thousands of North Carolinians roamed the Great White Way chanting "Beat Notre Dame."

Even if their football team was as spirited as the uninhibited tobaccolanders, it is extremely doubtful if it would make much difference tomorrow when they face the Irish supermen in Yankee Stadium before 67,000 onlookers.

Seeking their thirty-fifth victory without a loss, Frank Leahy's precisionists tonight were a four-touchdown favorite to achieve it, winning as handily as they please.

Matter of fact, Notre Dame's subway alumni, who regard the Irish as reverently as Brooklyn does its Dodgers, were imploring Leahy's lancers to pour it on the invaders.

The Irish "old grads" from Weehawken, Canarsie, Hackensack and Passaic are prepared to give the Ramblers a tremendous welcome on their return to Yankee Stadium

What was regarded as an epic clash when it was originally scheduled is now looked upon as just another whistle stop for the South Bend express, but it hasn't dampened the enthusiasm of Notre Dame's zealous New York followers one bit.

Dying for a glimpse of the Irish, whom they haven't seen play here since 1946 in the great scoreless deadlock with the Blanchard-Davis Army team, New Yorkers want to see the Irish pour it on. They'd like to see, and they might, Notre Dame score 65 points, which would be a new high for Notre Dame against major league opposition.

Dartmouth, beaten 64-0 in 1944, has the dubious distinction of having more points scored against it than any of Notre Dame's major foes.

The question of whether Charlie Justice, North Carolina's great All-American halfback, would or would not play was of secondary importance. Top drawer news was Notre Dame's return to New York.

As for the Justice question, there's little change. He's hurt, no doubt about it, but indications are he'll play not much, but he'll be sent into the game to achieve his life-time ambition—to play in New York.

Dr. Ed Hedgepeth, North Carolina team physician, was inclined to take a dim view of Justice's availability, but Justice himself was a bit cheerier. "I'd like to play and I'm going to try like the devil to play," he said.

Dick Bunting, junior understudy, will do most of the tailbacking for the Tar Heels if Justice finds he can't make it. Carolina's two other talented starts—Pass-catching End Art Weiner and Fullback Billy Hayes of Arlington, Va., a long-passing specialist, are hale, hearty and ready to go.

South Carolina Loses to Miami, 13-7

Miami, Fla., Nov. 11 (AP).—The University of Miami Hurricanes won their fifth game in six starts tonight by whipping a stubborn University of South Carolina 13 to 7, before 34,185 spectators in the Orange Bowl.

Rated a 13-point favorite at the kickoff, the Hurricanes found the Carolina Gamecocks tougher than a pack of Bulldogs and had to fight every foot of the way.

W-L Upset By Eastern

Tommy McHan led Eastern to a 14-13 upset of Washington-Lee High last night at Arlington with Bob Lynn's accurate toe giving the Ramblers the edge.

McHan climaxed a 53-yard drive in the first period by plunging over from the one and then ran back an intercepted pass 75 yards for a second quarter tally. Lynn converted both times.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Team Wins Game Against Rockville for Rickey Onslow

By Jules Loh

THIRTY-SEVEN Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School football players attended funeral services at St. Albans Episcopal Church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock for their quarterback, Rickey Onslow, the youth who died last Wednesday by his own hand.

At 2:30 yesterday afternoon, those same 37 players journeyed out to Rockville, Md., and scored a 26-12 victory over Richard Montgomery High School. They won it for "Rickey."

Without Rickey Onslow, the team was not the same. Although Bethesda was the heavy favorite, it was six points behind at the half.

The first two times they got their hands on the ball they fumbled. The third time they lost five yards. And so it went for half the game.

You see, the good-looking kid who wore No. 10 was more than a brilliant T-formation quarterback. To 37 players, he was somewhat of an idol. He held the team together. He slapped them on the rump to pep them up. He lifted them to their feet after a tackle. His presence made his teammates feel as if they could do things and go places.

Thirty-seven players trudged off the field at half time. They received instructions from Coach Ray Fehrman, then they trudged back. They didn't run.

Silently they grouped into a huddle on the sidelines in front of the bench. Someone said, "Let's make this second half for Rickey." Thirty-seven players voiced the same wish. They exploded out of the huddle.

A spark was back in them. Spectators who were unaware of the tragedy might have suspected that Rickey was out there calling signals and causing all the ginger.

They charged on the field and scored 26 points in 12 minutes. Two touchdowns were registered by Wally Young, one of Rickey's pallbearers.

Number 10—Onslow—back, headed the list of 38 Bethesda players on the program. And why not? He was there for the second half.

Leach Runs 91, 14 Yards For 2 Scores

St. Albans won its traditional rivalry game with Landon and its fourth straight victory in the Interstate Athletic Conference with a 28-7 triumph before 1000 yesterday at Landon.

Walter Leach scored two touchdowns for the winners, his first on a 91-yard kickoff return opening the game. St. Albans was never headed after that. Leach's other score was on a 14-yard run.

Other scores for the winners were made by Bob Alvord, on an 18-yard pass from Harrison Somerville, and Johnny Alvord, on a 50-yard pass play with Voris Conrad throwing.

Only marker for the losers came on a 3-yard plunge off tackle by Bill Brawner.

Frowfelter and Brown Finally Win Trophy

Mrs. Mary Frowfelter and B. C. Brown finally won the William Trembley mixed scotch foursome trophy at the Prince Georges County Club yesterday.

They defeated Mrs. Dorris Gram and Jim Vance by scoring 85-12—73 to 96-21—75.

It was the fourth time these two teams met for the title, the three previous rounds ending in ties.

Pantos Benched As Courtesy

Jimmy Pantos, star Longwood Prep halfback, will be kept on the bench today at the request of Charlotte Hall Coach Paul Massey when the two teams clash today at Charlotte Hall, Md.

Pantos transferred to Longwood two weeks ago after failing in his studies at Central High, and being declared ineligible for football. He played for Longwood last week against Georgetown's freshmen.

James Walker, Longwood's headmaster, said last night, "Charlotte Hall gave no reason for requesting that we bench Pantos, but we've always had good relations with Charlotte Hall and will comply."

30,000 See W. Virginia State Beat North Carolina College

West Virginia State's Yellow Jackets kept their undefeated record intact last night as they whipped North Carolina College, 14-0, in the annual Capital Classic before 30,000 at Griffith Stadium.

Credit for State's eighth straight victory goes to Joe Gilliam who passed for a touchdown in the second quarter, and set up the other with another pitch in the fourth.

Ten seconds after the beginning of the second quarter, Gilliam looped a 38-yarder to Clarence Clark for a touchdown.

With 8 minutes left in the final quarter, Gilliam cranked up again, and fired to Horace Christian, who was downed after a 24-yard gain at the Carolina 7.

Fusari Stops Young in Eighth

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—Charlie Fusari, blond Irvington, N. J., welter, proved his September knockout loss to Rocky Graziano made no serious dent in his career by flattening tough Terry Young tonight in 1:13 of the eighth round of a scheduled ten at Madison Square Garden. Fusari weighed 148, Young 141.

Referee Eddie Joseph stopped the bout with Young out cold on the floor with his face down. He never bothered to start a count. Young had just scraped himself off the canvas after taking a 9-count in the first seconds of the last round.

The scrappy East Sider, who boasted he would better the Rock's kayo of the Jersey youngster, also was down for nine in the sixth when he was saved by the bell.

Cardinals' Homecoming

Catholic Plays Sho'men Today; Howard Host to Delaware

Washington Has Won 3 in Row

Washington College of Chestertown, Md., puts its three-game winning streak on the line today at Brookland against Catholic University.

It's C.U.'s annual homecoming game, and kickoff time is 2:30 p. m.

The record of the Sho'men offers the Cards little hope of their second victory. Last week, Washington routed Randolph-Macon, 26-0. Earlier in the season, Randolph-Macon nosed out C.U., 9-7.

Herb Eiseman and Jim Eising are the wheelhorses of Washington's single wing attack, which also boasts wins over Dexel, 18-12, and Bridgewater, 26-0.

Eiseman aims his passes at three fine ends, Capt. Jack Burk, George Piocharski and Lou Silverio.

Encouraged by its 33-13 victory over Gallaudet last week, C. U. is banking on the running of Bucky Ennis, Bill DeYoung, Bill Holl and Joe Dunn today. Tony Scoppotuelo, versatile guard, will spearhead the Cardinals' light, but improving line.

Final Home Game for Bisons

Howard University's Bisons make their final home appearance this afternoon at 2:30 with Delaware State providing the opposition.

The Bisons have alternately won and lost in their first seven games but hope it's not their turn to lose today. They beat Hampton, 7-0, last week.

In spite of their pattern of success and failure, the Bisons are 14-point favorites.

Thompson to Abrams has been Howard's key passing combination in victories over Bluefield, 27-0; Virginia Union, 19-13; Smith, 31-0, and Hampton.

Howard Booters Beat Sons of Italy

Fedo Blake and Ronald Gordon scored two goals each for Howard.

Scoring: Howard—Blake (2), Gordon (2).

Yale's Kiphuth Called 'Critical'

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11 (AP). Robert J. H. (Bob) Kiphuth, Yale University's director of athletics, is in critical condition at New Haven Hospital today following a heart attack.

The gray-haired perfectionist, who piloted United States Olympic and Yale swimming teams to unprecedented heights, suffered a coronary occlusion yesterday while playing handball at Yale's Payne Whitney gymnasium. Hospital sources explained that a coronary occlusion occurred when a heart muscle collapsed.

Hoyas Favored at Denver

Odds in West Shift in Favor Of Georgetown

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—Georgetown will be "up" for tomorrow's game with Denver University.

The Hoyas even will be higher than you'd think in this mile-high city. Actual elevation above sea level at the D. U. Stadium is 5400 feet.

Whether or not the altitude will have an adverse effect on Georgetown remains to be seen. Already the odds are fluctuating wildly. When Georgetown left Washington's National Airport this morning, Eastern oddsmakers quoted the Hoyas a one-point underdog. Out here in the West, just six hours later, Denver was called a 9 to 12-point underdog.

Flurries were forecast for tonight. However, tomorrow's weather should be clear and in the mid-fifties.

Usually, when you write about Georgetown's offense you mention Passer Frank Mattingly and Runner Billy Conn and stop. Tomorrow, Coach Bob Margarita intimated en route, things may be different.

Young Robert plans a new starting offensive backfield. It includes Conn and Mattingly, of course, but Jack Kivus, 160-pound defensive back, will be at right half. And at fullback, Soph Don Kitkowski, mainly a linebacker, will try his hand at carrying the ball.

Denver has three offensive aces who rank high in the country, statistically. Little Hal Pfeifer, a 152-pounder, is twelfth in rushing with 662 yards in 121 tries and sixth leading kickoff return man. Sam Etcheverry, only a soph, is thirteenth among passers with a .500 average in 118 attempts, nine of hem for touchdowns. End Gordon Cooper, another soph, is eighth leading pass receiver with 29 receptions for 516 yards.

Two place-kickers made it a 10-10 tie last year when the teams met at Griffith Stadium and both are back. Denver's Bob Gruenler, who contributed a point and the tying field goal, has made 22 of 26 conversion attempts this season. Dick Haesler, who matched his production, has nine for 12 conversions and two were blocked. Burly Richard, however, found the range for the winning field goal against Boston College.

Hoya Old Grads See Today's Game

Denver, Nov. 11.—Georgetown didn't find itself exactly alone today, 2000 miles from home.

The Hoya football squad was met by a group of enthusiastic alumni. The Georgetown Rocky Mountain Club number 60-odd and half of them were on hand at the airport.

Three Denver old grads who haven't seen the Hoyas play in 50 years will be at the Denver game tomorrow. They are Dr. Sherman Williams, 72, class of 1898; R. N. Gwynn, 71, class of 1897, and Mike Waldron, 75, class of 1894.

Navy Holds Favored Role Over Lions

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 11 (AP).—In the rare position of a favorite, Navy entertains Columbia at Thompson Stadium tomorrow for its last home game of the season.

The game matches a pair of football teams with two victories each to their credit and an abundance of sophomores in their lineups.

Minus the services of such redoubtable backs of recent years as Lou Kusserow and Gene Rossides, Columbia set down Amherst and Harvard but has dragged fruitlessly through its last five encounters.

Uncertain Navy started well, too, then hit the toboggan and failed to recover until last week when the Middies drove to a 21-21 deadlock with Tulane.

Only once before has Navy been a solid pregame favorite this season. The consequence was a woeful showing and 48-13 loss to Wisconsin. The Middies have been picked over Columbia before, to the joy of Coach Lou Little's Lions.

"Navy has been favored the last three years and you can see what happened," Annapolis Coach George Sauer commented today. Columbia won every time to advance its series edge over the Midshipmen. The Lions have won nine, lost six and tied one.

Judged on results against their only mutual opponent, the game is even-up. Penn beat Columbia 27-7 on October 15 and the very next week walloped Navy, 28-7.

Parker-Gray, Armstrong Tie

Richmond, Nov. 11.—Players with famous names dominated the Parker-Gray of Alexandria vs. Armstrong of Richmond high school football game which resulted in a 7-7 tie here today.

William Powell, namesake of the movie star, scored on a 20-yard run to put Armstrong in front in the third quarter. Armstrong's center, with the same name as another movie star, Robert Taylor, threw the key block for Powell.

Parker-Gray snapped right back late in the same quarter. An Alexandria back with the same monicker as former Redskin ace, Wilbur Moore, supplied the punch with a 45-yard touchdown pass, Charlie Ward, an end with a less famous name caught the pass.

GW Runner Wins Cross-Country

George Washington High's Tom Williams was the indvidual winner in the first annual invitational cross-country meet yesterday at George Washington. He ran the two-mile course in 2:6.5.

Baltimore Poly was the team winner with 36 points. The Presidents were second with 45 points. Hampton, third, 76; McKinley Tech, fourth, 101.

Umpire Owens Dead at 64

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP).—Clarence "Brick" Owens, 64, retired American League umpire, today collapsed and died of a heart attack in the offices of a firm which he served as a salesman.

Owens officiated in the American League for 22 seasons from 1916 through 1937. He participated in five world's series.

Middleburg Hunt Races Set Today

By Harry De Mawby Jr.

Middleburg, Va., Nov. 11.—The Middleburg Hunt Race Association will usher in its thirteenth annual fall race meeting at 2 p. m. tomorrow on the famous Glenwood Park Race Course, estate of Daniel C. Sands, near here.

The fall meeting marks the renewal of the Mary Mellon Memorial Steeplechase run over a hazardous brush course of about 2½ miles. Topping the list of 10 probable starters that have been nominated for the classic is the late Crispin Oglebay's Lock and Key, winner of the $10,000 added Chevy Chase Handicap at Laurel on October 20, and prepost favorite for today's gruelling test. Harry LaMontague's Larky Day has been assigned the top weight of the field at 156 pounds and is expected to give the favorite a tough battle by virtue of his brilliant win the Belmont Stakes this fall.

$40,500 Paid For Yearling Colt at Pimlico

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 11.—Harry La Montagne, New York sculptor, paid $40,500 for an unnamed yearling colt by Blenheim 2d—On The Level at the dispersal sale here today of horses formerly owned by the late Crispin Oglebay, Ohio sportsman.

This was reported to be the highest price of the year for a thoroughbred yearling.

The surprise of the auction, conducted by Humphrey Finney, field secretary of the Maryland Breeders' Association, was the sale of Noble Impplse, 3-year colt, who was third in this year's Preakness to Justin Funkhouser for only $18,000.

Coach Margarita Plans Change in Offensive Backs

GW Frosh Beat Terps

George Washington's freshman football team avenged last week's varsity defeat by whipping Maryland's frosh, 18-13, yesterday at College Park.

Pint sized Bino Barreira and lanky Jack Baumgartner sparked the unbeaten Colonials to their third victory. The little Terrapins' loss was their first in five games.

A one-yard Baumgartner to Doonie Waldron flat pass in the third quarter gave G. W. the deciding touchdown.

The Colonials scored first in the opening period on a 50-yard march, climaxed by Barreira's one yard line buck. A 30-yard Joe Petruzzo to Lou Wiedersaul pass tied it up for Maryland, and Jack Scarbath's conversion put the Terps ahead, 7-6.

Scarbath's 45-yard toss to Lloyd Colteryham in the second quarter gave Maryland another score and stretched its lead to 13-6. A Baumgartner to Barreira five yard aerial in the second quarter capped a 55-yard G. W. march and brought its point total to 12.

Abstract, $22.20 Shot, Wins Pimlico Feature Race

5-Horse Field

2½-Mile Pimlico Cup Listed Today

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 11.—Eighteenth running of the Pimlico Cup, over the long route of 2½ miles, headlines the final Saturday program of the Maryland Jockey Club's meeting tomorrow (the session ends next Thursday) and a group of five noted distance runners will furnish the contest.

Equal high weights in the field will be Pilaster and Stud Poker under assignments of 120 pounds while just under them is Blue Hills with 119. Then comes Going Away with 111 and Bayeux with 110.

Blue Hills and Going Away will be coupled as the Brookmeade Stable entry. Pilaster races in the colors of F. A. Bonsal to whom all the horses of the late H. L. Straus have been leased pending their permanent disposal. Stud Poker will carry the colors of E. E. Voynow and Bayeux races for C. Mahlon Kline.

The entry looms as the likely public choice in this longest race on the American turf calendar for Blue Hills was the winner here on opening day of the Governor Bowie Handicap at a mile and three quarters. Prior to that, the 3-year-old had finished second in the Survivor and Lawrence Realization and third in both the Shevlin and Cavalcade.

His running mate, Going Away won the Yankee handicap and was second in the Massachusetts and Washington handicaps.

Chief contenders will be Pilaster, who was second to Blue Hills in the Governor Bowie and Stud Poker,

Merry Risk Trails by Two Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 11.—With Friendly Frank, the favorite, finishing like an arch enemy, longshot players had their innings when D. T. Swidler's Abstract won the Busy American, featuring the Armistice Day program watched by a crowd of 16,000.

Abstract, paying a $22.20 mutual, came from behind to win by two lengths from Mrs. M. Owesley's Merry Risk with A. J. Wilson's Arthur Pilate third in the field of six.

Friendly Frank was a tired colt at the end after a front-running duel with Whiffenpoof which tossed away the chances of both. Apparently Walter Taylor and Jimmy Lynch, the rival jockeys, had the same instructons—go to the top.

Abstract Has Punch in Stretch

Both got their mounts to the front but only after pushing the 3-year-olds to the limit. In the head-and-head battle for the pace, the pair clicked off time of .23 for the quarter, .46 1/5 for the half and 1:11 for three quarters.

The strenuous speed efforts cooked the goose for Friendly Frank and Whiffenpoof as they entered the stretch. Abstract swung to the inside and Merry Risk went to the outside. They wore down the weary leaders. In the final drive, Abstract, well handled by Apprentice Samuel Boulmels, had the most punch.

Cedric Wins at $404

Abstract was clocked in 1:44 1/5 for the mile and a sixteenth and the victory was his fifth in 19 starts this year, bringing his earnings close to the $15,000 mark.

In the day's closest finish—a blanket affair involving four horses—Mrs. O. L. Nyberg's Cedric won the fifth race. The 3-year-old who won at Laurel to the tune of $404 was up in the final jump today and returned $55. Jockey Robert J. Martin was again in the saddle.

Civil Service Sends U. S. Agencies 6-Point Promotion Program

The Civil Service Commission has taken the initiative in the development of a long-needed promotion system for Federal workers.

A single uniform promotion plan for all agencies isn't proposed. Instead, each agency will have the authority to develop its own particular program within the general standards laid down by Civil Service.

The commission is the first to admit that some agencies have excellent promotion plans. On the other hand, little attention is paid to promotions by several agencies and employe morale has sagged in them as a result.

A six-point proposal promotion program was sent to Federal agencies and employe representatives yesterday by Civil Service for their comments. The program, subject to change, is as follows:

1. The promotion plan should be put down in writing and be made available to all employes;
2. The best qualified and available people should be selected to fill vacancies on a merit basis;
3. Promising employes should be offered advice and assistance in preparing for higher-grade jobs;
4. Promotion standards should not be less than Civil Service's minimum standards for the vacancies;
5. An orderly system for the release of employes selected for promotions should be worked out, and,
6. The method of evaluating employes' qualifications should be applied uniformly within the recruiting area to all interested employes who meet the minimum promotion requirements.

Chairman Harry B. Mitchell emphasized that the establishment and maintenance of an adequate promotion system is vital to a well-rounded career service.

It's significant that no mention is made of seniority in the proposed program. Seniority still is used as the basis of promotions in a number of agencies. The commission program is a good start.

LETTER: A classified employe recently wrote an influential member of Congress to ask why postal employes were given more favorable legislation by Congress than classified people. The member's reply contains a good tip for Federal employes. It follows in part:

"You ask why Congress has consistently given postal employes more generous pay raises than classified workers. Your inquiry deserves a thoughtful reply and I shall try to give it to you.

"You suggest the reason is that postal employes are more highly organized and have more effective unions. This condition has had some influence on certain of my colleagues, to be sure, but I am certain it was not a decisive factor in our actions.

"I believe the main reason for our more favorable treatment of postal employes is the fact that they are active and respected citizens of the communities in which they live and work. Postal employes vote in all primaries and elections and they cherish this rare privilege. My experience with classified workers, and many of my colleagues hold to the same view, is that too few of them exercise their democratic right to cast their ballots in free elections.

"I have instructed my staff to ask Federal workers from my State who come to my Washington office for assistance to inquire where they vote. They have many excuses but a minority of them admit to voting. I have a Federal activity in my State where more than 12,000 persons were once employed. Fewer than 400 of them voted in the district where the establishment is located when I was last elected. It isn't easy for us who depend on the ballot for our careers to feel kindly toward those who are employed by our Government but who refuse to exercise its basic right. . . ."

STATE: Val Lorwin and Dan Horowitz have each taken a year's leave from State's labor division to go to France and Italy respectively to write books for Harvard College on the labor movements in those countries.

2 From D.C. Die, 4 Hurt In West Va. Auto Crash

Accident Occurs On Downgrade of Mountain; Group on Way to Funeral

A Washington housewife and a 6-year-old child were killed and four other local residents injured seriously on the way to a funeral yesterday when their car went out of control on a Cheat Mountain downgrade near Erwin, W. Va.

Dead in Memorial Hospital in Cumberland, Md. were Mrs. Claudia A. Hall and John Webb, jr., 6, both of 1430 S st. se., attaches reported.

Listed as in serious condition were G. A. Hall, 65, husband of the dead woman; Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Yelbington, both 60, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Hall, and Edith Ann Webb, 13, sister of the dead youth and daughter of the Yelbington's daughter, also of the S st. address.

Hall, a florist who came to Washington from Florida several years ago, started out from Washington yesterday around 9 a. m. to attend the funeral of a relative in Louisville, Ky., with the five others, a neighbor reported. She said that he drove his 1949 Pontiac car.

The Associated Press reported that the car was traveling west on U. S. Highway 50 when the brakes failed to hold. The car sheared off one tree, and hit another before finally coming to a halt, the Associated Press said.

Occurred at 3:10 P. M.

Allegany County Deputy Medical Examiner Dr. H. V. Deming said the accident occurred around 3:10 p. m., at the foot of a 3-mile mountain incline. He said that Mrs. Hall was driving the car, and investigation showed the brakes burned out. The car failed to take a curve, he said.

The occupants were taken to Memorial Hospital about 60 miles from the accident, the examiner said. On route, around 6 p. m., Mrs. Hall died. They were admitted at 6:30 p. m., and the boy died at 9:10 p. m., he said.

Dr. Deming said Webb was in most serious shape with head injuries, while the others were in critical condition.

Drive Begun For Signers To Force Out D. C. Rule Bill

Committee Picked To Direct Petition Appeals to House Members at Home

A "back-home" drive to line up congressional signatures that could force a House vote on the Washington home rule bill was launched yesterday at a luncheon meeting of representatives of District and national groups.

The home rule bill, which would give Washington a reorganized city government headed by a representative council and city manager, was tabled by the House District Committee after clearing the Senate.

The main aim of yesterday's meeting was to muster 218 members of the House to sign a petition by Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) that would take the bill out of the hands of the District Committee and present it for a House vote.

The petition has been signed by 47 members. Final action of the luncheon conference was appointment of a committee, headed by Wilbur Finch, former president of the Central Suffrage Conference and of the Federation of Citizens Associations, to appeal to the members of the House, while they are at home, to sign the petition when they return in January.

Plans were also mapped for enlisting the help of national organizations to ask House members in their home districts to sign the discharge petition.

The group heard William A. Roberts, Washington attorney who formerly served as District People's Counsel before the Public Utilities Commission, declare that the work of the Washington Board of Trade against the home rule bill had been of major effect in preventing passage.

He said the reason for Board of Trade opposition was that "the people who operate the machinery of District government are much better off financially and emotionally without local suffrage than they would be with it."

He said the first task of the home-rule supporters is to recognize their real opposition within the District, and challenge it. As for the petition, he predicted, "You'll almost get the 218 signers, but not quite; too many paid lobbyists up at the Capitol can get around faster than you."

Culver B. Chamberlain, president of the Central Suffrage Conference, who presided at the meeting, said that "having no votes, we are in a poor position to demand things from Congress; the most cogent way to influence them is through those that do have votes."

Tilford E. Dudley, assistant director of the CIO Political Action Committee, pledged that his organization would work from now to January "in the districts where we have any influence" to enlist House signers for the discharge petition. He urged trying to get at least 100 more signers the first day Congress opens and said it is "95 percent sure" that the necessary 218 can be obtained.

Herbert P. Leeman, newly elected president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said "I'm going to use all the influence I have to see that the home rule bill is passed . . . I believe we have the power at this time as never before to get the bill passed by the House.

Among other speakers were Woolsey W. Hall, former president of the Federation of Civic Associations; Jesse B. Manbeck, Central Suffrage Conference; Miss Kate Alfriend, Washington chapter, Americans for Democratic Action; Mrs. Helen Duey Hoffman, American Association of University Women; Mrs. John C. McClintock, D. C. League of Women Voters; Mrs. Frances Adams, Washington ADA; Robert Taylor, editor of the Washington edition of the Pittsburgh Courier; Elmer S. Kyler, Pleasant Plains Civic Association; Alex Weinstein, Antidefamation League of B'nai B'rith, and Mrs. Richard Freund of the Central Suffrage Conference.

Kirkland Decided, When Young, to Become U. S. Judge

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

(Sixth in a Series)

His friends insist it was at age 5, when his father, a court official, took him to his first trial, that James R. Kirkland first decided to be a Federal judge. Kirkland himself is inclined to be more conservative. The final decision, he believes, may not have come until he was 10.

At that time, being in the 4th grade in Toner School here, James Robert Kirkland wrote a composition outlining how, as a step toward the public bench, he planned to be a lawyer.

By 18, everyone agrees, the judicial ambition was in almost uncontrollable flower. Too young yet for an appointment, Kirkland wrote a vicarious high school play, "Good Morning, Judge," with a fat, gavel-pounding title part — played, naturally, by himself.

Good Morning, Your Honor

As Kirkland, at 46, starts receiving the greeting "Good Morning, Your Honor" in real life, it marks another orderly—almost inevitable, it would seem—sequence in the years of a man who has planned that life as finely as the most careful architectural blueprint.

Kirkland's blueprint has included being "big man on the campus," lawyer, CPA, naval officer, Rotarian, Shriner, law professor, prominent church layman, fervently active Washington civic leader. An integral part is his claim: "With all the people I've known, I've never found a person I've disliked."

Twenty-one of those 46 years have been spent in the practice of law—16 in private practice, five as a prosecutor. As a lawyer, Kirkland was described by a former associate as "very smooth, not sensational, a very hard worker—a man who prepared his cases well."

As assistant United States District Attorney, he prosecuted many a bootlegging case. Once he convicted a man of "assault with a deadly weapon"— a hambone.

A 'Progressive Republican'

While "not sensational," Kirkland—in court and out—has been an intense disciple of the spoken word. Once, in the same court where he now becomes a judge, he prosecuted a case involving sale of copyrighted song-sheets without permission of the copyright owners. One of the songs was the popular ditty, "Three Little Words."

Kirkland delivered a fervid and extended summing-up in which he referred repeatedly to the "three little words" ("I love you"), ending with this plea to the jury: "I expect when you return to hear three little words: 'Guilty as indicted.'"

The judge, impatient at the length of the summation, declared, in essence, that it had taken Kirkland one hell of a long time to sum up three little words.

Footnote: The jury brought in the verdict Kirkland had requested.

A Washington resident since age 6, Kirkland describes himself as a "progressive Republican." Here again, he has produced colorful language over the years to express his views on a number of issues.

He has spoken of the "majestic Capitol, whose shadow cast by the rising sun falls on one of the worst slum areas in the East."

A Native of Delaware

A relentless fighter for District home rule, he has declared, for example, that Washington has "the finest airport anywhere" of which the city "doesn't own one grain of sand, one blade of grass or collect one penny of revenue."

As an Episcopal layman, he has vociferated against vice and the "hush-hush" attitude toward venereal diseases. "Educate, medicate and litigate. Give the present generation high school instruction in venereal diseases. Require medical certificates as a prerequisite of marriage. Punish the failure to take proper medical care . . . The prostitute should be 'vagged' one day, tried the next, and sentenced immediately."

Born in Wilmington, Del., where his father, William J. Kirkland, worked in the county clerk's office, Kirkland was "almost raised in the courtroom." Kirkland senior came to Washington in 1909 as a deputy U. S. marshal, a job he held for 35 years, in the same court his only child now goes to as judge and where he put in frequent and fascinated sightseeing appearances from age 6 on.

Father-and-Son Team

At 79, the elder Kirkland still is active as a clerk with the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. here, a new career he undertook at 73. Father and son form an usher team at Washington Cathedral.

The circumstance of Kirkland's now becoming a judge in the court where his father was a marshal gives especial satisfaction to both men. For the father had judicial ambitions for his son, too. And the son says: "I always hoped I would make this one particular court because he was in it."

His career blueprint sent Kirkland scurrying through night classes at an accountancy school here — he believes he's the only CPA ever appointed to the Federal bench—while working for the Government in the daytime until he had saved $4500. Eternally a man in a hurry, he used this money to get three degrees from George Washington University in 4½ years.

Between his graduation from G. W. and now it has been a poor year when Kirkland has not added another job or two to whatever ones he held at the time.

A mere tabulation would crowd a half column of type, but they include such things as being a founder of the junior bar here, first vice president of the General Bar Association, president of a citizen's association, chairman of the Board of Trade's Committee on Public Utilities, chairman of the Washington Speakers Bureau in three war bond drives, professor of criminal law and procedure, then of the moot court at his alma mater.

He's a Television Fan

The latter job sprang in rather typical, whole-born fashion. One evening the law dean phoned Kirkland that a professor had quit, would he take over? At 9 o'clock next morning Kirkland was teaching his class.

Typical, too, of his genius for developing friends across party lines is the fact that a Republican Eightieth Congress named Kirkland as counsel for the Senate District Committee, a Democratic Eighty-first Congress continued him in the job.

Kirkland, a black-haired, glasses-wearing man of medium build, dons the black robes from his private law practice as a member of the firm of Cromelin, Townsend and Kirkland, National Press Building. His personal office has been a small breeding ground for District judges: Bolitha Laws, now Chief District Judge, once occupied it. From the walls there looks down a picture of Lincoln and a quote from the Great Emancipator: "A lawyer's time and advice are his stock in trade."

Kirkland lives at 1519 Underwood st. nw., with his wife and three children: Margaret, 11; William, 7, and Carol Jean, 4. Mrs. Kirkland's father was the late Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, who was assistant superintendent of Washington schools.

The closest thing Kirkland has to a hobby is television. The whole family joins him, particularly where Western pictures are concerned.

"The only thing, they come on between 6 and 7—right at the height of the dinner hour. We get a few mouthfuls, then finish off dessert in the living room. They ought," the new judge believes, "to start those programs at 5."

The duties of a District judge will call for Kirkland to drop many of his activities. He expects to continue his professorial duties at George Washington University—after conducting a real-life court by day he'll preside over a moot court there one night a week. Lawyers in his real court might get a few hints by dropping around to the moot version.

They'll hear Judge Kirkland tell how to select juries, including the advice that the defense always should try to keep butchers and undertakers off the jury and put matronly women on.

They may hear also some interesting by-play between judge and class.

Once Kirkland was lecturing on the subject of rape. He told the class that if consent is given tardily, it negates the substantive crime of rape, but the charge of assault with intent to commit remains. The hand, it may have been of a future attorney-general, shot into the air.

"Does the consent have to be in writing?" the student asked.

Maryland U. Fires One Student Rioter

One University of Maryland student was expelled yesterday for participating in the Thursday night football rally riot near the campus and others face similar action if identified. Name of the expelled youth was not disclosed.

This was announced yesterday by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the institution, who called the riot, on the Washington-Baltimore blvd., "inexcusable" and promised grimly that no other such incidents will occur in the future.

A faculty committee, headed by Dean of Men Geary Eppley, appointed to investigate the riot, has recommended that no further football pep rallies be held.

Dr. Byrd did not subscribe to this view, saying that there undoubtedly will be others.

"They will be under strict control," he said. "Nothing like this will happen again. You can bet your sweet life on that."

Joseph D. Tydings, son of Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.), who is president of the student government, issued a public apology yesterday for the riot which entailed a huge bonfire on the highway, blocking of traffic, and rocking of private cars by the students.

"On behalf of the executive council of the Student Government Association," he said, "I express the chagrin and regret of the student body of the University of Maryland for the actions of a minority student group on Thursday night.

"Plans had made by the student rally committee, which had been successful for preceding rallies, toward halting any such demonstration. I wish to apologize for the inconvenience imposed upon autoists traveling on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard."

Other developments following the riot were:

Estimate Cut

1. Dr. Byrd estimated the number of students present at "500 to 600" instead of the 2000 reported by police and spectators.

2. The five-man campus police force began an intensive search for student participants in the riot in addition to the one expelled. Dr. Byrd said the officers are certain they can recognize some of the youths if they see them, though they do not now know their names.

3. Lieut. M. M. Puncke, in charge of the State police barracks at Waterloo, said State police will confer with Dr. Byrd on steps to avoid a recurrence of the riot.

4. Student Government Association officials disclosed that after a smaller disturbance two weeks ago following a football rally, they asked State police and others to arrest student participants in any such demonstration. Even if no legal charges could be placed, they wanted boisterous offenders brought to university authorities for disciplinary action. The student group last night was not certain if a copy of the request had reached police other than through publication in the university paper.

5. Lieut. Puncke said that State troopers did not have orders against arresting the students but "we have tried to handle these situations, straightening them out in a manner to create the least possible resistance and trouble."

The entire fracas was touched off when the students streamed from the football rally in the rear of Anne Arundel Hall, across the campus to the highway. The rally was held in advance of departure of the university football team yesterday for Boston, where it will play Boston University today.

Rape Attempt

D.C. Man Gets 10 Years in Maryland

A 41-year-old District mechanic was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland penitentiary yesterday by the Prince Georges County Circuit Court following conviction of attempting to rape a 38-year-old waitress.

Henry S. Duke, 814 E. Capitol st., was found guilty of assault with attempt to commit rape by an all-male jury which deliberated only 50 minutes before returning its verdict. The jury failed to recommend against capital punishment, making Duke subject to a possible sentence of death by hanging.

Court officials said it was the first time in recent years a jury has failed to include a recommendation for mercy in a case of this nature.

Good Record Helps

In sentencing Duke, Judge John B. Gray, jr. told the defendant he would not impose the maximum penalty because of Duke's previously spotless police record. He said, however, the offense called for stern punishment to serve as a warning to others who would "yield to the temptation of their lustful inclinations."

Duke was accused of attacking and brutally beating the waitress on a secluded road near Suitland, Md., the night of August 1. The couple had m t for the first time a few hours earlier in a restaurant in Southeast Washington, according to testimony.

The attractive blonde complainant testified Duke forced her from the automobile and attempted to rape her after she refused his request that she commit an unnatural act with him. During the struggle she suffered a bloody nose and a laceration above her right eye which also was blackened, testimony revealed.

Arrested at Scene

Duke was arrested at the scene by police called by a man living nearby who said he heard the young woman screaming. Four policemen testified Duke was with the woman when they arrived and was pulled to his feet by one of the officers.

Duke contended that he had forced the waitress out of the car and slapped her because he was "insulted" when she asked that he commit an unnatural act. He said he realized that he had hurt the woman and was attempting to lift her up and place her in his car when police arrived.

Two More Polio Cases Bring D. C. Total to 103

Two cases of polio were reported in the District this week, bringing the city's total for the year to 103. Total number of cases reported in the Greater Washington Area this year is 226.

New cases were a 2½-year-old girl, 1600 block of P st. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital; and a 24-year-old woman, 2300 block of 31st st. ne., admitted to Gallinger Hospital.

Number of District cases reported at this time last year was 126.

Completion Of Baltimore Road Sought

With the proposed use of Baltimore's Friendship International Airport to relieve air congestion here, as an incentive Representative George H. Fallon (D., Md.) renewed yesterday his plea to President Truman for funds to complete the Washington-Baltimore Parkway.

The huge Friendship Airport, about 8 miles south of Baltimore, is expected to be completed and opened next year. A special strip of highway connects it with the partially-built Washington-Baltimore Parkway.

Congress failed at the last session to appropriate the necessary 11 million dollars for completion of the parkway.

"The recent accident at the National Airport shows conclusively that there must be some immediate additional airport facilities," Representative Fallon wrote to the President yesterday. Baltimore has the Friendship International Airport. Use of it has been offered. It has been pointed out that when the Washington-Baltimore Parkway is completed, Friendship will be but 30 minutes, or less, from the center of Washington.

"May I urge you, Mr. President, "that you include in your budget message for the second session of the Eighty-first Congress an item providing for the construction and completion of the parkway. While we are engaged in a cold war at the present time and the thought of evacuation is remote, in an emergency the parkway would be a direct link from the port of Baltimore to the Nation's Capital."

Man's Shotgun Death Is Ruled Suicide

Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the shotgun death Thursday of Oscar Detwiler, 69, of Clifton, Va.

Detwiler, a retired farmer who police said had been despondent recently because of poor health, died of a shotgun wound in the head. He was found about 1 p. m. Thursday near an outbuilding at his home by a daughter and pronounced dead on arrival at Arlington Hospital.

Manor Park Citizens Group Marks 26th Anniversary

The Manor Park Citizens Association celebrated its twenty-sixth anniversary last night with a banquet at the Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse st. nw.

On hand to help enliven the festivities as master of ceremonies was Ernest H. Pullman who became president of the Manor Park Citizens Association when it first organized. He outlined the growth and development of the organization. Homer J. Smith, Pullman's 1949 successor, also spoke.

Among the 160 persons at the banquet were Herbert P. Leeman, newly elected president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; A. J. Driscoll, member of the Board of Public Welfare; and Miss Elsie Green, principal of the Whittier School.

The turkey dinner was cooked and served by the Brotherhood of Albright Church under the supervision of C. M. Dixon, president of the Brotherhood.

Miss Loraine Griggs, a singer; Miss Evelyn Ullmer, organist; Robert Lauthan, accordionist, and George Allen's band supplied the music.

John D. Smoot, Harry B. Moss, Herbert Powell and Harry G. Corcoran served on the banquet committee.

Choral Opera Group To Rehearse Tonight

The choral group of the Opera Guild of Washington will rehearse tonight at 7:30 at the United Nations Club, 19th and R sts. nw., Miss Dorothy Remington, director, announced yesterday.

The group is to prepare for the first project sponsored by the Guild. Miss Remington said persons may have auditions for the group after the rehearsal, or on any succeeding Saturday night.

Humphreys, Meteorologist Dies at 87

Mr. Humphreys

He had been professor of meteorological physics at the Weather Bureau from July 1, 1905 to his retirement in 1935. He had served as collaborator there since 1936. He also had been professor of meteorological physics at George Washington University from 1911 to 1934, when he was made professor emeritus.

Dr. Humphreys was born in Gap Mills, W. Va. He received his A. B. and C. E. degrees from Washington and Lee University. He was graduated from the School of Physics and Chemistry at Johns Hopkins University in 1889 and received his Ph. D. degree there in 1897. The University of Virginia gave him an honorary Doctor of Science degree in 1942.

An instructor of physics at the University of Virginia from 1897 to 1905, Dr. Humphreys then served for the next three years as director of the research station at Mount Weather, Va. He came to Washington in 1908. He lived at 1026 15th st. nw.

Joined Sumatra Expedition

In 1901, he was a member of the Naval Observatory's Eclipse Expedition to Sumatra, and in 1904 was secretary of Physics of the Electron, International Congress of Arts and Sciences in St. Louis.

He was an editor of the Journal of the Franklin Institute, editor of the Monthly Weather Review, and special editor and contributor to Websters New International Dictionary, second edition.

Dr. Humphreys was a fellow of the American Physics Society, the Optical Society of America, the Astronomical Society of America, the Seismological Society of America and the American Association for Advancement of Science, where he held several offices including that of general secretary from 1924 to 1928.

He was a member of the American Mathematical Society and the American Meteorological Society, serving as the latter's president in 1928-29. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, and the American Geophysical Union, serving as its chairman from 1932-35.

Other Scientific Affiliations

Dr. Humphreys was a member of the Franklin Institute, the Philosophical Society of Washington (president 1919), the Washington Academy of Science (president 1922), Phi Beta Kappa, and Sigma Xi.

He was a coresponding member of the Meteorological Society of Hungary and the State Russian Geographic Society. He was also a member of the Cosmos Club (president in 1936 and chairman of the weekly program committee for 17 years).

He was the author of numerous books, including "Physics of the Air,", 1920; "Weather Proverbs and Paradoxes," 1923; "Rain Making and Other Weather Vargaries," 1926; "Frogs and Clouds," 1926; "Snow Crystals" with W. A. Bentley, 1931; "Weather Rambles," 1937; "Ways of the Weather," 1942; "Fogs, Clouds and Aviation," 1943, and an autobiography "Of Me," 1947. He also contributed to many technical journals.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Antrim Humphreys, and a sister, Mrs. Rosa Bywaters, of Ashland, Ky.

Funeral services and burial will be in Maplewood Cemetery, in Charlottesville, Va., today at 2 p. m.

Patton Is Lauded As Greatest U. S. Combat General

The late Gen. George S. Patton, jr., was described here last night as America's greatest combat general.

The tribute came from both Col. Robert S. Allen, Washington columnist, and George Craig, national commander of the American Legion. Both spoke at a dinner in the Continental Hotel sponsored by the George S. Patton, jr., Tank Corps Post, No. 19, American Legion, in honor of the general's November 11 birth date.

Colonel Allen, who served on Patton's staff during World War II, said the general was a controversial figure "because he was a fantastically honest man, who would say what he believed despite any consequences."

Commander Craig, in a surprise visit, told the post that General Patton's "confidence and integrity exemplifies the spirit that makes America and America's armies undefeatable."

Prince Charles de Bourbon

Seville, Spaine, Nov. 11 (AP).—Prince Charles de Bourbon, 79, brother-in-law of the late King Alphonso of Spain and father-in-law of the pretender to the Spanish throne, Prince Don Juan, died today at his home in Sevilla.

Mrs. Elise E. Gallaudet Dies; Memorial Service on Monday

Mrs. Elise Elderkin Gallaudet, 80, widow of Dr. Bern Budd Gallaudet, before his death in 1934 a professor of anatomy of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, died Thursday night at George Washington University Hospital.

Mrs. Gallaudet, who lived at the Cordova Apartments, 20th st. and Florida ave. nw., had been a patient for two weeks. Death was due to uremic poisoning.

The daughter of the late Col. William Anthony Elderkin, USA (ret.), she was also a granddaughter of the Rev. Phineas Densmore Gurley, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and spiritual adviser to President Lincoln during the Civil War.

A native of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Gallaudet was graduated from Monticello College, Alton, Ill., in 1888, and in 1894 was married to Dr. Gallaudet, the son of the Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, founder of the Gallaudet Home for Deaf Mutes in New York, and a nephew of Edward Miner Gallaudet, founder of the Gallaudet College for the Deaf here.

Mrs. Gallaudet was a member and a former officer of the New York Browning Society, and a member of the Women's National Republican Club of New York, the National Arts Club of New York and the Army-Navy Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution here.

Local survivors include a niece, Mrs. John O'Donnell, 1130 Chaplin st. se.; a nephew, William E. Huntington of the Cordova Apts., and a cousin, Miss Constance Eastman Adams, 5209 14th st. nw.

A memorial service will be held in the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., Monday at 2 p. m., following private cremation. Burial of the ashes will be at Mount Hope Cemetery, Hastings-on-The-Hudson, New York, on November 19. Friends and relatives are requested to omit flowers and instead send contributions to the Church of the Epiphany Women's Auxiliary.

Judge Harlan Dies; U. S. Tax Court Member

Judge Byron B. Harlan of the Tax Court of the United States died unexpectedly of a heart attack yesterday while visiting at the home of his son, Bruce Harlan, in Williamsport, Pa.

Harlan

Judge Harlan, who was 63 years old, had been appointed to the Tax Court in 1946. He made his home at 3618 Greenway pl., Alexandria.

A native of Greenville, Ohio, he received his bachelor of arts and law degrees from the University of Michigan. He was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1911 and practiced law in Dayton from then until 1931.

From 1931 to 1939 he served in Congress as a Democratic Representative from Ohio. From 1944 to 1946 he was United States district attorney for the Southern District of Ohio.

Judge Harlan was president of the Ohio Federated Humane Societies from 1927 to 1944 and was an honorary vice president of the American Humane Association. He was a member of the Ohio State Bar Association and the American Bar Association. He was a Mason.

Besides his son, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sada Harlan; another son, Commander Richard Harlan, USN, and a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Batrus.

Funeral services and burial will be in Dayton Monday afternoon.

Democracy Contest Won by Arabian Youth

A 17-year-old Arabian boy, who wants to become a doctor, yesterday won the Arlington-Falls Church "I Speak for Democracy" contest, at a luncheon meeting of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce, held at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

He is Rashid Abdu, tenth grade honor student at the Falls Church High School.

A recording of his speech will be forwarded to Richmond for a State-wide contest sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Radio Manufacturers Association, and the American Association of Broadcasters.

Rashid, whose home is in the mountain village of Aireem, in Yemen, Arabia, lives with Harlan B. Clark, State Department official of McLean, Va.

Provost Guard Now Called Armed Services Police

The Armed Services Police Detachment it will be known as, from here on out.

That is the unified name now applicable to the Provost Guard of the Military District of Washington, the Shore Patrol of the Potomac River Naval Command and the Air Police Unit of Headquarters Command, United States Air Force.

In announcing the change-over, the three services stated almost entirely new personnel will be used to staff the ASPD, with the exception of a "limited few" to be drawn from present police forces. Each of the services represented in ASPD will supply 33 enlisted men and two officers.

ASPD personnel must be at least 22 years old, 5 ft. 9 inches tall, high school graduates, and must have had some previous experience in police work.

Mme. Sophocles Venizelos to Visit Here

By Marie McNair

COMING TO Washington next week is Madame Venizelos, whose husband, Sophocles Venizelos, is the son of the Greek patriot, Eleutherios Venizelos, one-time Premier of Greece.

Madame Venizelos will be here but two days. She will be a guest at the cocktail party which the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis will give on Tuesday.

Sophocles Venizelos is a member of the Liberal Party, and Vice Premier and Minister without portfolio. He also is a member of the Greek delegation to United Nations.

At the Tuesday party will be Jean Desses, Greek-born Paris couturier, and Lilia Ralli, noted jewel designer.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES McSHERRY WIMSATT and Mr. and Mrs. Millard West were among those entertaining at dinners last evening, going later with their guests to the Friday Supper Dance at the Sulgrave Club.

CAPT. STUART BROWN, now on the retired list of the Navy, has left Washington for Newport, with Mrs. Brown. Their house on Hillyer pl. will be occupied by Mrs. Brown's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Bull, who in turn have leased their Georgetown house to Representative and Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, jr.

In Newport Captain and Mrs. Brown are occupying the guest house on the estate of the late Mrs. Paul FitzSimons. For sentimental reasons Mrs. FitzSimons' son, Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, had his mother's magnificent villa torn down following her death several years ago. However, the guest house is more than adequate for the Browns and the beautiful gardens are still intact.

YESTERDAY Engineer Commissioner, Brig. Gen. Gordon Young, and Mrs. Young, took advantage of the holiday to give a service party at their home in Wesley Heights.

About 125 guests were invited. Asked to take their turn at the tea table were Mrs. Stewart Bragdon, Mrs. Raymond Wheeler, Mrs. Roscoe Crawford and Mrs. Douglas Weart.

Then there was Mme. Grace Espaillat's cocktail party, the first of two, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Pierpont Hamilton Morgan had asked a few friends in for a drink and to meet Mrs. George Rowland of Boston, their weekend guest.

Capt. and Mrs. W. L. Hoffheins of the Navy gave a "despedida" for their daughter, Mrs. Robert Turner Styer, who is leaving for San Diego, Calif., to meet her husband, Ensign Styer, returning aboard the USS McKean after eight months in Japanese waters. About 50 friends of the Hoffheins and their daughter came yesterday to bid Mrs. Styer farewell.

Grace Espaillat who will entertain again this afternoon, had asked Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. Edward H. Conger and Mrs. Mildred Stenzel to assist.

THE AMBASSADOR OF THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, Dr. Luis Francisco Thomen, was host yesterday at a luncheon at the embassy in honor of Msgr. Francisco Lardone, Titular Archbishop of Rhizaeum and Apostolic Nuncio to the Dominican Republic and Haiti.

MR. AND MRS. JESS BRYON BENNETT entertained at one of a series of cocktail parties Thursday at their house in Georgetown. Honor guests on this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Braniff.

MRS. TRUMAN chats with the Rev. Bryan Green (left) and the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, at a luncheon given yesterday at the Shoreham to stimulate interest in the mission which Mr. Green will conduct at the Cathedral for nine days beginning Sunday. U. S. Called to Spiritual Leadership

By Sonia Stein

AMERICA was asked to lead "in a return to real living Christian faith" by the Rev. Bryan Green speaking yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington at the Shoreham Hotel.

Addressing the 500 members and their guests, including Mrs. Truman and Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, the British clergyman said that economic aid, such as the Marshall Plan, was second in importance to spiritual leadership. The current world unrest is not economic but "a moral and spiritual crisis at the heart of human nature and personality," he said.

The leadership may come from anywhere, Mr. Green emphasized, from the Christians in China, from the natives in New Guinea, from Europe or from the United States. But a return to the faith must come, he said.

To Conduct Mission

MR. GREEN who is in Washington to conduct a mission at the Washington Cathedral for eight evenings beginning Sunday, said the best plans can be spoiled by men and women who lack moral responsibility. He cited the case of a doctor working under the British socialized medical plan who appeared short and unsympathetic with the mother of an ailing child. People who lack judgment and responsibility about the demands they make on the doctor make him less human than he means to be, Mr. Green explained. He also remarked, parenthetically, that the English people are not as "fed up with the social security system as the press would have you believe."

In the hunt for security in which we behave "like frustrated ants" we need a faith to which we can give our utmost allegiance, the speaker said. Visiting American schools and colleges, Mr. Green has discovered that the students seem to have a "religion of confusionism." Americans say they expose their young people to all kinds of things, he continued, "and indeed you do!" "You expose them to poison as well as good meat and you can't blame them if they get poisoned instead of fed," he remarked.

"Expose them to the belief in God," he urged, pointing out that "agnosticism is not a fence you can sit on long."

Cites Choice of Faiths

PEOPLE HAVE the choice between faith which is a question mark, or a faith in a superpersonality, he explained.

Crediting the women present with having "intuitive sense" which would bring them to the mission, Mr. Green asked them to "do your stuff" and persuade the men to come, too.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, also urged the group to stir up interest in the mission. "There are multitudes in the church who have shabby, careless, undisciplined loyalty to the greatest faith to which man can pledge himself," he said.

The mission is open to people of all faiths—and to people with no faith, Mr. Green pointed out.

Seated at the head table with Mrs. Truman, Mr. Green, Bishop Dun, and Lady Franks, were Mrs. Dun, the Rev. Harold B. Sedgwick, chairman of the mission, and Mrs. Leonard Block, chairman of the luncheon, who introduced the speaker.

If You Can't Holiday at Home . . .

State Group Galas Will Allay Nostalgia

By Nicha Souré

IF YOU'RE unable to take a trip to the home State during the November holidays, do the next best thing. See the home folks at one of your State society get-togethers during the Armistice Day and the Thanksgiving Day weekends.

THE Minnesotans in Washington will be celebrating their State's Territorial Centennial with a dance at the Wardman Park Hotel November 19.

Gopher Staters will dance to the music of Barnee Lowe's orchestra and, in true pioneer tradition, there will be square dancing on the evening's program. Another feature of the entertainment will be the award of a prize to the person whose great or great-great grandparents lived in Minnesota when it was a territory.

Arrangements for this party are in charge of Rolland W. Stoebe, president of the society; Mrs. Stoebe, Mr. and Mrs. W. Allan Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Peye Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hedstrom.

THE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT is the latest Government division selected by the New York State Society to be honored in its series of "Government Department Nights" dances.

The dance will be held Saturday, November 19, at the Shoreham Hotel. Following a reception at 9:30 p. m., dancing to the music of Dave Williams orchestra will continue from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

A Commerce Department display will be presented outside the ballroom. Formal dress is preferred but not required.

For further information about the society or the dance, call the secretary, Miss Dorothy M. Gollinger, at Kenmore 3-5004 during evenings.

THE KEYSTONE Staters will be dancing together in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on Friday. The Pennsylvania State Society's dance will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

The society extends an invitation to students from Pennsylvania in local colleges. For further information, call Mrs. Algia A. Martin at Otis 7455 or Mrs. Ray J. Whitney at Glebe 2629.

SQUARE dancing is sweeping the country. The latest State society to join the "grab your partners and around you go" crowd is the Colorado group.

For an evening of square dancing, doughnuts and apple cider join the Colorado State Society party on Friday, November 18, at the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase. There'll be dancing from 8:30 p. m. to midnight. If you're worried about what to wear, make it informal, says the president of the society, Judge Norris Bakkee, and you'll be right in the party mood.

TONIGHT, the Tennessee State Society will be greeting new members at a dance in the Burgundy Room of the Wardma Park Hotel. The Volunteer Staters' party will begin at 10 p. m. and continue till 1 a. m.

Women Geographers To Hear Speaker

Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington will entertain the Society of Women Geographers at tea today. Mrs. Lydia Van Zandt, who has a record of more than 100,000 miles of air travel, will speak on her recent flights over the Scandinavian countries and the Middle East, during which she attended the U. N. Commission on the Status of Women in Lebanon and the Conference of the Arab Women's Federation.

Introducing Mrs. Van Zandt will be Mrs. Marie Peary Stafford, president of the Society of Woman Geographers, which includes in its membership women in more than 40 countries.

Cathedral Rite to Open Local Phase of YWCA's World Devotions Week

By Genevieve Reynolds

AS AN impetus to international fellowship and peace, worldwide devotionals will be conducted by the Young Women's Christian Associations in the United States and 66 foreign countries, commencing Sunday.

The week of prayer will open with afternoon vespers in YWCAs throughout the world. In Washington, the programs will be inaugurated by a national world fellowship service, Sunday 4 p. m., at National Cathedral. YWCA representatives and presidents from 40 communities will attend.

Mrs. Truman will receive the representatives and officers at a tea at Blair House following the cathedral service. Earlier in the day, the honor guests will be entertained at a dessert-coffee at which Mrs. Stevenson Evans, national chairman of World Fellowship Week, will be hostess. Receiving at the 1 p. m. get-together in Barker Hall will be Mrs. Arthur Forrest Anderson, president, YWCA of the United States; Mrs. Edward W. Macy, vice president of the national organization; Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, president of the District YWCA, and Mrs. Nelson T. Johnson, local vice president.

A delegation of 300 YWCAs from Baltimore, smaller groups from Gettysburg, Pa.; Orange, N. J., and Youngstown, Ohio, will attend the Cathedral services. Diplomatic row also will be represented.

During the vespers a world fellowship fund will be presented at the Cathedral. This money, raised by YWCAs in the United States, will be used to further the work of the organization in other countries.

Mrs. Truitt to Open Benefit

MRS. MAX TRUITT, daughter of the Vice President, will open a benefit antique show Monday, 11 a. m., at the Shoreham Hotel. The show is being sponsored jointly by B'nai B'rith Women's Argo and the D. C. Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

Fine porcelains, silver, and glass will be included in the exhibits organized by Mrs. John Freeman Brown. A punch bowl which was exchanged for food on the "flea market" in Paris and purchased by an organization member will be among the prize purchasables.

For the modern-minded there will be food delicacies galore. And there will be a white elephant table stacked high with all types of articles.

Proceeds from the show, which will run from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. Monday through Wednesday, will benefit the organizations' local and overseas charities.

Ask Anne

How to Finish Nubian Oak

Is there anything that could be done to stop an angora sweater from shedding? E. P. H.

Because angora yarn is made up of short fibers, loosely spun, it is bound to shed and, unfortunately, there isn't much which can be done to eliminate it. Placing the sweater in the refrigerator for an hour or two before wearing is supposed to be helpful.

Another method is to brush it before each wearing with one of the new plastic clothes brushes which, when used, develop static electricity and thus remove loose pieces of yarn. Of course, with this method care must be taken not to brush so hard that more than the loose pieces are removed.

Being a wife of a man with small salary and busy raising a family I had no time to train myself in any line of work. Now I am alone and can't find a job. The condition of my health doesn't permit me to take a position of a saleslady, which requires one to stand on one's feet all day long.

The idea came to me to open a little grocery store (I figure that in my own store I may sit once in a while) and I am wondering how to go about it and how much money one needs? I understand that I have to rent a little place for the store and then what? Do the wholesalers give their vegetables and canned food on commission or do they sell it to the storekeeper? And where can I find their addresses? I have only $200 in a bank. Can one start a business with this money? What kind? I would appreciate your suggestions very much. S. L.

I'm sorry, but I can't be very encouraging in regard to the possibilities of starting a grocery business with $200. In addition to your stock of groceries, you would have to have some store equipment, such as a refrigerator, cash register, a counter. For all of this you would need considerably more than $200.

If you are a good cook perhaps you could build up a nice business for yourself in your own home by baking to sell. The old saying that "the world beats a path to the door of a man who makes the best mouse trap" is still true today.

Think over the things you make in your kitchen that folks have liked: cakes, cookies, homemade bread, rolls, pies? Don't try to make them all, pick out one you do well and concentrate on that.

Here's an example: If you could make an especially cute gingerbread man with bright frosting buttons marching up his vest and a frosting hat cocked on his head, I believe mothers would pay a premium price for them for favors at children's parties.

Or, maybe you can make real old-fashioned homemade bread with a thick, crunchy crust and real flavor. Just let the folks in your neighborhood know about it and you will have some regular customers at your doorstep.

Of course, for this sort of business to be a success, your product has to be good and you have to have the food ready when folks want it. Use some of your $200 to buy attractive and appropriate wrappings such as cellophane bags for the cookies. To advertise your wares you could place small decorative cards on drug and apartment store bulletin boards in your neighborhood. Or, place an ad in your neighborhood paper.

If the baking idea doesn't seem a possibility, maybe you could do "baby sitting." Listed under "sitters—children" in the yellow pages of the telephone book are several firms which register women for "sitters."

I have a stroller which is in need of a few repairs. Perhaps you can advise a company doing this type of work. I called the store where it was purchased, but they do not have this service. M. H. M.

There is a firm on 18th st. which specializes in repair of all wheel goods, including strollers. It can be reached by calling CO. 9611.

The third-floor apartment in which I live has been invaded by a number of tiny brownish-red ants. They do not appear in large numbers, but seem to be present all over the apartment. Have you any suggestions? E. S. A.

You will not be able to rid your apartment of ants permanently until they are eliminated from the entire building. So the best approach to an apartment insect problem is through your building superintendent.

However, until you get those bigger wheels of administration rolling, you might do this on your own: Watch the ants for a while to see where they carry food after obtaining it. When their run has been determined, place an insect powder or repellent in the path. In this way the workers will possibly carry the poison back to the nest and in time the queen will be destroyed. One ant repellent comes in a heavy syrup form and is available at drug and hardware stores. A drop or so of this is placed on a piece of cardboard at night in the path of the ants and can be easily removed in the morning before a child gets into it. Should you find that the ants disappear into a crack in the woodwork or under a floor, squirt some liquid insecticide into the crack with an oil can to help destroy the nest.

Where can I get information on organizing and operating a "Women's Exchange"? The project is to be carried out by a charitable club. S. W.

"Try a Trading Post," an article in the September, 1946, issue of Parents' Magazine, will give you enough practical suggestions to start your exchange. This article is a detailed report on the activities of the Bronxville Parent-Teacher Association's answer to the wartime clothing shortage.

When started, theirs was considered only a wartime project, but it proved so profitable and was so well supported that it has been continued. The project enjoys a $7000 business each year, and all of it is done with the "trading post" open only one morning a week.

If you do not have a September '46 issue of Parents, you can read the article at a nearby library. If it doesn't answer all of your questions, I suggest you write direct to the Bronxville P-TA at Bronxville, New York.

Bryan Green Mission To Open Here Sunday

Months of planning and preparation by the Episcopal Diocese of Washington have gone into the Bryan Green Mission which will open at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Cathedral.

Plans for the mission began to take shape after the Rev. Bryan Green, rector of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, England, conducted a similar mission in New York last winter. The misison, held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, was so successful that it became known among Episcopalians there as "the miracle of New York."

Speaking of the mission, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop, of Washington, under whose direction all of the plans have been made, recently said, "We want to reach the spiritually half-alive fringe of all our churches, those who belong to us but who have never really found God or been found by Him."

In preparation for the mission, the cathedral and nearby St. Alban's Church have been carefully wired, so that large crowds will be able to hear the missioner even if they cannot see him.

At the services, the program will begin with half an hour of community singing, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Special booklets, containing familar hymns, have been prepared for this part of the mission.

While the singing is going on, Mr. Green will circulate among the congregation, accepting questions which he will later answer during the more formal part of the service.

In his talks, which will last about 40 minutes Mr. Green will try to relate the Christian faith to everyday life. He will consider such issues as: has the death of Jesus any value for modern America? Is Jesus God? Is the alternative to a Christian society an atheistic and secular society? and will also discuss friendship and marriage.

Following the services, Mr. Green and experienced church leaders will be available for personal counseling.

In addition to conducting the mission at the cathedral, Mr. Green will speak at services at noon Monday through Thursday at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches.

He will speak to the Washington Ministerial Union at Epiphany 10:45 a. m. Tuesday.

On Sunday he will appear at church services at several diocesan churches after speaking at Walter Reed Hospital and the Fort Myer Chapel. He will speak briefly at St. John's Church, Lafayette sq.; Ascension and St. Agnes, 12th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., and will preach the sermon at St. Thomas' Church, 18th st. between P and Q sts. nw.

Bishop of Virginia To Confirm Class Here

The Right Rev. W. Roy Mason, Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, will confirm a class of adults and children at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Epiphany, 2001 North Quincy st., Arlington, Va.

The class will be presented to the bishop by the Rev. John C. Henry, rector of the church.

Clergymen to Meet . . .

PLANNING CONFERENCE—The Rev. Bryan Green of Birmingham, England, and the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, discussing final plans for the nine-day mission Mr. Green will conduct here beginning Sunday at 8 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral. Mr. Green will also speak each day at 12 noon at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches

Religious Value Of Christmas Meeting Topic

Observance of Christmas as a religious holiday will be stressed at a Christmas conference for parents and workers with children from 3 to 5 p. m. at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Silver Spring.

The conference, seventh to be held, will be sponsored by the Children's Work Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Opening event in the program will be a dramatic worship service led by Mrs. Edward N. Bodholdt, emphasizing the celebration of Christmas in the home. The boys and girls choir from Calvary Baptist Church and a choric speaking group will participate in the service.

After the service, five groups will discuss the spiritual values of Christmas. The groups will be divided according to the age group with which the church workers are concerned, and will consider problems concerning nursery, kindergarten, primary, junior and parent education departments.

Mrs. Chester A. Hosmer is chairman of the children's work department and Mrs. Josephine H. Kyles is director of children's work of the federation.

Forum at YMCA To Discuss 'Biggest Job'

"The Biggest Job in the World" will be the subject of discussion Sunday morning for the International Crossroads Forum at Central YMCA, 1736 G st. nw.

L. T. Goodman, executive secretary of the Arlington, Va., branch YMCA, and formerly a mayor and police commissioner in New Jersey communities, will be the principal speaker. President Paul L. Brindle, who has returned from recent travels, will preside.

Shepherd Park Church to Note 50th Birthday

Shepherd Park Christian Church, 12th st. and Eastern ave. nw., will observe the golden anniversary of its founding with an all-day celebration Sunday.

The day's program will begin at 9:45 a. m. with a float rally in the Bible School. At 11 a. m. the Rev. William J. Lineback, general secretary of the Capital area for the Disciples of Christ, will give the anniversary sermon.

During the noon hour, the congregation will join in a basket dinner. A 50-pound birthday cake will be on display in the church auditorium, and later guests will receive a piece of it.

During the afternoon pastors of other Disciples of Christ Churches from Greater Washington, and neighborhood churches will bring greetings to the 50-year-old church.

At 6:30 p. m. there will be a youth rally and at 8 p. m. an evening service which will include a concert of sacred music. At the service a brief history of the church will be read and some of the material found in the cornerstone of the old building on Park rd. will be presented.

Formerly known as the Park View and Whitney Avenue Christian Church, the Shepherd Park church originally met in a small hall at what is now 623 Park rd. nw. At present services are held in the basement unit of a new church building begun in 1945. Members hope to complete the building next year.

The Rev. George M. Anderson has been pastor of the church for the past seven years. He came to Washington after serving at a church in Fostoria, Ohio.

Dr. Weigle To Preach Here

Dr. Richard D. Weigle, newly elected president of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., will preach at a laymen's service at 11 a. m. Sunday at Christ Congregational Church, 9525 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md.

At 8 p. m. there will be a social action forum, led by Dr. Ray Gibbons of New York, director of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches. The Rev. Thomas B. Keehn, legislative secretary of the denomination's Washington office, will be moderator of the discussion. The two services are part of a month-long program of dedication for the Silver Spring church.

New Church . . ..

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of the new First Baptist Church of Hyattsville, Md., for which ground will be broken on Sunday. The groundbreaking, at Longfellow st. and 42d ave., will follow a service at the present church building, Gallatin st. and 43d ave.

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new First Baptist Church of Hyattsville, Md., will take place Sunday afternoon.

The service will begin with worship at 3:30 p. m. at the present church, Gallatin st. and 43rd ave., Hyattsville, at which the Rev. Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention will speak.

Afterward the congregation will go to the site of the new church, Longfellow st. and 42d ave., about one half mile from the present building, for the ground breaking.

The Rev. Osgood to Preside

The Rev. Henry R. Osgood, pastor for the past eight years, will preside and members of the church and Sunday school boards and committees will take part in the ground breaking.

Organized in 1898 with 11 charter members, the church today has a membership of nearly 600. One of the original charter members, Miss Flora Davis, is still an active member of the church and serves on its board of trustees.

The ground breaking will mark the beginning of the final phase in the church's drive to raise $100,000 for its building fund by March 31, 1950. In October the church succeeded in going over the top in a drive to raise $1000 a month for 10 months.

To Cost $250,000

The new church building, designed by Paul Kea, a member of the congregation, will cost over $250,000. It will have an auditorium seating 400, an educational plant with departmental classrooms, a dining room, kitchen, pastor's office and office for the Sunday school secretary, and an assembly hall for 400.

The present church building, which seats only 200, has become inadequate for the needs of the expanding church, Mr. Osgood said. Church school classes at present must meet in rented quarters in the Odd Fellows Hall and the Masonic Temple in Hyattsville.

Church Plans Events to Fete Its Pastor

Members of Foundry Church (Methodist), 16th and P sts. nw., have planned a number of special events for the coming week to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris.

Harris

Dr. Harris, who came to Washington after serving churches in New York and New Jersey, is also chaplain of the United States Senate. He held the post from 1942 to 1947 and was reappointed in February, 1949.

Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, former dean of Drew Theological Seminary and former president of Northwestern University, will preach at an anniversary service at 11 a. m. Sunday. The Air Force Singing Sergeants will be featured at a musical program at 8 p. m. Sunday.

A service at 8 p. m. Wednesday will be followed by a reception for Dr. and Mrs. Harris in the recently remodeled and redecorated social hall of the church.

On Friday at 8 p. m., the "Pageant of Foundry" will be presented by the Foundry Players in the church dramatic hall. Afterward, an oil painting of Dr. Harris will be unveiled.

The presentation will be made by the Rev. Ralph C. John, former assistant pastor, who is now a professor at American University, and the acceptance by Dr. George B. Woods, president of the board of trustees.

Next Sunday will be Laymen's Day at Foundry. Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, former United States Civil Service Commissioner, who now is president of Ohio Wesleyan University, will speak.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, and Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, will exchange pulpits Sunday.

Dr. Cranford will speak at National City Church, Thomas cir., at 10:50 a. m., on "A Reconciling Faith." He will speak at his own church at 9 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Dr. Hastings will speak at Calvary Church, 8th and H sts. nw., at 11:15 a. m. on "Water From Home." The exchange is held each year to bring a better understanding between the two denominations, which are contemplating a merger.

November has been set aside as stewardship month at Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pls. se. Plans for the church's budget of $31,100 will be presented at services at 8:30 and 11 a. m. The church hopes to meet the goal by November 20.

Mme. Jan Papanek, wife of the former representative of Czechoslovakia to the United Nations, will speak at All Souls' Church (Unitarian), 16th and Harvard sts. nw., at 5:30 p. m. on work among Czechoslovak refugees. The talk will follow the opening organ recital of the season at 5 p. m.

Wilfred J. Mayo-Wells will be the lay reader at services at Transfiguration Episcopal Church, 1415 Gallatin st. nw., at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The Rev. J. J. Queally, the rector, will officiate and preach at the services.

Alfred leS. Jenkins, former member of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., who has been in diplomatic service in China for the past three years, will speak on "The Greatest Show on Earth" at 8 p. m. at the church.

National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., will observe United Stewardship Sunday at 9 and 11 a. m. services. The Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the church, will speak on "The Dimensions of Love."

"Adult Lessons From Problem Children" will be the subject of a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Seth R. Brooks at 11 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

First in a series of sermons on "Our Faith in God" will be given by the Rev. C. Stanley Lowell at 11 a. m. at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn sts. nw. It is entitled "What Is God?"

"What a Trade—God for Goets" will be the Rev. George E. Schnabel's sermon topic at 11 a. m. at Albright Memorial Church, Fourth and Rittenhouse sts. nw.

One hundred workers who will conduct the annual Every Member Canvass for Westmoreland Congregational Church, Westmoreland cir. nw., will be commissioned following the 11 a. m. service at the church.

London Vicar to Preach

Preaching at 11 a. m. Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq., will be the Rev. P. B. "Tubby" Clayton, vicar of All Hallows by the Tower, London, and founder of Toc H.

Mr. Clayton is touring the United States for the Winant Volunteers, a group of young people from American colleges who are working in the slums of London in memory of the late Ambassador John G. Winant.

St. Anselm's Priory To Mark 25th Year

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of St. Anselm's Priory, 14th st. and South Dakota ave. ne., will be marked at religious exercises in the Priory School auditorium Sunday.

At the same time the priory will mark its promotion to the status of a conventual priory, an independent monastery within the English Benedictine Congregation. The new status was approved by the Benedictine General Chapter and has been ratified by the Holy See.

At 10:30 a. m. Sunday the Right Rev. Wulstan Knowles, abbot of St. Benedict's Abby, Fort Augustus, Scotland, will celebrate a pontifical high mass. The abbot, one of the founders and first prior of St. Anselm's, came to the United States especially for the anniversary observance.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will preside at the ceremony and bestow a special papal blessing. The sermon will be delivered by the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

St. Anselm's Priory was formally established in September, 1924, by a small group of Benedictine monks. Their first monastery was a wooden building which had once been a sausage factory.

The present Priory buildings, opened in 1931, include the monastery, the monastic church, the school building and a gymnasium and auditorium. Since 1942 the monks of the community have conducted the Priory High School, a private school for boys.

At Cathedral

YWCA Group To Open Week Of Prayer

Members of the Young Woman's Christian Association will open a week of prayer and world fellowship with a national vesper service at 4 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Cathedral.

Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, radio preacher and minister of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, will be the speaker and Miss Polyna Stoska, Metropolitan Opera star, will sing.

Dr. Bonnell, who for 12 years has appeared on the radio program "National Vespers," will speak on "World Fellowship in Christ."

The Very Rev. John W. Suter, dean of the cathedral, will conduct the YWCA service.

It will open with a procession of the choir, girls from Washington embassies in their native costumes, and 51 young women in the blue and white uniforms of the "Y" to represent the 48 states and three territories of this country.

The girls representing the "Y" from this country will carry to the altar gifts of money which have been raised by local YWCAs during the past year to help carry on the organization's work in other countries.

After the service, Mrs. Harry Truman will entertain a small group of local and national YWCA leaders at tea at Blair House.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TIME CHANGES THE ROLES—Anton Preisinger (left), 37, sits in Oberammergau, Germany, town hall Tuesday during election of the cast in which he was chosen to play the lead role of Christ in the 1950 presentation of the historic Passion Play. Beside him is Alois Lang, 58, adjudged a minor Nazi follower, whom the villagers rejected for the role because of his age. The play, portraying the last days of Jerusalem is being resumed after a 16-year lapse, caused by the second World War. Lang will speak the prologue in the eight-hour performance

New Technique Reported for Heart Surgery

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, No. 11.—Dramatic successes with the new "finger-in-heart" surgery for hearts crippled by rheumatic fever were outlined here today by a young Philadelphia surgeon.

Dr. Thomas J. O'Neill, instructor in thoracic surgery at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, reported latest results of the daring operation to the College of Surgeons.

Since the operation was first performed on a human, 19 months ago, he said, 21 persons have undergone the delicate surgery. Twelve crippled and beridden for years before operations have made "complete recoveries," and are back to normal work and living, he reported.

Three others are regarded as "definitely improved," five died during the operations, and a twenty-first case, operated on only several days ago, still remains to be classified, he reported. Dr. O'Neill said three of the five deaths occurred during the first five operations, leaving only two deaths in the last 16 operations.

The operation, for rheumatic fever damage to the mitral valve of the heart, consists of entrance into the heart itself with a knife-lined finger. Once inside the heart, the surgeon's finger feels out fibrous growths which have almost frozen the valve. He then uses the curved, hook-ended knife to slice through the constrictions and restore function of the valve.

Takes Over Hour

Dr. O'Neill said the operation within the heart takes about five minutes, but the complete operations takes about an hour and a quarter. A purse string stitch about the hole in the heart wall prevents excessive bleeding and permits rapid closure when the surgeon withdraws his finger

The operation was devised by Dr. Charles P. Bailey, assistant professor at Hahnemann, aided by Dr. O'Neill and Dr. Robert P. Glover, also an instructor there.

Dr. O'Neill reported Dr. Otto Brantigan of Baltimore, professor of surgery at the University of Maryland, had performed a successful operation of the type.

Dr. O'Neill is 33 years old, Dr. Glover is 36, and their chief, Dr. Bailey, is 39.

Another speaker today, Dr. Robert P. Barden, Philadelphia radiologist, advocated more and earlier operations on the stomach to reduce the present high (95 percent) mortality rate of stomach cancers. Specifically, he recommended more surgery for patients with chronic inflammation of the stomach lining, which he terms a precancerous condition.

Polyp Surgery

Dr. Barden also urged further surgical attention be paid to polyps, ordinarily benign tumors, of the colon, since, he said, the polyps might easily degenerate into cancerous growths.

Tonight, seven Washington, D. C., doctors, including the President's physician, were admitted to the Congress as fellows or assistant fellows.

Admitted as fellows are Drs. Leonard S. Berman, Edward B. Tuohy and Ferdinand Welebir. Advanced from associate fellow to fellow are Drs. Harry F. Davies, Aaron H. Gerber and Wallace H. Graham. President Truman's personal physician.

Sole Washington, D. C., man admitted this year as an associate fellow was Dr. Norman P. Scala, e e specialist.

Viennese Surgeon Wins High Honor

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP).—A Viennese doctor, who believes "the unseen hand of God" helps make an operation successful, tonight was selected by the College of Surgeons for its highest honors, "Master of Surgery."

Dr. Hans Finsterer of Vienna was cited for his work in abdominal surgery with the use of local anethesia only.

Finsterer, 72-year-old professor at the University of Vienna, has performed more than 20,000 major operations, among them 8000 gastric resections (removal of part or al of the stomach) using only local anethesia.

Finsterer is to be a guest of President Harry S. Truman over the weekend.

U. S. Rests in Trial of Case Against Medical Group

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 11 (AP).—The Government rested its anti-trust suit against the Oregon State Medical Society yesterday.

The prosecution summarized its charges that the medical society conspired to monopolize prepaid medical care in Oregon, through its sponsored prepaid group plan, the Oregon Physicians' Service.

Philip Marcus, Washington, D. C., prosecutor, told the Federal Court the medical society employed "the weapon of boycott, disciplinary proceedings, refusal to admit to membership doctors who desire to associate themselves with prepaid medical care plans not approved by these defendants."

"Our documentary proof," Marcus declared, "shows that from the very beginning, those defendants have been motivated by economic interests, by the desire to either eliminate or restrict competition in the prepaid medical care business."

The defense asked for dismissal of the suit, but Judge Claude McCollough said he would not act on the motion until the defense presents its case. That will begin December 13, with a recess in the meantime.

Defense Attorney Nicholas Jaureguy told the court a medical society has a right to establish policies "and induce others to follow such a policy, as long as coercion is not used."

He argued the hospital associations attempted to control physicians' work. "Their control over the practice of medicine tends to debase and degrade the practice of medicine," he said.

Jaureguy also questioned whether the matter should come under antitrust laws at all: medical care, he argued, is not interstate commerce, and consequently should not be subject to Federal anti-trust law.

Dr. Schmidt to Preach

Dr. Raymond Schmidt, general superintendent of the National Civic League, will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at East Washington Park Free Methodist Church, 32d st. and Minnesota ave. se. His subject will be: "Is It Nothing to You?"

Ceremonies Set

Informal ceremonies marking the site of the new Catholic Church of the Little Flower will be held at 11 a. m. today.

The church has purchased more than 6 acres of land on Massachusetts ave. extended, between Westmoreland cir. and Goldsborough rd., for the new church, parish school, convent and rectory.

The present church was built in 1906 at Glen Echo, Md. The new site is nearer the geographical center of the parish. The Rev. Edward J. O'Brien has been pastor of the church for the past year.

Armed Services Surgeons Told By Matthews to Fulfill Unity

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Now that Russia has the atomic bomb secret, the spectre of the mighty weapon hangs over the United States, Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews declared last night.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, the Navy Secretary said the "force for the potential end of human society is within the possession" of both United States and Russia.

"Each has the secret of atomic energy. Each is building a stockpile of atomic bombs. Each is controled by a philosophy of human existence that is utterly irreconcilable with that of the other," he told 300 medical men from the United States and 22 foreign nations.

Then he warned, "One of the two boldly says that the two philosophies cannot survive in one world. That same nation has announced its program of world conquest. It has already encompassed vast areas and large populations within the sphere of its sordid influence.

"Is there anyone who can fail to perceive what that all means to America and the truly democratic nations throughout the world?" he asked.

"The right spark, ignited at the right moment in international relations, could launch the struggle for man's ultimate survival," Matthews told his Armistice Day audience at the Statler Hotel.

After citing the adoption of the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact as steps taken to meet this possibility, Matthews launched into armed services unification, which he has strongly supported in spite of intra-Navy dissension.

"It is in recognition of the threat suspended in the future which would convert our land to slavery of mind and body, that our national military policy has been so drastically modified," he said.

Unification "represents the most substantial alteration of our governmental structure since the Civil War. It advances our capacity for defense from a latent power to a state of readiness," Matthews said.

Already, the integration has resulted in "enormous savings," "increased efficiency," and "added effectiveness is promised," the top Navy man declared.

Secretary Matthews called on the surgeons in the three services to join "in the fulfillment of the unification program," pointing out that medical men were in a "vocation of consecrated service" in which patients have "first claim on your loyalty and devotion" and military duties "come next."

The principal obstacle in the path of unification of medical departments of the armed services has been "shortage of personnel," Rear Admiral H. L. Pugh, Deputy Surgeon General of the Navy, said earlier at the Military Surgeons convention.

He cited medical officer personnel, particularly, and said the "principal reason for this shortage was perhaps nothing more than the natural antipathy for the uniform services which follows all wars."

In spite of this, Admiral Pugh said, the Navy had "collaborated, coordinated and consolidated in a significant measure with the Army and Air Force, but we haven't merged."

Some of the present differences between the forces are "absurd," Admiral Pugh declared. He listed the disparity among the promotional systems of the three services and the inequality in ration rates, regulations on dependent care and provisions under which women doctors may be admitted to the Army and Navy.

At the annual dinner, Rear Admiral Joel T. Boone, outgoing president of the Military Surgeons, was presented with a life membership in the Society of American Military Engineers.

The Association's Gorgas Award was presented to Dr. H. Trenley Dean, head of the Dental Division, United States Public Health Service, for his research in use of fluorine in water. The Wellcome award was given to Lieut. Elliott S Hurwitt of the Naval Reserve for his study on establishment of a blood vessel bank under military conditions.

Association members will elect new officers at a final convention session this morning. Nominations committee candidates are: Col. William H. Triplett, Maryland National Guard, president; Dr. Robert C. Cook, Veterans Administration, first vice president, and Col. James M. Phalen, USA, ret., to continue as secretary.

Johnson Aide Discounts Fear VA Patients May Be Shifted

A top Defense Department medical official yesterday indicated Veterans Administration fears about possible removal of VA patients from service hospitals are ungrounded.

Dr. Richard L. Meiling, director of medical services in the office of Defense Secretary Johnson, said there has been close harmony between VA and Defense Department medical men and declared this would continue.

On Thursday, Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, VA chief medical director, told reporters a recent order by Secretary Johnson pointed the way toward easing VA patients out of armed forces hospitals since the services were directed to put all "nonmilitary activities" into a "secondary role."

Dr. Meiling declared yesterday that "there is no misunderstanding, no friction between Dr. Magnuson and myself about the care of any patients, including VA beneficiaries, in armed forces hospitals."

Dr. Magnuson, when informed of the statement, agreed that Dr. Meiling personally had cooperated closely in helping VA use vacant bed space in service hospitals, but insisted he was "worried about Secretary Johnson's order."

"It looks to me like a straw in the wind toward removal in the future of VA patients, even if not immediately," he said. But then he added, reflectively, "maybe I'm worried too much."

3 City Papers Charged With Refusing Ad

By The Associated Press

The Democratic National Committee spoke out yesterday against what it called censorship in the refusal of three Washington newspapers to accept advertisements giving the views of small businessmen on the antitrust suit against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

The committee statement appeared over the signature of Chairman William M. Boyle in the committee's weekly publication, Capital Comment.

It said all four Washington papers "ran the advertisements in which A & P assailed the Justice Department for enforcing the antitrust laws," but only one of the four accepted the small business ad.

It was offered by the National Federation of Independent Business, which describes itself as a nonpartisan organization with a membership of 136,000 small, independent business and professional men.

Capital Comment said only one daily, the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, commented on a previous story in Capital Comment to the effect that three Washington papers, whose names were not given, had refused to carry the small business ad.

The Louisville paper quoted George J. Burger, vice president of the small businessmen's group, as saying the Evening Star, The Washington Post and the Times-Herald had rejected the ad while the Daily News had run it.

The Courier-Journal said Burger selected the four Washington papers and one each in California, Texas, Iowa and Massachusetts for a "test-run" preparatory to inserting the ad in 500 papers.

Of the situation in Washington, Capital Comment said:

"That the press in general thus far has not seen any news value in the fact that this censorship situation exists seems to indicate that the newspaper business is not as vigilant a policeman of its own affairs as it is of the affairs of others."

Star Explains Position

Crosby N. Boyd, business manager of the Star, said the wording of the advertisement rather than its substance was the point at issue.

"There was never any question as to the right of the advertiser to present his side of the case and he was so informed and in considerable detail," Boyd said.

"When the advertisement was submitted for consideration the advertiser was advised of the objectionable wording, with the suggestion that the phraseology be changed. The changes were not made and the advertisement was not resubmitted," he said.

Boyd said the Government's side of the case had been carried fully in the Star's news columns and that another advertisement, "rebutting" the A. & P. advertising, had been approved by the Star for acceptance but had not yet been submitted. He did not say who offered this ad.

Boyd confirmed a letter Burger said had been written to him October 25 by Godfrey W. Kauffman, the Star advertising manager, saying:

"It is not our policy to permit any advertiser to discredit the advertising of another, and, for that reason, the copy as submitted is not acceptable.

"The Star has no objection to any individual or advertising taking a positive stand for or against any issue, and we therefore would have no objection to your organization stating the reasons why its supports the Justice Department in this case. If you desire to resubmit the copy setting forth the Government's side of the current issue, we should be pleased to accept it."

'Seemed Possibly Libelous'

Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, said:

"The Washington Post rejected the advertisement because it seemed possibly libelous. We give the widest latitude to advertisers in expression of opinion because we consider this a proper responsibility of newspapers.

"Because of this responsibility, we have in recent years printed advertisements ranging from Gerald L. K. Smith to Paul Robeson. We do not think, however, that our responsibility requires the printing of possibly libelous matter. If the advertisement is rewritten to cure this defect we shall be glad to print it."

Frank C. Waldrop, executive editor of the Washington Times-Herald, said his paper would have no comment.

Matt Meyer, business manager of the Daily News, said the Burger ad was "offered to us, okayed by our editor as far as the copy was concerned, and we ran it."

"The fact that an ad is controversial doesn't stop its publication in our paper," he added.

Burger identified the four out-of-Washington papers that ran the ad as the San Diego Journal, the Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette, the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot-Ledger, and the Austin (Tex.) American-Statesman.

Department Store Election Ruled Out

A union bargaining election among employes of the Stern Brothers Department Store in New York City was set aside yesterday on grounds the successful union went "far beyond the limits of legitimate electioneering."

Overruling a hearing officer who had urged approval of the election, the National Labor Relations Board said Local 5 of the Independent Department Store Employes resorted to assaults on employes, threats and other misconduct to roll up its majority.

Who Is No Lamb

2 in Jam—Grand Slam For Wham

A case of double—or triple—whammy brought Police Pvt. Valdean Wham into Municipal Court yesterday with two defendants, each charged with driving under influence of alcohol.

Wham

Private Wham said he pursued Mack E. Duett, 35, a Marine, of Henderson Hall, Arlington, onto Highway bridge early yesterday for speeding. When he stopped Duett, he said he observed the man's thick speech, and put the whammy of an alcoholic driving charge on top of a speeding count.

While this was in progress, another auto whammed into Private Wham's motorcycle, then into another car, and stopped. Private Wham collared William I. Garrett, 23, a plumber, of 114 S. Fairfax st., Arlington, and observed more viscous conversation.

So he whammed Garrett with an alcoholic driving charge. Then he had to get help to dispose of prisoners and his whammed-up motorcycle.

Judge Walter J. Casey fined Duett $50 on the drinking-driving charge, and $10 for speeding. He placed Garrett under $300 bond pending a probation office report. He found both men guilty of the charges.

5 Firemen Hurt In Downtown Warehouse Blaze

Five firemen were injured slightly early yesterday in a fire which caused minor damage to an empty, condemned, two-story brick warehouse at 326 G st. sw.

Treated at Casualty Hospital were Pvt. James Harrison, 25, of 1905 Maryland ave. nw., attached to No. 7 Engine Co., for cuts and burns on the hands; and Donald B. Jones, 28, of 5045 Sheriff rd. ne., attached to No. 10 Truck Co., burns to the right hand and right ear.

Three others were treated on the scene: Pvt. William Tompkins of No. 7 Engine Co., for smoke inhalation; Pvt. Quincy Cyrus, No. 7, for cuts on the hands; and Sergt. Harry C. Winters, temporarily attached to No. 7 from No. 3, cuts on the hands.

Harrison, Cyrus and Winters were injured when a ceiling caved in.

Firemen said the blaze, of undetermined origin, was confined to two second-floor rooms and a hallway.

Capital Transit Route H-8 to Be Extended Sunday

Effective Sunday, a portion of Capital Transit Company's Route H-8 Community bus line, will be extended from the intersection of Old Landover and Landover rds., Md., to Kent Village via Landover rd. and 73d ave., Capital Transit announces. The spur will be known as Route H-6.

There will be no change in the route of that portion of the line which now serves the Radiant Valley and Landover Hills areas. The present 30-minute service on Route H-8 will continue, but, because of the diversion, riders on either portion of the line east of the intersection point of Old Landover and Landover rds. will receive 70-minute service.

The Riverdale-East Pines line, now designated H-6, will become H-3.

D. C. Piano Tuners Unit Holds Luncheon Today

The Washington Division of the National Association of Piano Tuners will hold a luncheon meeting today at 1:45 p. m. in the Chantilly Room of the Hotel Hamilton.

The association, organized to maintain technical and professional standards in piano service, is affiliated with the National Music Council and the Music Teachers National Association.

Youth Seized Hiding in Store Here

A 17-year-old boy, found by police late Thursday night in the Woodward & Lothrop department store, was being held at the Receiving Home yesterday pending investigation.

The youth was discovered behind a counter after a night watchman called the First Precinct to help him track down a noise in the store.

The boy told police he came here from Richmond, Va., three days ago to find work. He said he entered the store before closing time Thursday, went to a stockroom and fell asleep. He said he tried unsuccessfully to leave the store by smashing the glass in a door.

Detectives said the youth gave a home address in Spring Valley, N. Y., which proved to be false. Juvenile papers were issued against the boy for housebreaking and destroying property.

Capital Transit Seeks to Start Express Bus Route

Application for a new rush-hour, extra fare, express bus route across the new S. Capitol st. bridge, was made yesterday by the Capital Transit Co., to the Public Utilities Commission. No date was set for hearing.

The route, to be known as A-9, would start from 10th st. nw., near Pennsylvania ave., and terminate at Atlantic ave., and Nichols st. se.

Transit officials said the line would make few pickup and discharge stops near the ends of the route, and would run nonstop for 4 of its 5 miles. It is expected to cut at least 15 minutes from present running time over the congested 11th street bridge to and from the Anacostia area. Fare would be the regular one plus 5 cents. The S. Capitol st., bridge is scheduled for competition in December.

FCC Suspends TV Testimony

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday suspended the taking of testimony in its seven-week-old hearing on color television systems.

The sessions will be briefly resumed here the week of November 21 for a comparative demonstration of the systems proposed by the Radio Corporation of America and Columbia Broadcasting System.

After these tests the entire proceeding will be recessed to the week of February 6, when Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco will show a third system here in competition with RCA and CBS. Examination of expert witnesses will then be resumed.

Oklahoma Oil, Water-Flooding Pact Approved

By The Associated Press

The Interior Department announced yesterday approval of a blanket oil lease and operating contract for water-flooding the 22,000-acre North Burbank unit on the Osage Indian reservation in Oklahoma.

In water flooding, water is pumped from the surface down into the oil sands, additional pressure is built up, forcing oil out of the formation and enabling greater recovery of petroleum.

The North Burbank unit has produced 169 million barrels of oil since the original lease in 1920.

Estimates of future recovery through water-flood methods range from 140 million to 165 million barrels.

The water-flood reserves of the unit have an estimated present-day worth of 375 million dollars. Water-flood development costs are expected to amount to 50 million dollars.

Nobel Prize Winners Asked for Candidates

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Swedish Academy of Literature, criticized for its failure to name a Nobel prize winner for literature this year, today authorized all past winners to nominate candidates for the award next year.

Wife Charged With Setting Mate on Fire

A 49-year-old man was in critical condition yesterday with burns over 40 percent of his body, and his common-law wife was charged by police with setting him on fire as the result of an argument over $5.

In Gallinger Hospital with first, second and third-degree burns is John F. Lee, of 1319 First st sw. Fourth Precinct police were holding his wife, Christine Carr, 39, for assault with intent to kill.

Homicide detectives said Miss Carr poured gasoline over Lee as he slept in his bed early yesterday, then touched a match to him.

The woman, however, claims that Lee attempted to pour gasoline over her and, in the process, poured some on himself. He set himself ablaze, she told officers, when he lit a cigarette in bed.

Police said the couple played cards with friends in the kitchen of their home Thursday night. During the game, detectives said, Miss Carr won $5 and gave it to Lee for safekeeping.

Afterwards, Miss Carr asked for the money but Lee refused to return it, officers said.

Despite the fact that Lee was burned about 2 a. m., he was not taken to the hospital and police were not notified until 1:3 a. m.

Officers said neighbors, noticing smoke coming from the house, put out the blaze without calling the Fire DeOpartment.

The Fire Marshal's office also was investigating.

G. U. Senior To Represent D. C. At N. Y. Conclave

Richard A. Gordon, 21, of 1383 Bryant st. ne., has been selected to represent Washington college students at the fifty-fourth Congress of American Industry in New York.

Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon of the Bryant st. address, is a senior at Georgetown University, majoring in English. He is one of 49 students from the Nation whom the National Association of Manufacturers is inviting to the congress.

The congress will be held December 7, 8 and 9. NAM will entertain the collegians for five days, with sightseeing trips as well as conference sessions.

Paramount Net Dips in Period

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—Paramount Picttures, Inc., today reported estimated net profit of $5,824,000 for the quarter ended October 1, equal to 90 cents a common share. This compared with net of $6,445,000, or 94 cents a share, for the quarter ended October 2, 1948.

Estimated earnings for the nine months ended October 1 were $19,299,000, or $2.97 a share, against $20,015,000, or $2.93 a share, a year ago.

Briggs Net Increases

Detroit, Nov. 10 (AP).—Briggs Manufacturing Co. and its domestic subsidiaries today reported nine-month net profits of $9,120,012. The earnings are equal to $4.68 a share, on a base of 1,947,700 shares. In the same period last year, net profits were $7,412,597, equal to $3.80 a share.

The third quarter profits for 1949, Briggs officials said, were $6,157,058, equal to $3.50 a share, and almost as much as was netted during all of 1948.

Lustron Confirms 2000-House Sale

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 11 (AP).—Officials of Lustron Corp. today confirmed sale of 2000 prefabricated houses to the American Community Builders of Chicago.

Lustron officials admitted the sale but would not discuss details.

Purchase price of the 2000 housing units is believed to be more than 20 million dollars. But, approval of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. will be sought before official closing of the deal.

American Community Builders is constructing a housing project in a suburban area of South Chicago.

British Bonds Rally Sharply

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—British treasury buying led to a wild scramble by short sellers and sharp rises in the price of British government bonds today.

As word got around the London exchange that the government broker was in the market, speculators who had been gambling on a further fall in the bonds rushed to cover.

By closing time price rises on the government bond list ranged from 1 to 2½ points all along the line.

The bonds slumped badly earlier in the week, some to record lows, because of investor doubts about Britain's economic future.

Three New Directors Named for Swift Co.

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP).—Swift and Co., meat packing firm, has announced a major turnover in its board of directors.

Retiring are George H. Swift, one of two remaining sons of the company's founder; M. B. Brainard, president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., and A. F. Hunt, who withdrew as a company vice president last year and now lives in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif.

Nominated to take their places were J. F. Brandt, comptroller of the company; Paul C. Smith, in charge of beef, lamb, and veal operations, and George J. Stewart, in charge of canned foods, margarine, and other by-product operations.

Store Sales In D. C. Rally 8% in Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stronger promotion and improved weather helped Washington department store sales in the week ended November 5 to register an 8 percent gain over the like period last year.

For the four weeks ended November 5, however, local sales showed a 1 percent decline under the same 1948 period, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Regionally, a more favorable sales trend also was noticeable with the Fifth Reserve District exhibiting a 4 percent upturn for the week.

Nationally, store sales in the week ended November 5 came closer to the 1948 mark than at any time in months. The Federal Reserve Board reported that sales for that week slipped only 2 percent below the corresponding 1948 period. That compared with lags of 7, 14 and 12 percent in the three preceding weeks and an average drop of 6 percent for the same part of 1948.

Furthermore, the Reserve Board noted that 7 of the 17 Federal Reserve Districts showed store sales in their sectors were greater in the November 5 week than they were in that week last year. Losses in the other five districts outweighed them, however.

Market Holiday

Major security and commodity markets were closed yesterday in observance of Armistice Day. They will resume today for the short session.

TRIBUTE: A representative Who's Who in Washington turned out Thursday night to pay tribute to Thomas W. Brahany, the silvery - haired brokerage executive whose list of friends reads like a city directory. Banker John A. Reilly presided at the Mayflower buffet supper, which was sponsored by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, among those who paid homage to Brahany, said: "I'm one who believes that the roses should be cast while the perfume can be sniffed (by the recipient)."

PREDICTION: The Nation is in a period of "creeping inflation," according to Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution of Washington. Speaking in Des Moines, Iowa, Moulton said, "You might just as well forget about much cheaper manufacturers products . . ." He foresaw no reduction in construction costs, predicted "much lower" auto production in 1950 and a general reduction in business for spring and summer. He warned that artificial stimulants such as the 2.8 billion dollars in veterans insurance dividends next year will not last long.

PEPCO SALES: Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported October sales of 129,052,914 kilowatt hours in the District of Columbia, a drop of 5.46 percent from the same 1948 month. In the suburban area served by Pepco, October sales totaled 30,654,423 kilowatt hours for an increase of 14.05 percent.

NEW CHAIRMEN: The wholesale food division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association has elected the following officers:

John Klein, general chairman, to succeed Sidney Kolker; Morris Kraft, vice chairman; Fred Kolker, secretary, and Andrew C. Auth, treasurer.

The following trade group chairmen also were elected:

William Huhn, butter and eggs; Raymond C. Briggs, packers; A. L. Thomas, brokers; Francis I. Brooke, poultry; Anton S. Auth, hotel supply; Harry Claxton, seafood, and James K. Farrell, beef wholesalers.

INCREASE: Directors of Safeway Stores, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 40 cents a common share, payable December 15 to stock of record December 2. Payments of 30 cents a share were made in July and September, and 25 cents last April.

ODD LOTS: John D. Murphy, a Washington representative of Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., describes a work management system in an article in the Insurance Salesman, trade journal . . . Ohio Edison Co. will pay 35 million dollars to Cities Service Co. in taking over controlling interest in Ohio Public Service Co. The SEC ordered Cities Service to dispose of the stock interest . . . The Ford Motor Co. confirmed reports it is negotiating to buy 55 acres of land in Cincinnati to build an automatic transmission plant . . . The Pennsylvania Transformer Co. has paid about a million dollars to the War Assets Administration for the wartime aluminum plant at Cannonsburg, Pa. . . . Directors of Aetna Life Insurance recommended that stockholders approve an increase in capital stock from 15 million dollars to 20 million dollars by the declaration of a stock dividend of one new share for each three shares held.

Untapped Natural Gas Sources Seen In Eastern Area

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 11 (AP).—There are great untapped natural gas sources in the East that may supply reserves for the Manufacturers Light & Heat Co., Pittsburgh, says a geologist.

"There's a large area in the Appalachian area that has been unexplored for natural gas," said E. E. Roth, vice president of the Columbia Engineering Corp., New York City.

Roth made his statement yesterday at a Public Utility Commission hearing here on a Manufacturers application to provide natural gas to the Lancaster Gas Co., the Consumers Gas Co., Reading, the Allentown-Bethlehem Gas Co. and the Harrisburg Gas Co.

He cited recent discoveries in western Pennsylvania and said the area includes central New York and Pennsylvania, the eastern section of West Virginia, a part of Virginia and possibly a section in Tennessee.

School Fund Boost Urged in Virginia

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 11 (AP). A Virginia school superintendent today recommended a larger equalization fund as the first step by the State in meeting Statewide school needs.

The fund—now $400,000—is used to help the State's poorer counties provide school facilities more nearly equal to those in other counties.

T. Benton Gayle, superintendent of schools in King George and Stafford Counties, told a State Board of Education public hearing here an increased State outlay is essential because the "counties are almost powerless to alleviate school conditions.

Speaking for the Alexandria League of Women Voters, which she heads, Mrs. W. F. Pfeiffer asserted the group is "intensely interested" to see that educational standards are raised in Virginia to conform with higher standards in Maryland and the District.

She said that while Alexandria's school system may compare favorably with others over Greater Washington, the city suffers because of the generally low standards in the rest of the State.

Mrs. Pfeiffer commended the State Board of Education for its recent report on education in Virginia. She added, however, that an improved school-community relationship throughout the State is desirable.

Today's Hearing, attended by about 300 persons from Fredericksburg and eight surrounding counties, was the fifth in a series of nine planned by the State Board of Education to obtain the public's views on educational needs in Virginia.

In calling for an enlarged equalization fund at the "first answer" to the school situation, Gayle asid the counties cannot act because their boards of supervisors are without the power to assess sufficient taxes.

Gayle said only one State, Florida, in the South "is putting a smaller percentage" than Virginia into local school funds.

Clew to Lost Flier Seen In Message

Anchorage, Alaska, Nov. 11 (U.P.). The message scrawled in charcoa. on a board in a remote cabin said, "God bless the person who built this cabin and left food in it."

It was the latest sign that bush pilot Francis Brownfield, lost in the Susitna River wilderness for 71 days, still may be alive.

"I, Francis Brownfield, was sick and lost when I arrived," the message said. "I will pay the owner for food if I ever get back."

There was no date on the message. But planes were sent aloft today to scan the Alaskan forests where Brownfield still may be wandering.

His plane crash-landed on a sandbar in the wild Talkeetna country last Labor Day. Three exhausted companions, Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Donnell and Earl Bogle, hiked out of the wilderness. Brownfield flew the partly disabled plane off the sandbar alone, and had not been heard from since.

The charcoal handwriting found in the cabin of Oscar Vogel, a trapper, was identified as Brownfield's by his father, Murl Brownfield of Sequin, Wash.

Bird Show Opens For Public Today

Hundreds of birds arrived at the Odd Fellows Hall yesterday for the fifteenth annual Grand National Bird Show of the National Capital Canary Club.

The show will be open to the public today and Sunday without charge, with judging today from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Entries include canaries, parakeets, finches, siskins and others.

HENRY W. BOSTELMAN, a former convict, described by the FBI as a notorious safecracker, is held in $10,000 bond in St. Louis, where he was arraigned yesterday on a Federal charge of transporting property taken in a sensational jewelry store burglary in Richmond, Va., last February. The retail price of the stolen gems has been set at $481,000

School Rejects Negro Protest On Fellowship

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has asked Columbia University to discontinue the Lydia C. Roberts graduate fellowships, which are limited to "persons of the Caucasian race."

The demand, made yesterday, brought a denial fro mthe University that its acceptance and administration of the fellowship funds constitutes discrimination.

The fellowships, set up in 1920 through a $419,000 endowment provided in the will of the late Mrs. Lydia Roberts Chamberlain, have been awarded annually since then. The fund provides for four $1500 and nine $1000 fellowships.

The campus chapter of the NAACP denounced the terms of the grants in handbills circulated at the university last week. The headquarters of the NAACP yesterday joined in asking that the university reject the fellowships.

Grayson L. Kirk, provost of the university, said the university "naturally prefers to have endowed scholarships with as few limitations as possible," but that "we do not feel we are justified in depriving some of our students of the benefits of restricted grants simply because they are not available to everyone."

Girl, 12, Parents' 'Eye,' Faces Knife to Save Only Good One

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 11 (U.P.).—A little girl lay in a hospital bed today waiting for an operation that will either save her sight or destroy the one good eye with which she has been seeing for her entire family.

The parents of Mary Hope Hodgdon, 12, are totally blind, and they have prepared her for what may come. Mary Hope is afraid, but only of what her blindness would do to them. For she helps her mother with the cleaning and tells her what needs scrubbing. She goes to the movies and describes everything that happens. She reads the mail. She guides her parents about the city.

Only an operation can save Mary Hope's sight. Doctors will operate next week in an effort to keep the retina of her right eye from separating from her eyeball. Her left eye was blinded last June by the affliction.

Mrs. Hodgdon was blinded by the same ailment when she was 5. Mary Hope's father lost his sight in 1926 in an explosion. He's a door-to-door broom salesman now.

Washington State Frees Fla. Fugitive

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 11. (AP)—Florida prison officials were called "just plain liars" by a Superior Court judge here yesterday afternoon in releasing from custody a fugitive from a Florida prison camp.

Judge W. A. Richmond granted freedom to Charles D. Seiber, 25-year-old native of Clinton, Tenn., whose extradition was sought by Florida.

Seiber has been confined to jail since July 13 while his return was sought. He freely admitted having escaped from the Florida camp.

Michigan Governor Refuses Extradition

Detroit, Nov. 11 (AP).—Bespectacled Sam Bearden, 37, escaped convict from Georgia, walked legally free in Michigan today. But heated words between officials of the two States still echoed over his fight against extradition.

Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan had refused to approve extradition, claiming that Bearden had been a victim of "cruel and unusual punishment" in Georgia.

Bearden fatally shot his sister, he claimed accidentally, and received a life term. Eugene Cook, Georgia's attorney, charged that Williams had violated his oath and had scorned constitutional government.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Making the Kitchen a Living Room

In the rambling houses of our grandfathers, the kitchen was often not only a place where food was cooked but where it was eaten. Nor was it uncommon for the kitchen to become the center where family members and even friends gathered when no one was putting on "company manners."

There's something pleasurable about feeling comfortable in the room where so many important things go on. Probably the kitchen was the place in which more families felt at home than in any other. The formal parlor was funereal and often other rooms were pretty chilly during the winter months.

Houses are different today. Yet many families still like to gather around the place where food is prepared. So we have dining nooks in one corner of the kitchen if the latter is large enough. Or as we have done in our home, breakfast counter is built that looks right into the kitchen and opens it up to the rest of the house. And the "cook" likes it especially because the rest of the family can be with her while meals are being prepared.

There are all sorts of ways in which the kitchen can be made a homey place. A comfortable chair or two if there's room, a shelf that can be drawn out or let down to serve as a writing desk, a place for the radio, a few potted plants—it can be fun to make your kitchen a living room.

MEMO TO THE PICTURE EDITOR

I've been asleep at the switch. Otherwise we'd have had a pip of a picture last week.

It would have shown four Washington bigshots playing golf on a public course and toting their own sacks—even as you and I.

Reading from left to right, the four were: O. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of the Interior; Harry Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board; Milo F. Christiansen, D. C. Superintendent of Recreation; and James M. Schwab, member of the Recreation Board.

A story goes with the picture. As you know, there's been a big ruckus about who should operate Interior's public golf courses in this area.

Nothing much came of the debate, except that S. G. Leoffler, the concessioner, belatedly began to improve the courses.

Congress went home without settling the issue, so Interior and the Recreation Board have been trying to work out an arrangement whereby the Board could take over.

But as these four big wheels discussed the problem, it occurred to them that they had never actually played on the courses they were talking about.

So they organized a foursome to test the links, and that's when we should have had a photographer handy.

Just visualize this, Walter. Secretary Davidson rolls up in his official limousine, complete with uniformed chauffeur, and politely asks: "May I have a caddy?"

They broke the sad news to him that caddies have been discouraged from working at Leoffler-controlled courses. (They won't permit a man's own son to caddy for him, even if the father pays greens fees for his non-playing boy. The rule is that nobody is allowed on the course except paying players equipped with sack and clubs.)

So Davidson was a good sport about it, and lugged his own bag, just like everybody else.

Most of the way around he needled Harry Wender about "Bill Gold's mistaken reports that the course was too wet." Chided the Secretary: "Where are all those rivers Bill wrote about?"

But on the eighteenth tee the foursome was confronted by a veritable lake. And of course the very first drive landed kerplunk in the middle of it.

Unanimously, if somewhat inaccurately, the lake was thereupon dubbed the "Bill Gold River," and if it remains undrained long enough I hope to see it duly marked on future maps.

PROBLEM HUSBAND

"You have my sympathy in your attempt to find a house," writes Mrs. Milton Bell of 5355 Quincy pl., Hyattsville, Md. Then she adds:

"My own problem is even worse. I can't even get my husband to go look at them."

CONTRIBUTOR

"Would I like to contribute to the Community Chest?" Her voice echoed the solicitor's question, but her eyes seemed to say that she didn't quite comprehend.

"Would I like to contribute to the Community Chest?" she murmured again. "Yes—of course I would. Come in, won't you?"

Now the light was better, and the sadness in the eyes was more apparent. They had been crying.

There was a deep sorrow in the woman's face—a sorrow that seemed to fill the room, and hang broodingly over everything in it.

The solicitor shifted uneasily. "Perhaps I could come back another time . . ."

"No, no. I just want to collect my thoughts for a moment. You see . . . we haven't been very fortunate lately. It's hard to know what one should do. Would you accept two dollars? I'd like to give more, but my husband is in the hospital. He's dying, the doctors say, and I haven't been able to . . ."

"I'm so sorry. I wouldn't have solicited you if I had known."

"No—I want you to take this, as a mark of our appreciation for the help they've tried to give my husband. Take it, my dear . . . and help me pray for him."

The eyes were crying again, as she pressed the money into the solicitor's hand. But the sorrow in her face seemed to have been softened a little, by Hope.

Yes, it's a true story. The woman whose husband is dying is an all-too-real neighbor of ours — a neighbor who has learned through bitter experience how important a helping hand can be.

The Community Chest can't extend that helping hand without YOUR help.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—When Sir Stafford Cripps was in New York last, he told of the trip he took to Moscow at the time Harold C. Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, was negotiating a grain treaty with Russia. Whenever British delegations work in the Soviet Union, they always keep a radio going in their rooms and near the telephone, as protection against the Soviet wire-tappers . . . On the day the treaty sessions ended, Wilson returned to his hotel room, where his parliamentary secretary, Tom Cook, had the radio going. Cook asked if Mikoyan had presented him with any vodka or caviar, and Wilson said, "He didn't."

Cook then suggested: "Go back through the door, and come into this room again." Wilson left the room, and Cook turned the radio off. Wilson opened the door, and Cook greeted him and they exchanged perfunctory comments about the grain treaty. Then, in tones distinct enough for even the most inept wire-tappers to hear, Cook asked: "Did Mr. Mikoyan present you with any vodka or caviar?" Wilson repeated: "No, he didn't" . . . "Then it means," said Cook, "that we must be on very bad terms with the Russians" . . . A half hour later a messenger arrived at Wilson's quarters, carrying bottles of vodka and large boxes of caviar for Harold Wilson and Sir Stafford Cripps as gifts from the Soviet government.

Last week the Friars Club of Hollywood gave a stag dinner in honor of Sophie Tucker, the first woman ever to attend a Friars' Roast. In addition to the speeches, there were songs and playlets by members of the club . . . At George Jessel's suggestion, Eddie Cantor appeared in a sketch in which he wore the costume of an Italian barber, and recited leering lines about his marital adventures with Miss Tucker. The guest of honor and most of the guests seemed baffled by this irrelevant sketch. And when it was over and Cantor bowed, Jessel apologized to him. "I made a mistake, Eddie," Jessel announced. "I've just realized that an Italian barber was not Sophie Tucker's first husband—but Fanny Brice's."

KIND OF THE INN MANAGER TO LET US HOLD OUR CONFERENCE IN HIS SITTIN' ROOM, BUNNY!.. NOW..LET'S HEAR THE VERSE FOR THE BACK OF THE CALORIE CARD!
YOU READ IT, ...I'M A SHY GUY!
Heard you're going on a diet! Well, I once thought I would try it - So I sacrificed my dinner (But I never got much thinner.) Gave up cookies, custard drippy! (But I still stayed rather hippy!) Said no-no to all things malty, Creamy, gooey, rich or salty— Though I lost my swimsuit zigger, I still had my chubby figger. So, although I lost my fight, dear I hope this will be your light year!
BUNNY! YOU'RE A GENIUS! WHAT WOULD THE SWEETLIGHT COMPANY DO WITHOUT YOU?!!
THAT, MARTIN, IS SOMETHING WE ARE GOING TO FIND OUT!.. IMMEDIATELY!

STEVE CANYON

YO'RE MIGHTY PERKIED UP, STEVIE! DON'T TELL ME YO'RE HEADIN' FER REDWOOD!
ROGER, HAPPY! SOMETHING CAME UP THAT I MUST SEE HER ABOUT!
WHUT COME UP WUZ YORE TEMPERATURE— JIST LIKE THEM OTHER PILOTS!
DON'T YOU THINK I CAN KEEP MY HEAD AROUND DOE?
IT AIN'T YORE HEAD, IT'S YORE HEART I'M THINKIN' ABOUT!
DON'T WORRY, HAP—I KNOW WHAT I'M DOING...
THET'S WHUT EVERY MARRIED MAN IN TH' WORLD SAID TO HISSELF JIST BEFORE HE WENT TO HIS GAL'S HOUSE FER A MEAL THAT FUST TIME!

JOE PALOOKA

TAKE ME ALONG T' TRAIN 'IM, JERRY.
L'KOUT, WILL YA... SCRAM!
HEY, YA'LL NEED A MASSOOR.
HOW ABOUT GOIN' ALONG, JERRY
I GOTTA GIT GOIN'. I'LL SEE YA AT TH' FIGHT.
YOU SURE HIT THE JACK-POT, JERRY?
WHEN DID YOU AN' HUMPHREY COOK THIS UP?
HE..UH... DON'T KNOW ABOUT IT YET. I'M GOIN' OUT AN' TELL 'IM. S'LONG.
WHAT?
YA WHAT?

PENNY

HE DID IT, FATHER! HE MADE THE PLAY!
SO WHAT?
BUT YOU SAY YOU'RE AN EXPERT, FATHER, AND YOU SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE!
HUMPH!
HE'D KNOW IT CAN'T BE DONE!

DOTTY

COULD YOUSE SPARE A BITE TO EAT?
SURE! COME AROUND TO THE BACK DOOR!
MM--THAT ROAST BEEF, WARMED UP WOULD BE NICE--WITH SOUP AND A SALAD-- UH--WOULD YOU LIKE A CUP OF COFFEE?
YES--BUT I'LL HAVE IT LATER WITH THE PIE AND ICE CREAM!

MICKEY FINN

THE DINNER IS SURE GETTING A LOT OF PUBLICITY, MICKEY! I'LL BET EVERY KID ALONG THE RIVER FRONT WILL BE ON HAND!
I WENT OVER THERE TODAY, TOM!
YOU DID? WHY?
TO SEE WEEPY! I WANTED HIM TO KNOW THAT HE'D BE WELCOME AT THE DINNER—THE SAME AS ANY OTHER KID IN THAT SECTION!
I FIGURED IT WOULD BE A GOOD CHANCE TO PATCH THINGS UP BETWEEN HIM AND RED—AND MAYBE AVOID SOME TROUBLE LATER ON!
WELL, WHAT DID HE SAY? IS HE GOING TO GO?
NO!

REX MORGAN, M. D.

WHERE DID YOU GET THIS PRESCRIPTION, SQUEAKY?
I JUST KEEP MY EYES OPEN, PROFESSOR! IT FELL OUT OF MR. MORGAN'S POCKET WHEN HE REACHED FOR A HANDKERCHIEF TO WIPE AWAY HIS WIFE'S CROCODILE TEARS!
SO THE GOOD DOCTOR IS TRYING TO OUTSMART THE PROFESSOR, IS HE?
I'LL GET RID OF HIM! I'LL TELL HIM THE EXAMINATION CAN'T BE CONTINUED!

On Peace and The Human Touch

By Drew Pearson

En Route Through Midwest.—On Armistice Day at Hays, Kans., yesterday, I relaxed from the alleged crouching position under the cabinet table to tell something about people-to-people friendship.

Pearson

I hope tolerant editors will forgive me if I devote a second column to the manner in which the American people, with no prompting and little encouragement from their Government, have become, in effect, their own ambassadors.

What our diplomats and our military don't seem fully to realize are the following fundamental truths about human nature:

You can put all the arms in the world in Europeans' hands, but that doesn't necessarily make 'em fight.

You can send food and Marshall Plan money to Atlantic Pact nations, but they don't particularly appreciate it if it lacks the human touch.

We can keep on building 'A-bombs and 70 air groups and even giant airplane carriers until our pockets are empty and the American people are bled white. But this won't prevent war unless the people of Europe—especially those behind the Iron Curtain—are so friendly toward the American people that they oppose war.

Now in this columnist's humble opinion, the most optimistic developments in the world today are, first, the fact that certain of the Iron Curtain countries — Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia—are now restless and leaning more toward the United States, and second is the fact that the American people, tired and discouraged as some of them may be, are still working at wooing friends on a people-to-people basis.

Peace Doesn't Make Headlines

Wars and revolutions make headlines, but man's groping efforts toward peace don't. Sometimes they don't even make the inside pages of the big newspapers. Nevertheless when the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Charleston, W. Va., adopts a plan to bring 20 European young men to West Virginia for one year of employment and study, it's news—important news.

It's also news when the national headquarters of the junior chamber writes the State Department proposing that it finance the trip of 100 young Russians to study in the United States.

This is news first because it takes considerable courage to make such a proposal. It might be misinterpreted as pro-Communist by some people. But the young businessmen who later will be helping to run this country have enough confidence in their country to know that once you get a group of young Russians over here—even though Communists—they're pretty sure to understand the American people and like them, and if you could get enough young Russians here on regular visits, it would eventually make a real dent in the Iron Curtain.

The State Department, replying to the Junior Chamber, as usual was evasive. But meanwhile the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Texas has launched a plan called "Jaycee Universal Understanding" under which, for example, Amarillo, Tex., is cooperating with Salzburg, Austria, first by correspondence, later by financing the trip of a Salzburg citizen to Amarillo where they can swap ideas with him and discuss problems firsthand.

Labor Leaders Help

This urge for more contact between peoples isn't confined to little business or to educational groups. It exists also among big business and labor unions. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers has established a factory in Italy to demonstrate American mechanized methods to Italian workers. Irving Brown of A. F. of L., representative in Brussels, has done more than many American Ambassadors to give European labor leaders a true picture of American democracy. And Henry Ford, with no commercial advertising for his cars, is helping the American public to understand the United Nations by televising U. N. sessions every day.

Again, American Airlines selected 80 key newspapermen from key European countries, even including Iron Curtain Finland, and took them on a complete tour of the United States, all expenses paid. United States Mayors, Governors and Cabinet members were delighted to cooperate. But when it came to the State Department, Stanley Woodward, a stickler for protocol, refused to let them see President Truman. Finally wiser head Michael McDermott of the State Department prevailed, and the European editors did see Truman.

As a result of American Airlines' thoughtful patriotism, this group will correctly interpret the United States to the European press for years to come.

Cities Adopt Cities

The above examples of individual American initiative are a mere cross-section of a great story that would take many columns to tell. Scores of towns and even villages in the USA are adopting or cooperating with cities in Europe. Butler County, Kans., is working with Beaugency, France; Neosho County, Kans. (my mother's old home) with Zevenbergen, Holland, Monroe, La., with Ingolstadt Germany; Greensburg, Ky., with Staltach, Germany, and Worthington, Minn., with Crailsheim, Germany.

In the latter case, Worthington news is actually published from time to time in the Crailsheim papers, and a Worthington float is appearing at the Crailsheim fall festival.

When Barber County, Kans., established contact with Clervaux, Luxembourg, the latter sent the Kansan a painting by their famous artist, Lily Unden. At first the folks in Barber County were going to sell the portrait to raise money for the Clervaux hospital. But now they have decided there is too much sentiment wrapped up in the portrait and they are raising the hospital money through other channels.
